THE HOUSE ON THE HILL.

Down the road is Wilmer's Woods,
  In the early days of spring
There the loveliest wild flowers grow;
  There first bluebirds come to sing.
There, through last year's withered leaves
  Peeps the bloodroot, gold and white;
And Quaker Ladies on the slope
  Spread a carpet of delight

A green valley's just beyond
  With a mill pond, deep and still,
And a mill, and from its door
  A long road climbs u pthe hill.
Half way up the winding road,
  Shaded by a flowering vine,
  Little, low, and painted brown,
  Stands the house that I call mine.

In the town across the bridge
  There are houses grand and tall,
Carven stone and ruddy brick
  Trim the roof and make the wall.
They have porches all around,
  Towers and gables very fine,
But I'm sure I'd rather live
  In the house that I call mine.

In its little garden plot
  Long before our orchard's gay,
A small peach tree blossoms out
  Like a rosy pink bouquet
  Lilacs grow beside the door;
  There's an arch above the gate;
And I see gay beds om phlox
  Blooming still, when summer's late.

When I am a woman grown
  (May that time soon come to me!)
I shall travel round the world,
  All its wonders I shall see;
And then I'll come back, to live
  In my dear home on the hill,
With the valley just beyond
  And the mill pond and the mill.
—Cecil Cavendish, in the June St. Nicholas.

TRIALS OF BOSS BARBERS.

The boss barber, who worked at the first chair in the intervals when he wasn't punching the cash register, stepped over to an old customer who had just entered and said in a low tone, according to the New York Sun:

"Your regular barber is sick today. Try that man on the fourth chair. He's a good shaver."

"He is not," said the customer. "I've tried him. Guess I'll let 'em grow until tomorrow."

"Wait a minute and I'll shave you," said the boss, and because of this the old customer waited.

"To tell the truth," began the boss as he was tucking the towel into the man's collar ten minutes later, "I can't tell which of my barbers are good.

"The other day I was shaving a man who told me that that man on the fourth chair was the best barber he'd ever struck. But I also have heard men say, like you, that he was a bum workman.

"It's the same about all the men in this shop. Some men will wait a long time for a chair that you couldn't hire other men to get into a second time"

"I know that to be true," said the old customer, "for a couple of weeks ago I told one of the men in our office to come here and try this barber of mine, and when he got back to the office, rubbing his face, he swore that the fellow had about scraped his face off."

The boss barber didn't know whether to be pleased at this proof of his accuracy or sorry to hear that he'd lost a customer, and said so.

"I suppose wel ose a lot of trade because men go too much on their first impressions of barbers," he went on. "Now I suppose that friend of yours will never come to my place again.

"But what can I do? Shall I fire that barber who he says nearly scraped his face off? Of course not. If I did I'd lose your trade, wouldn't I? Well, that's the sort of trouble I'm up against all the time. It's because no two faces are alike.

"But it isn't the only trouble I have. The other day I met a man who had been a regular customer here for several months, but who hadn't been in for two or thr e weks.

"'How do you do?' I asked him. 'Been out of the city?'

"'No,' he said.

"'Well, I haven't seen you at my place lately.'

"'No,' he said, 'I've quit going there'

"'Why's that?' I asked.

"'Well, I didn't like the only barber in your shop I ever did like.'

"'What's the trouble?' I asked.

"'He's too persistent,' he said.

"'How? What do you mean,' I asked.

"'Too persistent about begging me to get something else done to my face or head, so I quit.'

"Now, why didn't that customer come to me and tell me that the barber was annoying him? I'd have stopped it in a moment. No, he didn't do that—he just quit and went to another shop."

ROSALIND AT RED GATE

By MEREDITH NICHOLSON

Illustrations by RAY WALTERS

Copyright, 1907, by Bobbs-Merrill Company

"Trickery, more trickery; those were stolen from Helen!" blurted Henry, his eyes on the envelope; but we were waiting for the canoe-maker to speak, and Henry's words rang emptily in the shop.

Arthur looked at his brother; then he faced his sister.

"Henry is not guilty," he said, calmly.

He turned with a quick gesture and thrust the envelope into the flame of one of the candles; but Helen sprang forward and caught away the blazing packet and smothered the flame between her hands.

"We will keep the proof," she said in a tone of triumph; and I knew then how completely she had believed in her father.

"I don't know what is in that packet," said Gillespie, slowly, speaking for the first time. "It has never been opened. My lawyer told me that father had sworn to a statement about the trouble with Holbrook Brothers and placed it with the notes. My father was a peculiar man in some ways," continued Gillespie, embarrassed by the attention that was now riveted upon him. "His lawyer told me that I was to open that package—before—before marrying into"—and he grew red and stammered helplessly, with his eyes on the floor—"before marrying into the Holbrook family. I gave up that packet"—and he hesitated, coloring, and turning from Helen to Rosalind—"by mistake. But it's mine, and I demand it now."

"I wish Aunt Pat to open the envelope," said Rosalind, very white.

Henry turned a look of appeal upon his brother; but Miss Pat took the envelope from Helen and tore it open; and we stood by as though we waited for death or watched earth fall upon a grave. She bent down to one of the candles nearest her and took out the notes, which were wrapped in a sheet of legal cap. A red seal brightened in the light, and we heard the slight rattle of the paper in her tremulous fingers as she read. Suddenly a tear flashed upon the white sheet. When she had quite finished she gathered Gillespie's statement and the notes in her hand and turned and gave them to Henry; but she did not speak to him or meet his eyes. She crossed to where Arthur stood beside me, his head bowed, and as she advanced he turned away; but her arms stole over his shoulders and she said "Arthur" once, and again very softly.

"I think," she said, turning toward us all, with her sweet dignity, her brave air, that touched me as at first and always, beyond any words of mine to describe, but strong and beautiful and sweet and thrilling through me now, like bugles blown at dawn; "I think that we do well, Arthur, to give Henry his money."

And now it was Arthur's voice that rose in the shop; and it seemed that he spoke of his brother as of one who was afar off. We listened with painful intentness to this man who had suffered much and given much, and who still, in his simple heart, asked no praise for what he had done.

"He was strong, and I was weak; and I did for him what I could. And what I gave, I gave freely, for it is not often in this world that the weak may help the strong. He had the gifts, Pat, that I had not, and troops of friends; and he had ambitions that in my weakness I was not capable of; so I had not much to give. But what I had, Pat, I gave to him; I went to Gillespie and confessed; I took the blame; and I came here and worked with my hands—with my hands—" And he extended them as though the proof were asked; and kept repeating, between his sobs: "With my hands."

CHAPTER XXV.

Daybreak.

At midnight Gillespie and I discussed the day's affairs on the terrace at Glenarm. There were long pauses in our talk. Such things as we had seen and heard that night, in the canoe-maker's shop on the little creek, were beyond our poor range of words. And in the silences my own reflections were not wholly happy. If Miss Pat and Rosalind had not followed me to the canoe-maker's I might have spared Helen; but looking back, I would not change it now if I could. Helen had returned to St. Agatha's with her aunt, who would have it so; and we had parted at the school door, Miss Pat and Helen, Gillespie and I, with restraint heavy upon us all. Miss Pat had, it seemed, summoned her lawyer from New York several days before, to discuss the final settlement of her father's estate; and he was expected the next morning. I had asked them all to Glenarm for breakfast; and Arthur Holbrook and Rosalind, and Henry, who had broken down at the end, had agreed to come.

As we talked on, Gillespie and I, there under the stars, he disclosed, all unconsciously, new and surprising traits, and I felt my heart warming to him.

"He's a good deal of a man, that Arthur Holbrook," he remarked after a long pause. "He's beyond me. The man who runs the enemy's lines to bring relief to the garrison, or the leader of a forlorn hope, is tame after this. I suppose the world would call him a fool."

"Undoubtedly," I answered. "But he didn't do it for the world; he did it for himself. We can't applaud a thing like that in the usual phrases."

"No," Gillespie added; "only get down on our knees and bow our heads in the dust before it."

He rose and paced the long terrace. In his boat-shoes and white flannels he glided noiselessly back and forth, like a ghost in the star dusk. He paused at the western balustrade and looked off at St. Agatha's. Then he passed me and paused again, gazing lakeward through the wood as though turning from Helen to Rosalind; and I knew that it was with her, far over the water, in the little cottage at Red Gate, that his thoughts lingered. But when he came and stood beside me and rested his hand on my shoulder I knew that he wished to speak of Helen and I took his hand, and spoke to him to make it easier.

"Well, old man!"

"I was thinking of Helen," he said.

"So was I, Buttons."

"They are different, the two. They are very different."

"They are as like as God ever made two people; and yet they are different."

"I think you understand Helen. I never did," he declared, mournfully.

"You don't have to," I replied; and laughed, and rose and stood behind him. "And now there's something I want to speak to you about to-night. Helen borrowed some money of you a little while ago to meet one of her father's demands. I expect a draft for that money by the morning mail, and I want you to accept it with my thanks, and hers. And the incident shall pass as though it had never been."

About one o'clock the wind freshened and the trees flung out their arms like runners rushing before it; and from the west marched a storm with banners of lightning. It was a splendid spectacle, and we went indoors only when the rain began to wash across the terrace. We still watched it from our windows after we went upstairs, the lightning now blazing out blindingly, like sheets of flame from a furnace door, and again cracking about the house like a fiery whip.

"We ought to have brought Henry here to-night," remarked Gillespie.

"We Ought to Have Brought Henry Here To-Night."

"He's alone over there on the island with that dago and they're likely celebrating by getting drunk."

"The lightning's getting on your nerves; go to bed," I called back.

The storm left peace behind and I was abroad early, eager to have the first shock of the morning's meetings over. Gillespie greeted me cheerily and I told him to follow when he was ready. I went out and paced the walk between the house and St. Agatha's and as I peered through the iron gate I saw Miss Pat come out of the house and turn into the garden. I came upon her walking slowly with her hands clasped behind her. She spoke first, as though to avoid any expression of sympathy, putting out her hand.

Filmy lace at the wrists gave to her hands a quaint touch akin to that imparted by the cap on her white head. I was struck afresh by the background that seemed always to be sketched in for her, and just now, beyond the bright garden, it was a candle-lighted garret, with trunks of old letters tied in dim ribbons, and lavender scented chests of Valenciennes and silks in forgotten patterns.

"I am well, quite well, Larry!"

"I am glad! I wished to be sure!"

"Do not trouble about me. I am glad of everything that has happened—glad and relieved. And I am grateful to you."

"I have served you ill enough. I stumbled in the dark much of the time. I wanted to spare you, Miss Pat."

"I know that; and you tried to save Helen. She was blind and misguided. She had believed in her father and the last blow crushed her. Everything looks dark to her. She refuses to come over this morning; she thinks she can not face her uncle, her cousin or you again."

"But she must come," I said. "It will be easier to-day than at any later time. There's Gillespie, calling me now. He's going across the lake to meet Arthur and Rosalind. I shall take the launch over to the island to bring Henry. We should all be back at Glenarm in an hour. Please tell Helen that we must have her, that no one should stay away."

Miss Pat looked at me oddly, and her fingers touched a stalk of hollyhock beside her as her eyes rested on mine.

"Larry," she said, "do not be sorry for Helen if pity is all you have for her."

I laughed and seized her hands.

"Miss Pat, I could not feel pity for any one so skilled with the sword as she! It would be gratuitous! She put up a splendid fight, and it's to her credit that she stood by her father and resented my interference, as she had every right to to. She was not really against you, Miss Pat; it merely happened that you were in the way when she struck at me with the foil, don't you see?"

"Not just that way, Larry,"—and she continued to gaze at me with a sweet distress in her eyes; then, "Rosalind is very different," she added.

"I have observed it! The ways in which they are utterly unlike are remarkable; but I mustn't keep Gillespie waiting. Good-by for a little while!" And some foreboding told me that sorrow had not yet done with her.

Gillsepie shouted impatiently as I ran toward him at the boathouse.

"It's the Stiletto," he called, pointing to where the sloop lay, midway of the lake. "She's in a bad way."

"The storm blew her out," I suggested, but the sight of the boat, listing badly, as though water-logged, struck me ominously.

"We'd better pick her up," he said; and he was already dropping one of the canoes into the water. We paddled swiftly toward the sloop. The lake was still fretful from the storm's lashing, but the sky was without fleck of flaw. The earliest of the little steamers was crossing from the village, her whistle echoing and reechoing round the lake.

"The sloop's about done for," said Gillespie over his shoulder; and we drove our blades deeper. The Stiletto was floating stern-on and rolling logily, but retaining still, I thought something of the sinister air that she had worn on her strange business through those summer days.

"She went to bed all right; see, her sails are furled snug and everything's in shape. The storm drove her over here," said Gillespie. "She's struck something, or somebody's smashed her."

It seemed impossible that the storm unassisted had blown her from Battle Orchard across Lake Annandale; but we were now close upon her and seeking for means of getting aboard.

"She's a bit sloppy," observed Gillespie, as we swung round and caught hold. The water gurgled drunkenly in the cuddy, and a broken lantern rattled on the deck. I held fast as he climbed over, sending me off a little as he jumped aboard, and I was working back again with the paddle when he cried out in alarm.

As I came alongside he came back to help me, and when he bent over to catch the painter I saw that his face was white.

"We might have known it," he said. "It's the last and worst that could happen."

Face down across the cuddy lay the body of Henry Holbrook. His water-soaked clothing was torn as though in a fierce struggle. A knife thrust in the side told the story; he had crawled to the cuddy roof to get away from the water and had died there.

"It was the Italian," said Gillespie. "They must have had a row last night after we left them, and it came to this. He chopped a hole in the Stiletto and set her adrift to sink."

I looked about for the steamer, which was backing away from the pier at Port Annandale, and signaled her with my handkerchief. And when I faced Gillespie again he pointed silently toward the lower lake, where a canoe rode the bright water.

Rosalind and her father were on their way from Red Gate to Glenarm. Two blades flashed in the sun as the canoe came toward us. Gillespie's lips quivered and he tried to speak as he pointed to them; and then we both turned silently toward St. Agatha's, where the chapel tower rose above the green wood.

"Stay and do what is to be done," I said. "I will find Helen and tell her."

TWO HUNDRED CANARIES RELEASED IN PATTI'S HONOR.

"It was at Madrid," says Adelina Patti in the June Strand, "at the close of a gala night, that, to my astonishment, 200 beautiful canaries were at a signal released and fluttered toward me. Each was adorned with a colored bow at its throat, and made a wondrously beautiful spectacle. I managed to capture two of those charming little songsters and press them to my lips. This was not all of my tiumph. The Duke of Alba presented me from his box with a beautiful wreath, while the Countess Montijo, the Empress Eugenie's mother, threw me an exquisite bouquet, and the members of the Jockey Club launched on the stage twelve laurel wreaths made of velvet and satin leaves with golden berries. So, you see, I had no reason to complain of my reception in Madrid. I have had, perhaps, more tumultuous receptions elsewhere, but never, I think, any which touched me more."

Frederick Barnes, found guilty of embezzlement, was Thursday sentenced by Judge Starr in the Gloucester county court to pay a fine of $150 and costs.

PSYCHOLOGY AS A FIRST AID.

When you've dropped a collar-button and it's rolled beneath the bed,
Just as jokesmiths, through the years,
 have told about,
Do not waste your choicest language—
 simply cause your mind to shed
A psychologic wave that rolls it out.

When you've stepped on a banana, and have lost both straying feet,
Do not think disgrace you're surely going to quaff;
Grab a psychologic lever, do a "giant drop-off" neat,
And you'll give the waiting mob the merry laugh.

When you've reached your home at even,
 with your arms quite full of toys,
And you catch your youngest son's suspicious eye,
Cast psychology upon him, in his tense,
 expectant poise,
And he'll never think to ask you how and why.

You can use it on the pitcher of a rival baseball team—
It works in football matches, so they say;
But as yet it's not perfected—or, at least,
 so it would seem—
So 'twill bring to one a needed boost in pay!

Getting the News.

"What do you mean by delivering my Sunday paper at this hour of the day? Why, it's most noon!" shouted the irate householder.

"But, boss, de're so heavy—"

"Then get a wagon. If you can't bring it around before noon, I'll find some one who can. When it comes as late as this, I don't any more than get the advertising pages sorted out and carted away before the Monday morning edition comes."—Judge.

Not for Her!

"With one wave of my wand," says the fairy, "I can make you grow young again."

"Excuse me," replied the woman, "if I decline your kind offer. If you can bring youth to me at my present age, all right; but I positively refuse to travel through pyrography, the first stages of bridge, the habit back, the straight front, balloon sleeves and all the rest of the fads I can remember."—Life.

Not Certain.

"Are you permanently settled now?" asked the farmer of a friend who had made many moves.

"I don't know," said the westerner; "you know I'm living in the cyclone belt."—Yonkers Statesman.

The Billionaire's Resolution.

 He murmured with a frown,
"I'll stick to my financial pace
 And try to live it down!"

Paradox.

Her—Why on earth do they call him the paying teller?

Him—Because that's his job.

Her—But it isn't. I asked him how much you had in the bank, and please to give it to me, and he wouldn't tell and he wouldn't pay.—Cleveland Leader.

Questioning Grandma.

"Grandma," inquired her little grandson, the day of her arrival, "did you sleep on your face last night?"

"Of course not, dear; why do you ask that?"

"'Cause it's all wrinkled."—Judge.

Method.

"Funny things, this—a big mirror in your meat market."

"Oh, I don't know. Some of my customers haven't had time to notice the scales since I hung up the mirror."—Cleveland Leader.

So It Seems.

Lecturer—To-day the men are living much faster than the women.

Man (in audience)—That's right. Twenty years ago, when I got married, my wife was five years the older; now she's five years the younger.

VILLAGE NINE DEFEATED BY THE P. H. S. FRESHMEN.

The South Plainfield Juniors were defeated yesterday afternoon on Crescent Oval by the P. H. S. Freshmen, the final score being 8 to 4. The game was well played, being full of sensational fielding on both sides. Each team contributed two errors. The Freshmen batted Teeple for five hits, one a scratch, while the Juniors appeared to be a trifle off their usual gait, making only four hits off Nelson.

Ricketts, Ulher and Wodhull did the best work in the field for the Freshmen and Joseph and John Miller starred for the Juniors.

Freshmen, Burdick, c.; Nelson, p.; Ricketts, 2b.; Wodhull, 3b.; Zerega, s.s.; Hanrahan, l.f.; Ulher, c.f.; Widowson and Dunwell, r.f., and Tittsworth, 1b.

Borough Firemen Resigns.

The formal resignation of Callman John McCullough, of the North Plainfield fire department, was presented at the special meeting of the borough Council last night, and accepted with regret. Mayor Samuel Townsend took occasion to speak of the conscientious work of the ex-fireman during the period of his employ by the borough. McCullough has gone to Chicago, where he will engage in the automobile business. The vacancy caused by his resignation has been filled by the appointment of Percy Culver, who is now "on the job."

Fine Bill at Proctor's.

"The Mechanical Soldier and the Maid," together with the amusing sketch, "Teasing," Chester & Chester, comedy jugglers and Gertrude Black, singing comedienne, present a strong bill at Proctor's theatre, today. It is one of the best ever offered.

BURGLARS AT FANWOOD ARE LANDED IN JAIL

Smashing the windows of the Central railroad news-stand at Fanwood, three tramps ransacked the place last night, and carried away cigars, cigarettes, tobacco and candy to the value of $20. Caught near Roselle by Railroad Detective Deegan and Marshal Logan, of Fanwood, the men were brought before Recorder Sheelen, of Fanwood, today, and held without bail to await the action of the grand jury. They are now in jail at Elizabeth.

The three prisoners, who were "caught with the goods," gave their names as Frank Anderson, of Chicago; Frank Miller, of New York city and Joseph Dahlen, of Jersey City. All are powerfully built, and look like typical "hoboes." Aside from smashing the windows, the thieves wrenched open the door, and, making rough packages of the loot, boarded an east-bound freight train. The burglary was discovered shortly afterwards by Marshal Logan, who notified Detective Deegan. The train was held up near Roselle by the police and the three robbers were nabbed. The three were armed with two revolvers and pocket knives.

HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS HOLD ANNUAL DANCE.

The annual dance given by the juniors to the seniors of the Borough High School at Town Hall last night was the largest and most successful yet given by any class from "over the Brook." The dance hall was decorated with high school colors. The dance program consisted of eighteen numbers. Between the first and second parts of the program a repast was served in the large dining hall.

The "Paul Jones dance" which took place at the opening of the second part of the program was led by Lester Powlison and Miss Helen Fowler. There were thirty couples present.

Netted $25 For Missions.

About $25 was netted by a strawberry and ice cream festival held last night in the parlors of the Congregational church under the auspices of the Girls' Mission Club of the church. The money will be added to a fund to provide a scholarship for a girl in Albuquerque, New Mexico. The affair was held indoors, because of threatening showers, and the church parlors were tastefully decorated with blue and white crepe paper. The tables were decorated with blue, the club color, and bore vases of flowers. The seventeen members of the club acted as waitresses. Miss Ethel McIntosh was head of the committee in charge of the affair.

Luncheon for Miss Waring.

Miss Charlotte Finch, of Park avenue, gave a delightful luncheon for Miss Eleanor Waring at the Watchung Hunt Club, Thursday afternoon, covers being laid for eighteen. Miss Waring will be married Monday afternoon to J. Hartley Mellick. The ceremony will take place at Grace church at 4 o'clock.

Cliff Randolph, the Clinton avenue pitcher, will be in the box for his old teammates who play Bound Brook, this afternoon.

CHARTER DAY REVENUE

Invitations are being sent out by the citizens' committee to prominent executive officials all over the State, who are invited to attend the parade on the opening day and the public exercises in the city park in the afternoon Governor Fort, the United States senators, the State senators and assemblymen from Union, Somerset and Middlesex counties, together with other prominent men of the State and counties have been asked to be the city's guests for the opening day of the celebration, and arrangements have been completed for an elaborate luncheon to be served the guests in the City Council chambers after the big parade has been reviewed. Mayor Fisk and Mayor Townsend, as joint chairmen of the citizens' committee, will act as hosts, and will be assisted in receiving and welcoming the city's guests by members of the various committees.

Negotiations are under way with a New York firm to construct the court of honor, which will be on West Eighth street, between Park and Madison avenues, and to construct the arches to be erected by the decorating committee in various parts of the city. Various valuable suggestions and some plans have been submitted for the arches and the court of honor.

INSPECTED SITES FOR INTER-STATE BRIDGES.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk and State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman were among the guests of Governor J. Franklin Fort, of New Jersey, and Governor Charles E. Hughes, of New York, on board the steam yacht "Privateer" on the occasion of the inspection by the executive heads of the two States of the four sites for the proposed bridge to connect the two States.

While Governor Hughes was not wholly won over to the plan, he showed much interest and asked many questions about the proposed improvement. Governor Fort spoke with enthusiasm on the project, which will involve an expenditure of from twelve to twenty-one millions of dollars.

Tom Muir's Testimonial.

The principals of the benefit minstrel show for "Tom" Muir rehearsed with the chorus of 150 at the New Plainfield theatre last night, and won their first applause from the big chorus, grouped on the stage. The songs by W. F. Tallamy and William Holmes made especial hits, although the entire musical program was creditably presented.

DRAKE COLLEGE PUPILS CONDUCT THE CARNIVAL

The Drake Business College pupils had full charge of the Knights of Columbus Carnival last night and the 150 wearers of the "blue and gold" catered to the largest crowd of the week. The pupils left the school on Front street and marched up to the grounds. All along the route they gave their college yell. Upon arriving they were assigned to the different booths and attractions.

Much interest is being shown in the scholarship contest, there being three to be given by the Drake School, and one by Mt. Saint Mary's College.

INTERNATIONAL SESSION OF THE ENDEAVORERS

The bi-annual international Christian Endeavor convention will be held this year at St. Paul, Minn., July 7-12. The endeavorers of Union county are planning to send as their delegates Miss Nellie K. Foote, the district secretary of Union county.

Several new features will be introduced this year, among them an exposition of civic, moral and religious progress, which will include a discussion of tuberculosis and a conference on Esperanto, the world language invented by Dr. Zamenhoff, of Russia.

Among the speakers will be Wm. Phillips Hall, the business man evangelist, John T. Sproull, N. J. State president of C. E., and Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., L. L. D., president of the United Society of C. E., and the World's C. E. Union.

Local endeavorers who cannot attend the St. Paul convention will have an opportunity to hear these prominent speakers at the State convention to be held here in October. Dr. Clark will speak in Plainfield on the third day of the convention, October 7. He will then sail for Europe and will attend the World's convention at Agra, India, in November.

It is probable that S. D. Gordon will conduct the "quiet hour" service at the State convention and that Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, of Brooklyn, and Professor Chas. R. Erdman, of Princeton University will be among the speakers.

IT WAS CHILDREN'S DAY

And Appropriate Exercises Were Held in Protestant Churches.

SOME HAD SPECIAL FEATURES.

Songs, Recitations and Addresses—Edifices Were Appropriately Decorated.

Children's Day exercises were held in these churches yesterday:

First Presbyterian.

Children's Day was celebrated yesterday in the First Presbyterian church with an elaborate program of carols and recitations. The edifice was filled with the parents and friends of the pupils. The church was tastefully decorated for the occasion and canaries, hung at three points of the gallery-front, added their thrills and cadences to the singing of the children.

A pretty innovation was introduced at the offertory—seven young girls, each escorting two younger children and carrying baskets of roses, passed up the aisles stopping at each pew, where the litle flower girls entered and bestowed a rose on every occupant. During this quaint ceremony Walter G. Barker, of New York, sang a tenor solo with much feeling and expression.

The exercises opened with an organ and piano prelude, Miss Clara Van Fleet presiding at the piano, following which the pupils marched in singing the processional, "The new Crusaders." The exercises of the primary department followed in which Gertrude Mellick and eleven other little girls and boys recited.

After the offeratory the older scholars rendered the following program:—Recitation, Benjamin Kriney; recitation, Helen Ayres, Dorothy Dickerson and Eleanor Searing; recitation, Mildred Boyle; carol, "The Children's King," by the school; recitation, "Never Mind," Elston Hoagland; recitation, "What a Little Maid Can Do," Aramenta Ayres and Gertrude McClintock; recitation, "The Recruiting Station," LeRoy Taynor.

Le Roy H. Gates then gave an interesting history of the Sunday-school, which was followed by the presentation of diplomas to scholars promoted from the primary department to the main school. A short address by Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring brought the exercises to a close.

MRS. THOS. M. PFAFF DIES IN 72ND YEAR

Mrs. Thomas M. Pfaff, Sr., of Scotch Plains, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles E. Grant, 701 West Front street, this city, yesterday morning. Mrs. Pfaff had been ill for several months with a complication of diseases, which owing to her advanced age, being 71 years old, the best of medical skill could not overcome. Several weeks ago she was removed to the home of her daughter in the hope that the change would be beneficial. It was for a time, but then she rapidly grew worse.

Mrs. Pfaff was a resident of Scotch Plains for a great many years her husband having been engaged in the hotel business there and later in real estate, being a pioneer in the business. Mr. Pfaff was the daughter of the late Robert H. Radford of Plainfield. She was beloved by all who knew her and had a large circle of friends.

Besides a husband she is survived by two children, Thomas Pfaff, Jr., of Scotch Plains, and Mrs. Charles E. Grant, of this city. The funeral will be held from the home of the daughter tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. The burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

FIRE CAPTAIN FIERING PROVES HIMSELF A HERO.

Dashing to the head of the galloping bay horse attached to a milk-wagon belonging to W. R. Wooden, of Watchung avenue, Captain George Fiering, of Engine Co. No. 1, made a sensational stop of the runaway as it dashed past the fire-house yesterday morning. The fireman was dragged nearly 100 feet before the frightened horse slackened its pace, and sustained painful bruises about the legs and body. In the milk-wagon was eight-year-old Edward Wooden, the milkman's son, who pulled bravely on the reins but could not control the frightened animal.

The horse took fright at an automobile on Park avenue while Mr. Wooden was delivering milk nearby, and dashed westward on Second street. The horse was uninjured and the wagon was not damaged.

Approaching Wedding.

Mrs. Luella E Decker, of 823 West Third street, has issued invitations to the marriage of her daughter, Miss Ada Frances Decker, and Arthur B. Fritts, of this city. The ceremony will take place at the home of the bride's mother, Wednesday night, June 23, at 8 o'clock.

TO "PLAY HOOKEY" WILL COST THE PARENTS $10

Told by City Judge Runyon that any further reports of absence from school of her two daughters would result in a ten-dollar fine, Mrs. George Brown, solored, declared in court today that Violet and Victoria, her two children, would be regularly sent to the halls of learning hereafter, and added that she would cooperate with City Judge Runyon and Miss Adelaide Ball in the enforcement of the law. This statement is set in type because in this special case it is real news. Mrs. Brown, according to Miss Ball, is the woman who, a short time ago, declared that the State had no right to pass a truancy law, and that City Judge Runyon had no right to enforce it, even though it was on the statute books.

Mrs. Brown has put up lots of excuses for the intemittent attendance of the girls, who have been sadly deprived of the opportunity for mental improvement. At one time, they had the measles, and have been frequently supplied with shoes and wearing apparel by the city, at the request of the mother. Mrs. Brown is a "Saint of God," and a haitus in the children's attendance was caused recently because the whole family had to go to Philadelphia to celebrate the "Passover." The "Passover" must have been celebrated on foot, because when Violet and Victoria got home, there was another petition for shoes, the mother declaring that they had worn out their material soles on the pavements of the "Sleepy City" during the religious celebration. This morning was Mrs. Brown's third appearance in court, and she is on record as saying that it will be the last.

Surprise Party.

A surprise party was given for Miss Gussie Armond, of Pleasent Plains, on Saturday evening. Present were Miss Maze Donovan, Miss Anna Gray, of New York city; Miss Emma Wersing, Miss Martha Wersing, Miss Mary Armond, Miss Mable Deady, Miss Lizzie Cooney, Miss Jennie Thomas, Mrs. James Scott, Miss Jennie Ord, Mrs. Henry Romand, Mrs. Eugene Wheeler, Jack Hopewell, William Barnes, New York, Chas. James, Geo. Hoffner, Perth Amboy; Samuel Jordan, Wm. Jordan, Geo. Slorch, James Scott, Eugene Wheeler, Herbert Utzinger, Henry Romand, Henry Armond.

SORG GOT EIGHT BLUES

J. W. Harriman Second in Winnings at Annual Horse Show.

MISS BEDFORD RECEIVED FOUR.

Miss Hooley and Mrs. H. Reeve Stockton Also Received a Blue. Sixth Exhibition of the Club a Success.

The closing session of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club's horse show was something long to be remembered, primarily because it was the most successful show in every way ever held by the club, and secondly, because of the splendid attendance, including as it did all the noted horsemen and horsewomen in this part of the country. To give a list of the society people present one would have to print the social register almost in its entirety.

Mayor Fisk added to the enthusiasm aroused by the keen competition in class 5, by driving the winning pair, "Snap Shot" and "Rifle," owned by Geo. Watson, around the ring accompanied with the cheers and applause of the crowd.

Paul A. Sorg headed the list of winners for the meet having eight blues and seven reds to his credit. J. W. Harriman came next with seven blues. The other winners of blue ribbons follow: Miss Emily H. Bedford (4), Miss Mabel B. Hooley (1), Mrs. H. S. Bowen (1), Mrs. Sophie D. Gummey (2), Miss Bernice Holloway (1), Mrs. H. Reeve Stockton (1), E. C. Rich (2), George Watson (1), Tonzo Sauvage (1), John T. Spratley (1), Brook Farm, Richard Delafield, (2), Grand View Farm, R. P. McGrann, (2), Andrew Morison (2), Clarence E. Sherin (2), Sidney Holloway (2), Joseph Larocque (2), Rufus Patterson (1), Hugh Gormley (1), Chas. Holloway (1), and Somerset Farm (1).

Some lively sport characterized the showing of class 12 for single harness horses with runabouts, in which several speedly brushes aroused the enthusiasm of the spectators. Although Tonzo Sauvage's "Grand Duke" outstepped the other entries in the brushes he had to be content with a red to "Lord Nelson" a stable mate.

The principal events of the day were the competitions for the club's challenge cup and the champions in saddle and harness horses, the Watchung Hunt Club's cup and the Fire Department horses. The grounds and stands were filled to overflowing and it was estimated that 3,000 people were in attendance, and as was stated on Friday every seat in the stands had been sold hours before the opening of the gates on that day, hence many who wanted grand stand chairs were disappointed.

One near-accident caused a little apprehension. J. W. Harriman's "Nala" while competing in the championship harness class, almost ran into the fence near the gate owing to a slipped bit, but was caught before doing any damage, and finally won the championship ribbon. Mr. Harriman also won a leg on the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club challenge cup in class 24 and the championship ribbon in class 25, both with "Lady Dilham," getting three blues for the day.

Paul A. Sorg aggregated unto himself four blue ribbons taking classes 18, 15, 9 and 21, in the last named winning from George H. Watson, his only competitor, in the Four-in-hand class. Mr. Sorg also carried away two reds, two yellows and one white ribbon.

Miss Emily H. Bedford won two blues and was second with "Miss Ann" in the challenge cup, this latter result being the surprise of the day.

In class 52 for local saddle horses Joseph Larocque's "Somerset" won the blue with Mr. Fleischman's "Royalist" second. In this event Jesse M. Eddy's "Costly" got the white ribbon and was heartily cheered, having been entered in several other classes without receiving an award.

Among the hunters Clarence E. Sherin's "Interpreter" continued in his successful career by winning with ease a leg on the Watchung Hunt Club cup. This horse has made a name for himself during this show. On Thursday he won the blue in the hunters and jumpers open class and on Friday repeated in the ladies' hunters class ridden by Mrs. Belle Beach-Bain. He is one of the neatest jumpers and negotiates the hedge and bars beautifully without urging.

The Fire Department entries which were the last to be shown were Chemical No. 1, Lieut. Daly, and Combination wagon No. 3, Lieut. Townley. The prize offered in this

FISHER'S AUTOMOBILE SMASHES THINGS UP

Demolishing the mail box in front of Silbert's jewelry store on West Front street, smashing the plate glass windows in the barber shop of Caruso & Co. and dragging a heavy stepping stone out into the street as it skidded off, a big automobile owned and driven by H. M. Fisher, of Syracuse avenue, was badly damaged when it skidded out of the trolley tracks yesterday afternoon at about 4 o'clock. Mr. Fisher, who stuck to the wheel, was uninjured.

The accident happened when the motorist, who was driving east on West Front street, tried to turn out of the trolley tracks. The rails at that point are the so-called T-rails, and when the car was finally free, it became uncontrollable, and crashed up the curb and through the store window. The mail-box in its path was completely wrecked. The force of the impact jammed the front part of the machine in the panels below the window, and the big car, slewing off into the gutter again, dragged with it the stone horse-block.

A big crowd of Sunday afternoon pedestrians quickly gathered, and Patrolman Nolan assisted in clearing away the wreckage. The fender and lamps of the automobile were smashed, and the damage will amount to about $50.

PYTHIANS DECORATE PATTERSON'S GRAVE

Crescent Company, No. 13, Uniformed Rank, K. of P., accompanied by Perseverance and Unity Lodges, went to Port Chester, N. Y., yesterday and took part in the Memorial exercises of the Port Chester lodge at Union cemetery, Rye. Harvey Patterson, former chancellor commander, who was killed in the Westfield wreck several years ago, was not forgotten and his grave was decorated with the others.

Port Chester Lodge, No. 43, and the uniformed company from Rahway, will be in Plainfield next Sunday to participate in the memorial services of Crescent company.

The services yesterday were conducted by the team from Crescent Company and sixty-eight graves were decorated. The exercises were watched by a large crowd which accompanied the Knights to and from the cemetery. On August 27 the Crescents go to Somerville to take part in the district memorial services at which all the uniformed and subordinate lodges in the district will be represented.

The regular meeting of Crescent Lodge will take place tomorrow night.

POLICE CHIEF ATTENDS SLEUTH'S CONVENTION

Chief of Police Patrick S. Kiely turned over the powers of chief police executive to Captain Christian Frederickson at police headquarters this morning and left for Buffalo, where he will spend the week at the convention of the International Association of Police Chiefs. Mr. Kiely carried with him in a suit-case a roll of bills, represented the $100 voted him for expenses by the Common Council at its June meeting, and a pad and pencil, so that he can take notes for his report, to be made to the City Fathers upon his return.

The Chief will go to Buffalo by way of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, and will be one of a party of seventeen police heads from Elizabeth, Newark, Jersey City and other cities and towns where supreme police power and membership in the association are one and the same thing. The convention will hold daily sessions beginning tomorrow and lasting through Friday.

MISS WARING'S WEDDING

Two Distinguished Families Connected by Her Marriage to Mr. Mellick.

SOCIETY SEES THE CEREMONY.

Among the Costly Gifts Is a Stock Exchange Seat for the Groom. Couple Prominent in Local Social Affairs.

Miss Elinor Griffith Waring, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orville T. Waring, of Park avenue, and J. Hartley Mellick, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Mellick, of East Seventh street, were married at Grace church this afternoon. Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector, officiated. The ceremony was witnessed by a large and fashionable gathering of society people from New York, Brooklyn, Newark, the Oranges, Plainfield and distant points. It was a yellow and white wedding, the edifice being decorated with white peonies, white and yellow daisies, palms and flowers.

The bride's gown was of white Irish lace over white chiffon cloth, and she wore a veil of tulle. She carried an ivory bound prayer-book, which was carried before by her sisters at their wedding. Lilies-of-the-valley were used for a marker.

Miss Helen W. Timpson was the maid-of-honor and she was gowned in white chiffon cloth, trimmed with silver, and she carried yellow daisies and wore a large black hat of tulle. The bridesmaids, Miss Margaret Lowe and Miss Pauline Bolton, of New York; Miss Leslie Gordon, of Rochester, N. Y.; Miss Edith Mellick, Miss Florence Stuart and Miss Annie Grey Fisk, of this city, wore gowns of white embroidered mull, carried yellow flowers and wore large black hats with black streamers. Miss Louise F. Waring, niece of the bride, was the flower girl. She was dressed in all white and carried a large bouquet of white daisies.

The best man was Gordon W. Abbott, and the ushers were John B. Payne and Louis M. Ream, of New York; Harvey Fisk, Edward J. Waring, Jose L. Tweedy and Lawrence L. Tweedy, of this city. The best man and ushers were attired in blue sack coat suits, instead of the conventional black.

S. Frederick Smith presided at the organ and he rendered a classical program including selections from Loehengrin, "Tristan and Isolde," "Sherzo," by Hoyt; "St. Francis d'Assise La Predation Aux Oiseaux," Liszt. As the bridal party entered the church he played the Wedding March from Lohengrin and as it retired the Wedding March from Mendelssohn.

Following the ceremony a very informal reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, which was attended by about 100 guests. Later the bride and groom left for a two weeks' honeymoon at Hot Springs, Va. Upon their return they will spend the summer at the home of the bride's parents and in the fall will establish a home of their own here.

The bride received a wealth of wedding gifts from relatives and friends, including everything that one might wish for. In the exchange of gifts among the members of the briday party, the bride received a saphire and diamond circle pin from the groom, while the latter received a gold cigarette case from the bride. The maid-of-honor received a topaz bracelet from the bride, the bridesmaids received gold spangled fans, while the flower girl was given a bracelet. The best man and ushers were given gold cuff buttons.

Among the costly gifts was a seat on the New York Stock Exchange presented to the groom by his father. For this reason he will not take an extended trip at this time.

Mr. and Mrs. Mellick are popular in the younger society set and have been prominent in the numerous social functions in this city. They are members of the Plainfield Country Club, while Mr. Mellick is also a members of the Watchung Hunt Club and the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club.

HEAR EXCISE DEFENDANT

Judge Cross Reserves Decision on Siegel-Cooper Application.

ASK FOR AN INJUNCTION.

New York Department Store Wants Legal Order to Restrain Local Authorities.

Whether or not the Seigel-Cooper Company, of New York, has the right to retail liquor in Plainfield without a city license or State permit will be decided upon an argument made today before Judge Cross in the United States Circuit Court, Trenton. The argument was on a petition of the company for a preliminary injunction to restrain the complainants from interferring with deliveries of whiskey and other liquors in Plainfield. After hearing the argument, Judge Cross reserved decision.

Edward Coleman, a driver for the Seigel-Cooper Company, was arrested here and is now out on bail, charged with a violation of the State liquor law. He is one of many defendants.

In its argument before Judge Cross today, the company through its counsel, claimed that it has a property right in the delivery of liquor in this city, and that this right exists is due to csonstitutional privileges. The Sate was represented at the hearing by County Prosecutor C. Addison Swift and his assistant, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr.

Since the State action against the New York deparment stores, prohibiting them from delivery liquor in Plainfield, it is known that they have suffered heavily from loss of revenue. That the proprietors would fight the interference on the part of the State became known at the original hearing before Judge William N. Runyon, when counsel appeared in behalf of the arrested drivers. They now seek to restrain the authorities from alleged interference until the matter can be argued in the highest courts.

E-M-F for 1910.

Andrew C. Thompson has just closed a large contract for the Studebaker E-M-F cars, together with the entire Studebaker line for 1910.

The Studebaker Company takes over the entire control of the E-M-F factory September 1, and the 1910 E-M-F cars will have all the refinements and beauty that may be expected for a Studebaker production.

Although the net factory cost of producing the 1910 E-M-F cars will be $250 greater per car than the 1909 cars, the Studebaker Company have just announced that the price will remain $1,250 instead of $1,500 as was originally intended, this price is made possible by the enormous quantity and by eliminating the State agents and their profits, and dealing direct with retail dealers on a small margin.

Mr. Thompson has already booked orders for 1910 E-M-F cars, deliveries of which will commence September 1, 1909. ***

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

A heavy engine left its base at the printing office of John Bohm, at Millville, and tore away a hard oak partition, badly damaging the building.

Found critically ill at the Edgewater Park Railroad Station, Walter Lynch, an inmate of the Soldiers' Home at Hampton, Va., was removed to the county hospital at New Lisbon.

James Oakes, a Gloucester City tinsmith, yesterday fell from the roof of a new house on Bergen street, sustaining injuries which necessitated his removal to Cooper Hospital.

Harry M. Evans, 2641 Caril street, Philadelphia, employed at the American Ice Company's plant, Camden, was burned about the face and body and injured internally Friday by the explosion of an ammonia tank. He was taken to the Cooper Hospital.

Two Toms River lawyers have been retained by property owners to bring suit against the Pennsylvania Railroad for damages occasioned by forest fires May 30, 31 and June 1.

Struck in the eye with a nail which he was driving into a board two years ago, Charles Leak, an Atlantic City boatbuilder, paid slight attention to the wound. Saturday he was rushed to the City Hospital, where the optic was removed.

Joseph Pilson, who conducts a printing establishment in Jersey City and employs non-union men, consulted the police Saturday when he received a note which read: "Last Notice: If you don't shut down your rat shop, will blow it up with dynamite." There have been five mysterious fires in Pilson's shop during the last two years.

His order for liquid refreshments being unfavorably considered on the ground that he already had overtaxed his capacity, John Smith, a sailor from Boston, Saturday bombarded the drink-mixer and patrons of a saloon in Market street, Camden, with deviled crabs, forcibly taken from a vender whom he had met on the street. One of the crabs hit the cash register with sufficient force to ring up a $5 sale. Policeman Kolden interfered and when the man from Boston regained his senses, he was being patched up at Cooper Hospital. By direction of Recorder Stackhouse his liberty will be curtained for thirty days.

STATE'S DRUGGISTS CONCLUDE BUSINESS.

The New Jersey Pharmaceutical Association concluded its annual convention with a vaudeville entertainment Friday night at Mt. Arlington. The attendance yesterday was about 200 persons. The election of officers took place Friday and the early hours of the afternoon were given over to their installation and to speechmaking.

The officers elected were as follows: President, George M. Andrews, of Woodstown; first vice president, Thomas S. Armstrong, of Plainfield; second vice president, Henry Schmitt, of Elizabeth; secretary, Frank C. Stutzlin, of Elizabeth, re-elected; treasurer, James C. Fields, of Plainfield; executive committee, Thomas S. Armstrong, of Plainfield; George H. Whipple, E. R. Sparks, E. H. Ziegler, Charles W. Holzhauer, the latter of Newark.

The nominating committee by an oversight placed in nomination for the legislative committee the name of Edward B. Jones, who is the retiring member of the board of pharmacy. At the session Friday afternoon the constitution was amended so as to prohibit a retiring member of the board of pharmacy from being chairman of the legislative committee. Jones' name was placed in just the position the amendment was intended to correct. A lively discussion ensued, but to remedy the oversight Mr. Jones withdrew.

Harry W. Crooks, secretary of the arrangements committee, reported that after all bills had been paid for the meeting there was a balance on hand of $171.50, something unprecedented in the history of the organization.

The board of pharmacy met Thursday night and reorganized for the year by electing George H. White, president; H. A. Jordan, secretary, and David Strauss, treasurer.

Mr. Strauss recently was appointed by Governor Fort to be a member of the State board of pharmacy.

H. K. Dumont, of Prospect place, the borough, has returned from a business trip to Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy S. Brown, of Sycamore avenue, are spending the summer at Bradley Beach.

Mrs. Gilbert VanNest, of Whitewood avenue, the borough, goes to Ocean Grove this week for the summer.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. William H. Hughes, of Mechanicsville, N. Y., are visiting their son, George Hughes, of Watchung.

NO TRADING STAMPS, BUT MORE FOR YOUR MONEY.

MISTRESS OF MANY TRADES.

Apart from managing the affairs of her home, the ordinary woman has little time to minister to the peculiar demands of a genius, says The Home Magazine. It is only the excepted few—like the wives of Hawthorne and of Jonathan Edwards—who can be home-keeper, financier (where strictest economy must be used), child-trainer, and, at the same time, soother and inspirer of a sensitive, impractical, easily depressed husband.

The middle class house-mother has many different lines to keep in hand. She is mistress of many trades. She is cook, housemaid, dressmaker, milliner, doctor and often teacher, judge and minister, for she hears the children's lessons, adjusts their quarrels and preaches them sermonettes upon the evil of selfishness and hickerin,. She is ruler of a miniature world, the details of which seem small, but are necessary to the harmony of the whole.

That she may engineer this complicated machinery effectively, a woman needs a better equipment than she generally gets. When a break occurs, it usually comes through the lack of knowledge of the very things that should have been taught her; the laws of health and the principles of true economy. She imagines that she is the most saving creature alive, and all the while she is spending extravantly—spending time and strength in work that is not really necessary—in elaborate cooking, cleaning and sewing that could be simplified.

She spends in unneeded details that little leisure time which should be given to her children, making them happy by her companionship—and to herself in walks, reading and social recreation. And she needs, particularly when she lives in the country—more aid in carrying on her work—the labor-saving contrivances and conveniences which modern ingenuity has praduced.

Joseph Anderson, of the borough, spent Sunday at Scranton, Pa.

William Dorflinger, of South Second street, spent Sunday at Reading, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Emery, of West Third street, have removed to Rock avenue.

James W. Milligan, of Brooklyn, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Bodin, of Watchung.

Clarence Hand, of Fairview avenue, is among the '09 graduates at Cornell University.

L. B. Woolston, of Fairview avenue, has about recovered from an attack of rheumatism.

The flower girls were: Margaret Russell, Pauline Gates, Bernice McClintock, Ada Woodward, Henrietta Englehart, Natalie Selby and Marion Wean.

Park Avenue Baptist.

At the Park Avenue Baptist church the day was also observed as "Children's Day" and the exercises were in charge of Superintendent George E. Hall beginning with a selection by the Sunday-school orchestra under the direction of Arthur Mosher. This was followed by a carol, sung by the choir. Scripture and prayer by the pastor, Rev A. E. Finn, and another carol by the choir. Then followed the program in which the children participated. Recitation, "What makes the Summer?" Emily Van Winkle, Lolita Weeks, Lena Woodworth and Gladys Hadley.

A carol by the choir was followed by a song by the primary department "Happy are the Meadows." Recitation "If I Knew," Master William Finn, carol, choir. recitation "Messages from Summerland," Sarah Johnson, Ada Dayton, Olive George and Gladys Hadley, carol, choir, song, Lullaby, primary department, carol, choir, adress, Miss Alice B. Hamlin; carol, choir, offertory, violin solo, Arthur Mosher; carol, choir, benediction by the pastor and final selection by the orchestra.

The feature of the program was the address by Miss Hamlin, now the Elementary Superintendent of the N. J. Sunday-school Association. She is a most pleasing speaker and knows just how to talk to children, who gave the closest attention to her story of how the Bible was carried into the State of Oregon.

Today being Flag Day, an immense flag was raised almost to the ceiling at a given signal as the audience rose and sang two stanzas of "America.". The Sunday-school orchestra accompanied all the carols in addition to their special numbers, and the violin solo by Mr. Mosher was particularly pleasing.

The offering is to be given to the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp toward this summer's work. The church was beautifully decorated with daisies under the direction of Mrs. Chas. Van Winkle, chairman of the Flower and Decorating Committee. Ten canaries, hung about the room added their music to the other singing on the program adding joy to the occasion.

The Children's Day Committee consisted of Geo. E. Hall, Miss Cora Brokaw, Miss Elmira Runyon, Mrs. W. S. Lowrey, Miss Mary Clark and Miss Florence Hawkins.

Grace M. E.

Children's Day exercises were held at Grace M. E. church yesterday morning, the congregation filled both auditorium and gallery to their utmost capacity. During the service two children were baptized. The Children's Day exercises consisted of a regular program especially prepared for the occasion. There were carols by the whole school and a feature was the offertory by Miss Bertha vanNuis Willis, soprano, of the church choir.

The service at the church last night was for young people, and Dr. Anderson preached a special sermon on this occasion which was listened to with a great deal of interest.

Trinity Reformed.

The services in Trinity Reformed church were splendidly conducted and were a credit to the children who took part. The church was handsomely decorated, the pulpit being a mass of daisies, roses and palms, tastefully arranged by the following committee from the Christian Endeavor Society: Miss Lucie Coriell, Miss Koller, Mrs. Rosenstiehl, Miss Hockridge and Messrs. Seader and Kriney.

The primary and junior departments marched into the church singing "Onward, Christian Soldiers," the leaders of each division proudly bearing large American flags. The main school and Bible classes were seated in the body of the church, adding their voices to the triumphant hymn.

The graduates were Russel Tomlinson, Allan Moganson, Margaret Rice, Kate Barrett and Grace Mundy, and each received a New Testament with the diplomas certifying the completion of the Sunday-school course in the primary department. They answered in unison catechism questions asked by Rev. C. L. Goodrich, the pastor.

The Children's Day exercises were held in connection with the morning service at the church, and special seats were reserved for the Sunday school pupils, numbering about 150. Rev. C. L. Goodrich preached a special sermon appropriate for the occasion. His topic was "Doves" and he had a stuffed dove on the pulpit before him as he talked. He told of the qualities of the bird and its mention repeatedly in the Bible, citing instances from both the Old and the New Testament. The order of service included a song by the children and special vocal and instrumental music. The decorations were elaborate, daisies and ferns being used in perfusion, with red peonies and roses.

Following the service there was a short session of the Sunday-school, in connection with which Robert Suffern, who has recently returned from an African tour, told of his experiences, and showed various curiosities from the land of the black people.

Mr. Howard preached a sermon on "Christian Teaching of Children." A feature was a solo, "Not Ashamed of Christ," by Miss Eunice Eckert.

There was an address of welcome by Elmer French; responsive reading by the junior department; song, "The First Children's Day," primary department; recitation, "This Welcome Day," Anna Sherwin. BUTTERICK PATTERNS and THE DELINEATOR

THE NEW AUTO COUCH.

Here is a couch that is bound to supersede all others—a couch by day and a bed by night. It can be changed from one to the other in a second, and a little child can easily open and close it without danger. THE AUTO COUCH is operated from the front, has only one motion, swings at a touch, and doesn't scrape or scratch floor or carpet. It is just high enough to make a comfortable seat—the sliding couches have always been too low, you know, and this couch doesn't necessitate the use of a couch cover, as all other patent couches do.

The illustration shows the couch in action. The framework is made of steel angles and tubing; it has a woven wire bottom of National fabric, full helical ends, and all parts of the framework neatly bronzed. Upholstered in green denim, $12.50; and Bagdad stripes for $14.50. The Auto Couch is sold exclusively in this city by us.

The Wise Squirrel

It was on a beautiful sunny day in April, of this year, that a cunning gray squirrel with a long bushy tail and large erect ears, came cautiously up to where I sat on the porch, and took from my hand a nice big English Walnut, cracked it and swallowed the meats. Two more nuts he ate in like manner, and the fourth, a butternut, he carried to his burrow natural bank, (a hole in the ground near a tree) and left it as a "Savings Deposit."

One-fourth of his "gettings" the wise squirrel saved. He is promised no interest on his deposit, and yet he is wiser than the man, woman, boy or girl who is allowed interest but who is not putting away something every week in the

PORT-AU-PECK on the Shrewsbury. You don't know what you are missing in not taking the beautiful trip to Port-au-Peck with us. From our property you get a magnificent view of the ocean, the Shrewsbury and the green hills bordering the famous Rumson road. For the horseman, the motorist and the trolleyite the situation is ideal. South through Long Branch (immediately adjoining Port-au-Peck), West End, Hollywood, Elberon, Deal Beach and on to Asbury Park, returning inland through the residential districts. North through Monmouth Beach, Galilee, Low Moor to Seabright, thence across the Shrewsbury river, over the Rumson road, returning by Little Silver over the seven bridges to Port-au-Peck. Our proposition is a pure and simple summer proposition. We sell you a six-room and bath bungalow, including a plot 50 by 150 feet, for $2,100. There are others that are larger on larger plots that cost a trifle more. In the six-room bungalow you have on the first floor a reception room with massive open fireplace, dining-room, kitchen and bedroom. On the second floor there are two bed-rooms and bath. The kitchen and bath-room fixtures are a credit to a ten thousand dollar house. The houses are supplied with water from deep driven artesian wells, absolutely pure, electric lights, telephones, in fact every convenience you have today. We are building for the benefit of the lot-holders a large clubhouse, with bowling alleys, billiard rooms, tennis courts and boat landing. Our restrictions are rigid. We are planning a home colony and we are going to have it. There are thirty bungalows now under construction and they are selling fast. Convenient terms of payment can be arranged. THE CORRECT FORM

MME. MERRI'S ADVICE ON ENTERTAINMENT AND ETIQUETTE.

Suggestion for Evening Entertainment —Silver Wedding Invitation— Proper Way to Acknowledge a Wedding Gift.

I have no servant, but I wish to entertain eight or ten friends. May I serve light refreshments, and should I seat them at the table and use a cloth? Please suggest something easy and appropriate to serve. M. P. B.

Your having no servant need not debar you from entertaining in an up-to-date manner. You may use a cloth on your table or plate doilies and centerpiece. I should have the guests sit around the table if I served only ice cream and cake with bonbons and little cups of coffee. You can have a salad with sandwiches precede the cake, putting two olives and a spoonful of salted nuts on each plate.

Silver Wedding Invitation.

What is the proper form and script for an invitation to a silver wedding? E. J. M.

It all depends upon the character of the celebration how the invitation should be worded; the engraved should be in silver, any style of lettering preferred.

Script is always good form. Old English or block letters are fads of the day. An up-to-date stationer will send you samples on request.

Acknowledging Gifts.

Would like to know the correct form for a note of thanks in acknowledgment of wedding presents received. MRS. J. B. S.

"My Dear Mrs. Blank: Mr. Jones and I wish to thank you for the beautiful (mention name of gift) which you so thoughtfully sent us when we were married. It is just what we wanted and we hope to have the pleasure of showing you how attractive it looks in our home. Yours cordially, "MARY BROWN SMITH."

Time to Stay at a Reception.

I received a card reading: "Miss Blank, at home, April 12, 1909. From four to six o'clock." Do you think this is to be a reception or a card party, and am I to stay the full two hours? GRACE L. J.

This invitation plainly is for a reception. If for cards they would have been specified. You are only expected to remain long enough to say a few pleasant words to your hostess and those you know, have refreshments and make your adieus or not as depends upon how busily engaged the hostess is when you take your departure. Forty minutes is a good long time to remain.

Reception Etiquette.

When two neighbors entertain at an afternoon reception, is it necessary to call on both of them within two weeks? Also, if I do not attend their "at home," what should I do to acknowledge the invitation? If I send cards, to whom should they be addressed? Would it be proper to mail them? A. D.

An after call should be paid to both hostesses. If you do not attend inclose two of your visiting cards in an envelope addressed to the hostess at whose home the reception is held. These cards should arrive the afternoon of the affair, either by post or messenger.

MADAME MERRI.

In this way the clothes are protected from dampness and at the same time the bristles do not get musty from lack of ventilation.

Just how to carry a wet tooth brush has bothered many a girl. There are many attractive cases for this purposes, both in silver and cut glass, but not all girls can afford to own one of them.

A good substitute can be found in a wide-mouthed, round bottle such as can be bought for a few cents at any druggist's. Tie a wash ribbon tightly around the neck of the bottle so as to leave two long ends. When the tooth brush is inserted these ends are fastened around the handle to prevent it slipping out.

Children's Clothes Hangers.

Every mother may not know that there are tiny little hangers for children's slips and top coats which are sold at the shops at small prices and are a comfort and convenience to have in the house.

Children can be taught to put each garment over one, suspend it in the closet and keep a garment in good condition and in proper shape.

Colored Cotton Crepe.

Since white cotton crepe for blouses has so taken the popular fancy, the dyers have got hold of it, and it is now offered for sale in gray, black, violet, two shades of blue, and peach pink.

WHAT HE WANTED.

"But," said the manager of the musical comedy company, addressing the young man who had been called in to brighten up the place a bit, "it ought to be easy enough for you to throw in a joke here and there and add a little comedy to the songs. I can't see why you should want much for it."

"You see, it's going to be a good deal of a task. Jokes and comedy can't be tossed off without serious thought. One has to work up new situations. If it were possible to use mother-in-law jokes and those old gage about the Chicago girl's feet it would be easy enough. Those things are, however, so—"

"There! You've struck a lead already, you see. That's just the kind of stuff I want. Go ahead. You can finish up the job in an evening."

"I thought you wanted real humor."

"Well, ain't that real humor? It's what makes all the musical comedies go, all right. Get busy, and if you do a good job I'll give you $15."—S. E. Kiser, in Chicago Record-Herald.

His Dilemma.

He knew she was a jewel—
A rare one of the earth;
But he could not ascertain
The jewel's actual worth.
—Chicago Daily News.

FLATTERY AND THE SALESLADY.

The Shopgirl—This is the very latest. We are selling a great number this spring. They are very becoming to young and pretty girls. One would suit you lovely, madam.

The Customer—Yes, I think it would. I'll take two.

Revelation.

The truth that "figures never lie"
I never dared assert,
Until I saw Babette go by
Clad in her new sheath skirt.

But now I know, I must confess,
My feeling can't be hid,
That when it comes to women's dress
'Twere better if they did.
—Judge.

Force of Habit.

"The trouble with the American people is that they are too restless. They are never satisfied unless they are getting on the cars to go somewhere."

"I know it. My wife has become so used to traveling about that when she goes to bed at night she always calls in the chambermaid and assures her that she will not be able to sleep a wink unless she can have a lower berth."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Light on Economy.

"You always want to try to do all your reading in the daytime," said the stern teacher of physiology, addressing the class. "Sunlight is much better than any artificial light. Can any one of you tell me why?"

"Yes, ma'am," said Edwin. "It's a good deal cheaper."—Judge.

The Crank.

"You say," observed Muggins, "there is nearly always something broke about your motor?"

"Yes," answered Chuggins, nervously.

"What is it, as a rule?"

"Me."

The Simple Life.

Passer-by—Look here, you are the man who struck me for a sixpence three days ago!

Beggar—Yes, sir; but do me best, I can't keep me expenses any lower than twopence a day.

Up to Date.

She—What's that curious looking charm you are wearing on your watch chain?

He—That is our new coat-of-arms—chauffeur rampant, policeman couchant, justice of the peace expectant.

Easily Arranged.

The calcium was out of order.

"I can't do my best without a glare," averred the star.

"I can manage that," responded the impresario. "I'll station one of the other prima donnas in the wings."

The Witness' Objection.

Judge—Swear that witness!

Witness—Now, judge, I came down here to do my duty in a peaceable manner, and I don't want to be cussed by anybody!—Judge.

A Sameness Noticeable.

Patience—I see it is said that the United States has the greatest variety of postage stamps.

Patrice—And yet they all seem to taste the same.—Yonkers Statesman.

It is.

"My boy, be polite and honest."

"But, dad."

"Say on."

"Sometimes it's pretty hard to be both at the same time."

The Man From Home

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

This romance deals with a curious admixture of American plainness and European high life; with a young Indiana girl dazzled by a title and in the clutches of a quartet of sharpers headed by an impecunious British peer; with the girl's Anglomaniac brother, a Russian noble in disguise, an escaped Russian convict and a faithless wife, and, most important of all, with the girl's shrewd, witty, courageous, resourceful guardian, Daniel Voorhees Pike of Kokomo. Daniel loves the Indiana girl and is determined to save her from the sharpers even against her own will. Read and you will learn how Daniel, with but a single friend to aid him, faced a most difficult dilemma and why he figured so prominently in an international romance in which heraldry was more important than hearts and cupidity far more conspicuous than Cupid.

CHAPTER I.

"IT'S A GIRL!"

HIS feet on the desk of the office in the Central Bank building, the gaunt young man with the stern features and the kindly gray eyes that always seemed a perpetual rebuke to the face in which they were set ruminated over the letter he held in his hand. His back was to the door—a half glass door which was also the main and only entrance to the room and which bore upon its translucent surface in ragged letters, worn by the polishing the glass had undergone, the words, "Daniel Voorhees Pike, Attorney at Law."

Pike himself had a queer twist of feature, a sort of whimsicality that pervaded the very atmosphere about him, and the smile with which he regarded the letter he held had a world of reminiscence and sadness in it.

As he gazed at it the letter seemed to fade into nothingness, and in its place there rose the picture of a day years before, a day that caused the dingy walls of the office to become tenuous and gauzy, and through the gauze he seemed to see another office—a ramshackle sort of place, with a tin sign showing through the window which informed the passerby that real estate was the commodity dispensed within. To Pike the picture grew yet more distinct, and in the broken bottom cane chair he saw the figure of a heavy faced man in his shirt sleeves engaged in smoking a corncob pipe.

In another corner of the room he could see a red headed boy poring over a pine table, laboriously copying in a round hand some title deeds. Then, through the reaches of the past, he seemed to hear the heavy faced man remove the pipe from his mouth and heard him speak.

"Dan," he said, "it's a girl!"

And he heard the gasp the boy gave forth as he turned about on his stool and looked with startled eyes into the kindly blue ones that glimmered into his own.

"Show her to Dan."

"A—girl!" he seemed to hear the boy say. "A little girl, Mr. Simpson?"

In his fancy he saw the big man nod, saw him place the pipe back in his teeth and extend his two palms until they were a foot or so apart.

"A girl, Dan," he heard, "'bout so long, Dan, and purtier than all get out. An' she's goin' to be a big responsibility, my boy. We'll have to sell a heap of lots to pay what she's goin' to cost, Dan—a whole heap of lots."

And gradually the picture seemed to fade away, and, like a dissolving view, its place was taken by another—the picture of a half timbered house that stood back among some trees at the corner of Main and Center streets. He could see the worn steps leading up to the veranda and himself approaching half fearfully along the gravel walk that led in from the rusty gate.

On the veranda sat the big man with the heavy features and the corncob pipe, and he heard the voice again bidding him come up. And then there was a call to some one within, and a woman emerged with a white bundle in her arms.

"Show her to Dan," he heard the man's voice say, and then, when the woman had removed a bit of the flannel covering from the little face and he had looked upon it, startled, abashed and marvelously choking as to the throat, the big voice went on again:

"She's going to be Ethel, Dan, that bundle of infancy. And maybe some of these days she'll be getting herself in a tight place, and it's going to be up to you, Dan, to help her out, and you're going to promise me that you'll do it, boy. Horace, the other kid, he'll grow up maybe to have sense, and he'll look out for himself, but it's a tough place for girls, Dan—a mighty tough place."

He could almost hear the hushed voice in which the boy had given the required promise and the awe with which he heard that the newest atom of humanity to arrive was already motherless, and then the picture faded again. Then came a succession of similar views.

He saw the dingy real estate office grow into a respectable brick building, and then into a handsome stone edifice, and the heavy featured man turn grayer and grayer and more somber and more hardworking, and he could remember the day when the tiny Ethel was brought to the office for the first time and of the manner in which she began to grow up. He recalled the day when she reached the mature age of twelve and of how he had presented to her a Bible for a gift and of the manner in which he had blushed for all his twenty-five years.

And then he recalled the day when John Simpson had confided to him that the "kids" were to be given advantages and were to be sent abroad to school. There came a blank after that, but he recalled as if it had been but yesterday the feeling with which he had gone off into a corner and wrestled with the grief that had beset him. He could even see the fluttering hand that waved to him from the car window as the train took her and her brother away.

Suddenly the door behind him opened and shut quickly, and quick steps caused him to drop his feet to the floor. He turned and found a visitor at his elbow.

"Dan," said the newcomer, "it's all yours. Jenkins just got a telegram that the K. and G. has decided to offer you the representation for this end of the state."

"Law case?" asked Perkins suddenly.

"Sort of," answered Pike quietly. "I don't know that I'd call it just that. Perhaps the trip would be a change anyway. And I'd like to see this man Hawcastle."

"Where does this Hawcastle live?" asked Perkins.

"England. Got a house he calls Hawcastle Hall."

"What about the K. and G.?" asked Perkins suddenly.

"I guess the K. and G. will have to wait awhile."

Perkins stood up resolutely and faced his friend.

"There's something wrong with you, Dan," he said emphatically. "There's something mighty wrong. It ain't like you to go running off this way unless there's something behind it."

He stopped, for Pike was whistling softly to himself, whistling like the man who is striving to recall some tune that is only half forgotten. Then he turned to Perkins.

"Remember that old tune, Tom," he asked—"'Sweet Genevieve?'"

"Get out!" snapped Perkins. "That's a million years old. Why don't you keep up to date if you're going in for music? What do you care about 'Sweet Genevieve,' anyway?"

"I used to know somebody that sang it—once—long ago," said Pike quietly. "I used to hear John Simpson whistle it years before he died and left all that money to me for those two kids. Tom"—he turned suddenly and transfixed his friend with an accusatory finger—"what would you think of a guardian that doesn't guard?"

Perkins regarded him rebelliously.

"Depends on whose guardian he is."

"That so?" responded Pike aimlessly.

"Of course it's so, man!" replied the other, shaking him vigorously by the shoulder. "Wake up, can't you? It's worth fifteen thousand a year to you!"

Pike turned quizzical eyes upon his friend and folded the letter he held in his hand.

"Much obliged to you, Tom," he said. "I guess I'm kind of upset today. Got a letter here that—jolted me a little. I'm thinking of going away for a spell."

"SHE'S GOING TO MARRY THE HON. ALMERIC ST. AUBYN."

"Going away!" ejaculated his friend with wide eyes. "Going away! Where?"

"I guess I'll take a trip across the water," replied Pike dreamily. "Always wanted to see those foreign parts, those Venices and Romes and Londons. Must be a queer tribe over there, Tom. Not much like us plain folks here, eh? Lots of high and mighty dukes and earls and things and coats of arms and crowns and coaches with white horses, eh?"

Tom Perkins sat down in a chair with a gasp of astonishment. He stared at his friend with frank amazement written on his face and opened his mouth twice before his lips formed the words.

"Europe!" he said at last.

"Europe," he replied. "Say, Tom, you remember Jim Cooley? They sent Jim over there, didn't they? Made him vice consul or something over in London? I'd maybe get a chance to see Jim and talk to him about—about old times."

His voice died down, and he regarded the wall again.

"Never happened to hear of folks over there of the name of—of Hawcastle, did you, Tom?" he went on. "I don't know what sort of business they are in, but I guess they're well to do. Never happened to hear of them, eh?"

Perkins shook his head, and Pike went on:

"Maybe I'll write to Jim Cooley and ask him about these people. Jim 'd be likely to know 'em, I guess. Vice consul must be a pretty big bug over there."

While the Newark team proved easy victors before O'Laughlin, the playing of Frances at third base was most noteworthy. It has been a long time since Plainfield fans have seen the third corner covered better and his work brought forth many cheers from the fans. The score:

"CUT" SCHOOL SINCE EASTER; HER MOTHER PAID $5 FINE.

Because Annie Folconero, an Italian, has only been to school a single half-day since the Easter vacation in April, the punishment of the law fell heavily upon her mother at city court this morning, when City Judge Runyon imposed a fine of $5 for the girl's truancy. Miss Adelaide Ball, the attendance supervisor of the city schools, was in court with a record of the girl's case.

It apepars that Annie, who is fourteen years old, has learned enough of the English language, in the second grade of St. Mary's school, where she is a pupil, to be of inestimable value in her mother's store, situated on Cottage place, and has been kept home to act as clerk. When the fine was imposed, the Italian mother rebelled at its payment, and it was only after she was told through an interpreter that her daughter would be held a prisoner until settlement was made, that she counted out the money.

DOG SHOW TO BE GREAT

More Than 1,000 Blue-Blood Canines to Be Exhibited Saturday.

PROCEEDS FOR LOCAL CHARITY

Many Costly Animals to Be Shown —La Vere's Band to Enliven the Occasion.

Over 1,050 entries have been received by the Plainfield Kennel Club for its bench show to be held on Saturday at the horse show grounds. There will be dogs shown representing breeders from all parts of the country and from the way demands are coming in for tickets it is very evident the grounds will be crowded with enthusiastic dog lovers and it will certainly be a sight worth seeing for those who are not familiar with every known breed of dog for they will all be there from the two and a half pound Toy Terrier to the massive Great Dane.

The local breeders have their dogs all entered. Edmund L. Mackenzie's native Scottish Deerhounds alone are worth seeing and are recognized as one of the most noble breeds. Among others will be A. Clinton Wilmerding's field type of Cocker Spaniels, the attractive little worker which makes the sportsmans hunting trip a pleasure, as also does Abram G. Hooley's English Setters. R. W. K. and D. C. Anderson with their kennel of graceful Russian Wolfhounds. The Walescott Kennels with their Scottish Terriers, the rugged little Badger fighters which are death on rats and cats. The Watchung Hunt Club will exhibit its entire pack of English and American Fox Hounds. Many other local entries have been made including various breeds.

From present reports it is expected that the dog show will have a very large attendance including Governor Fort and others.

E. M. Oldham, of New York, will be the professional superintendent and with his force of assistants will take entire charge of receiving dogs Saturday morning and putting them in their respective places. The gate will be open for dogs Saturday morning until 9.30. Judging will start at 10 o'clock sharp, so all those who have local entries must be on the grounds before that hour in order to take proper care of their dogs. LeVere's Band will play all the afternoon and luncheon may be obtained on the grounds.

It will undoubtedly interest all dog lovers to know that the Plainfield Kennel Club's entries for their first annual open air show break all records as no other club of this sort has ever reached the 850 mark for their first annual show.

TO SEND A WAYWARD YOUTH TO REFORMATORY

Geroge Suydam, "the Borough Bad Boy," was arrested by the city police early this morning, when Patrolman Andrew Saffron found him loitering in Voehl's alley at about 2 o'clock. With Suydam, who is fifteen years old, was his little brother, aged ten. At the city court today, George told Judge Runyon that he was on his way home, and said that he had been playing "hide and seek" with some West End boys until after midnight.

The future looks black for George, because Mayor Samuel Townsend, Borough Recorder Dolliver and Superintendent Henry C. Krebs, of the North Plainfield schools, have had him on probation since he "skipped" town to avoid punishment with a party of his playmates last week. Suydam went to New York and was arrested there for vagrancy, being turned over to the North Plainfield police by the New York probation officer. At his hearing, sentence was suspended by Recorder Dolliver, but the Recorder with Mayor Townsend and Mr. Krebs had a session with the boy's parents, who live on Harrison street, and father and mother were told that the next time George got into trouble, steps would be taken for his commitment to the reformatory.

Mr. Krebs said this morning that Suydam, who is enrolled as a pupil at the Watchung school, is very dilatory in his attendance and added that he would bring a charge of incorrigibility against him to the borough authorities. It is probable that he will be remanded to Judge Schenck at Somerville and sent to the Jamesburg reformatory.

Grocer's Horse Ran Away.

Left by its driver, Nicholas Guot, in front of the grocery store, a horse hitched to a delivery wagon belonging to S. S. Scheuer organized a runaway yesterday afternoon at about 6 o'clock and tore down West Front street. The frightened animal collided with a light runabout owned by George H. Kenyon, of West Fourth street, which was tied in front of Hadley's piano rooms. The light rig was completely overturned and its horse took fright, but being tied, was easily quieted by pedestrians. Scheuer's horse boxed itself in the traffic and stopped without injury to itself for damage to the wagon. Mr. Kenyon's runabout was badly scratched and the dashboard was bent.

CITY ACCEPTS THE PARK

Seventy Acres to Be Deeded for Public's Use by Local Syndicate.

TO CHANGE THE WARD LINES.

New Election Districts for Second Ward—H. M. Stockton a Special "Cop."

The Common Council at its adjourned meeting, last night, adopted the resolution favoring the proposition for a public park, as offered by the Plainfield Park Association after a minor amendment offered by Mr. Mygatt and agreed to by the other members. The association has agreed to deed free 70 acres to the city for park purposes, provided the city will open up and maintain Albert street. Although three-fourths of this street will be in the borough, the proposition is favored, it being understood that the borough will stand its proportionate expense for opening and improving the new street. The resolution farther provides that arrangements must be made with the adjoining property-owners in the opening up of the street, and that before the property is finally accepted by the city, the whole transaction must be passed upon by Corporation Counsel Marsh.

Mr. Holt called up the ordinance to amend an ordinance dividing the city into wards, which changes the dividing line from the main tracks of the New Jersey Central to the centre line of the right of way. The ordinance was adopted on second reading and ordered advertised. Mr. Holt also called up the ordinance to amend an ordinance to readjust the election districts, providing for a third district in the Second ward, as previously published. This was adopted on second reading and ordered advertised.

The Mutual Land Improvement Company petitioned the council for a culvert on the westerly side of Berkeley avenue and Dixie Lane, and this was referred to the street committee.

A communication was received from E. M. French regarding the action of the council in the Raymond avenue matter and he requested that it be held in abeyance until he could present additional information.

Upon the request of Jacob Blimm, Sr., who has sold his hotel business on Somerset street, to his son, Jacob Blimm, Jr., the council transferred the liquor license upon motion of Mr. Clay from the license committee. Jacob Blimm, Sr., has retired from the business entirely.

Mayor Charles Joel Fisk appointed Harry M. Stockton and Dr. W.

FINAL REHEARSALS FOR "TOM" MUIR BENEFIT

The next to the last rehearsal of the triple half-hundred chorus for the benefit minstrel show for "Tom" Muir will be held at the Elks' lodge room tonight at 8 o'clock. The big chorus will get together for the last informal rehearsal tomorrow night at 9 o'clock and on Thursday will be on the stage for the dress rehearsal, preceding the performances Friday and Saturday nights. The rehearsals will be under the direction of City Judge Runyon.

The double quartet and the eight end-men held a successful rehearsal last night and have their numbers "down fine." The music for the most part is catchy minstrel stuff, but there are several selections where the double quartet have made the most of the possibilities for "close harmony" in the part singing. The end-men have some clever dances which will surely make the palms beat as the singers patter around while the black-faced 150 sing the crescendo choruses.

Tickets for the two performances are selling steadily, but there is still a choice of good seats. Even those who are not in the show, but who have been at some of the rehearsals, say that the ticket-holders will get "value received, pressed down and running over." Buy your tickets now, or you may only come in on the "running over" part.

MR. NASH'S MEMORY HELPS NAB A THIEF

Owing to the fact that Harry W. Nash, of 138 De Lacey avenue, has a good memory for faces and feminine figures, Miss Eleanor Beattie, a confidence woman, is now under arrest in London, being held on charges of grand larceny preferred against her by the New York police.

Mr. Nash's identification was made from a pencil sketch of the woman made by a clerk in the Gorham Company's store in New York while she was making purchases under the name of a friend, who had a charge account with the firm.

Mr. Nash is a ticket clerk on the Cunard line pier and when the sketch was shown him he recognized it as that of a woman who had sailed on May 22 on board the Carmania under the name of "Miss Bruce Blake." The Pinkertons immediately cabled to their London agents who boarded the Carmania at Queenstown and prevailed upon the woman to give herself up.

WEST END'S BAD BOY HURT DUCKING JUSTICE

Because he believed he was "in bad" with the school authorities and was also wanted to appear in police court for stealing flowers and destroying shrubbery in the West End, Edward Hamilton, twelve years old, who lives on Bergen street, "ducked justice" by taking a freight train tour. He is at his home today with his head badly cut and his left leg useless. He fell off the cars.

Hamilton went to Jersey City by freight in safety. From there he started for Hampton Junction, but in getting off the train at the latter place, he fell and tore his left knee on a railroad tie. He rolled over on his head and the stone ballast inflicted a painful scalp wound. The Plainfielder "came to himself" after he had wiped off some blood, and decided that all the cops in the world were nothing to being slung off a freight train. Accordingly he got on a homeward-bound string and reported at his home considerably the worse for his trip.

Dr. Peter Cregar was summoned on the boy's return home last night, and he took three stitches in the boy's knee, also spending considerable time patching up his head. When Hamilton recovers, he will have to deal with the truant officer and with the city police.

West St. Bridge Opened.

New York, June 15.—The big steel bridge spanning West Street, at Liberty street, giving overhead connection with the second floor of the new Liberty Street Terminal of the New Jersey Central Railroad, was thrown open to the public early this morning, as were the upstairs waiting rooms and ticket offices. While the ground floor of the new station has been in use for several weeks, passengers in both directions now have direct communication between the east side of West street and the upper decks of the ferryboats. Several thousand persons crossed by the new way during the day.

RECEIVE A GIFT OF $2,500.

Governors Also Accept Hegeman Memorial—To Manage Tuberculosis Camp.

Officers were elected, reports presented, and other important business was transacted at the annual meeting of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, last night.

William C. Kinney.

These officers were chosen for the year:

President, William C. Kinney; vice-presidents, Edward H. Ladd, Jr., and Louis K. Hyde; secretary, Howard W. Beebe; treasurer, Julius E. Errickson.

The new laundry and power buildings erected by W. J. R. Hegeman and B. A. Hegeman, Jr., as a memorial to Mrs. Catherine Hegeman, was formally turned over to the hospital board and the gift was accepted with thanks. It will be known as the "Hegeman Memorial."

The board also received $2,500 from the Misses Marjorie Walbridge and Eleanor Ryckman Taylor, daughters of the late Paul Taylor Brown, for the ear, eye, nose and throat department under the direction of Dr. F. C. Ard.

It was decided to hold no more fairs, kirmesses or other forms of public entertainment, and in consequence it will be necessary to urge an increase in the annual donations and contributions to the institution. The past year was closed free of debt. At the beginning of the year there was a surplus of $2,500, which is now exhausted.

At the request of the Anti-Tuberculosis League, the hospital board voted to assume the management of a tuberculosis camp this summer and fall, the league agreeing to provide all the necessary funds for the purpose. The location of the camp has not yet been chosen.

The medical board reported for May as follows: Numeer of patients remaining at date of last report 46, admitted 69, total number treated 115, discharged cured 52, improved 12, not improved 5, died 4, remaining 42, hospital days 1,262, operations 83. RAINEYS IN LIMELIGHT

Detective and Wife Tried to Leave Without Paying Board Bill.

CONSTABLE SEIZES BAGGAGE.

Rainey, Who Also Figured in Gun-Pulling Affair, Got Away—Left Wife Behind.

Detective C. A. Rainey and his wife, who have been boarding with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schanz, of East Front street, for the past eight months, attempted to get out of the city yesterday neglecting to pay a bill of $25, which Mrs. Schanz claimed for board and her services as a nurse. As soon as Mrs. Schanz learned that the couple was preparing to leave town she hurried to the District court, where she secured a writ of attachment from Justice of the Peace Hezekiah Hand.

Accompanied by Mr. Hand, Mrs. Schanz went to the North Avenue station, where the Raineys goods were found in the baggage-room. Mrs. Schanz picked out a trunk and valise, which she declared were the property of her former boarders, and Sergeant Hand promptly attached them. While he was doing this, Detective Rainey and his family put in an appearance and he demanded to know what it all meant. He denounced Sergeant Hand, yanked the notices off the attached baggage, threatened to have Mr. Hand arrested and concluded, Mr. Hand alleges, by saying that he would drag his baggage over the latter's dead body before he left town.

All this happened about 12:30 o'clock, and it was the intention of the Raineys to leave here on the 12:42 train for Newark, their former home. During the few minutes intervening Detective Rainey hurried to police headquarters where he sought the services of Patrolman Nolan. Returning with the policeman the latter questioned Sergeant Hand as to the trouble. The matter was explained just as the train came into the station, and Rainey quickly got aboard, leaving his wife and baby on the station platform to face the music.

Sergeant Hand then took the goods to John Manley's storage rooms on Park avenue. In the meantime Mrs. Rainey tried to effect a settlement with Mrs. Schanz by offering her $15. Sergeant Hand advised Mrs. Schanz to accept the amount, which she did and the woman and her baby returned to the railroad station to take a train for Newark.

Detective Rainey is the man who was employed by the city to obtain evidence against "speak-easies" and department store drivers who were delivering liquor here. Only a few weeks ago Detective Rainey figured in another escapade at the Hotel Kensington, where, it is said, he drew a revolver on two men, whom he placed under arrest on a charge of stealing bicycles. The men were afterward discharged. He is said to belong to the Cosgrove Detective Agency in Newark.

ST. MARY'S T. A. B. TO ENLARGE THEIR HALL.

At the regular monthly meeting of St. Mary's T. A. B. Association last night the question was brought up about making some improvements to the hall and, on motion by the proper officials, the question of painting the hall, fixing up the floor and putting things into first-class condition, was finally passed and approved. Some of the members were in favor of building a new hall, but on account of the condition of the treasury, this question was laid over for another year.

The Echo Social Club will be the last club to occupy the hall in its present conditions, and immediately after their dance, which is to be held Friday night, June 25th, the hall will undergo repairs. The Echo Social Club is an auxiliary of the St. Mary's T. A. B. Association and tickets may be had by applying to any member of St. Mary's T. A. B. Association. Music to be furnished by Prof. Heinemeyer, of Elizabeth.

Undermuslins

Made Just as You'd Make Them at Home.

The June Sale Is a Bargain Event. Given the nicest, finest fabrics, and the prettiest, choicest kinds of laces and embroideries, designs in the most exquisite taste, neddleworkers and operators of the highest class, isn't it reasonable to suppose that the makers could and would produce the highest grade undergarments it is possible to turn out?

Isn't it equally likely that with our buying power—second to none in the world—we would and could buy at the lowest prices quoted to any concern? Isn't it just as reasonable to believe that, with our ability to sell such large quantities, we could and would sell at lower prices that equal grade garments could be sold for elsewhere?

With these suggestions in mind, come to this June Sale of Undermuslins full of expectation, ready to take advantage of this event to stock up for the Summer season.

HE SAYS HE HAD TO SHOOT HIS FATHER

William Gray, the real estate broker, who shot and killed his father, John Gray, 60 years old, at their home near Kingwood Sunday afternoon, yesterday morning gave himself up to the Hunterdon county authorities. He was locked up, and, Prosecutor Large says, will be charged with murder. Gray is 31 years old.

In a statement to Prosecutor George K. Large yesterday afternoon Gray claims he shot his father in self-defense. According to Gray's statement there was a violent quarrel at the Gray home Sunday in which it is claimed the father threatened to kill the prisoner and his mother.

It is also said that Gray and his mother had decided to leave home, and Mrs. Gray walked down the lane, and the prisoner went to the barn to hitch up his horse. Gray asserts the father began stoning him, one of the missiles grazing his face. Gray shot twice, one of the bullets entering near the shoulder, killing his father instantly.

Gray picked up his father's body and carried it into the house. He notified a physician and also Coroner Patrick Cane. Gray requested of the coroner the privilege of remaining with his mother during the night, agreeing to surrender yesterday morning. Coroner Cane deemed an inquest unnecessary.

TUTTLE AND CONNOLLY TO ADDRESS DEMOCRATS

All Democrats interested in the welfare of their party are invited to attend a public meeting at the Exempt Firemen's rooms in the Coward building, No. 109 Park avenue, tomorrow night when steps will be taken to effect an organization. H. W. Marshall and other prominent party workers have taken the initiative and expect that all who believe in Jefferson principles and supremacy will be present.

After a permanent organization is effected a smoker will be held at which impromptu speeches are expected from all who attend.

MISS ALICE MAUGER J. A. MORRISON'S BRIDE.

Miss Alice Mauger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Mauger, of West Seventh street, and Joseph A. Morrison, of Flushing, L. I., were married quietly Saturday night at the home of the bride's parents, George A. Aldrich, of Easton, Pa., a member of the Brethren, officiating.

Miss Alice Morrison, sister of the groom, and Miss Ruth Mauger, sister of the bride, were the bridesmaids. The bride was gowned in white satin and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses. The bridesmaids were gowned in white batiste and carried bouquets of sweet pease. A reception followed the ceremony, after which the couple departed on a wedding trip. They will reside at Flushing, where the groom is employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad as a civil engineer.

BUTTERICK PATTERNS and THE DELINEATOR

THE NEW AUTO COUCH.

Here is a couch that is bound to supersede all others—a couch by day and a bed by night. It can be changed from one to the other in a second, and a little child can easily open and close it without danger. THE AUTO COUCH is operated from the front, has only one motion, swings at a touch, and doesn't scrape or scratch floor or carpet. It is just high enough to make a comfortable seat—the sliding couches have always been too low, you know, and this couch doesn't necessitate the use of a couch cover, as all other patent couches do.

The illustration shows the couch in action. The framework is made of steel angles and tubing; it has a woven wire bottom of National fabric, full helical ends, and all parts of the framework neatly bronzed. Upholstered in green denim, $12.50; and Bagdad stripes for $14.50. The Auto Couch is sold exclusively in this city by us.

PEDESTRIAN "DRUNK" WORRIES 'PLAINS FOLK

A moral wave swept over Scotch Plains yesterday morning, which for a time created more excitement than the old historic town has had in a number of years.

About 10 o'clock an out-of-town drunk, claiming to have walked from Chicago, and to be on his way to his home on Staten Island, wandered up Park avenue. When he reached the head of town his sea legs gave way and he dropped in the lane between the postoffice and Frick's butcher shop. The butcher did not relish the free advertising and so helped the drunk out on the street.

Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, who was passing, picked the fellow up and marched him down to Hetrick's hotel and told the bartender that here was something the law allowed him to make drunk and it was his business to take care of him and not turn him out on the street to annoy people. The hotel man pleaded not guilty to the charge and a warm argument followed.

The man wandered out on the street again and sought a resting place in the gutter near Mr. Mathiew's house. The minister sought the aid of Township Comimtteeman H. C. Meyer to have the man taken care of. While the argument was in full swing a well-known young man made a suggestion but was soon eliminated when he was told that he was worse than the drunk and if he did not go home and get some clothes on he would be taken care of. The young man at the time was sporting about, it is said, in a bathing suit. He was soon among the missing which left nothing to be disposed of but the drunk.

It was finally decided to take him to a nearby stable and let his sleep the jag off. The crowd then gradually dispersed to carry the news of the exciting time to the family circle.

From beginners' to primary department: Gladys Ardern, Eleanor Carl, Harry Chamberlain, Florence Cox, William Douglass, Bertha Laird, Elsie Leighs, William Robbins, Edith Roseberry, Miriam Whyte, Jessie Ross, Clarence Walters, Edith Walls. FUNERAL OF INVENTOR WILL BE HELD HERE

The funeral service of John S. Campbell, D. D. S., aged 74 years, formerly of London, will be held from the residence of his brother, William S. Campbell, 512 West Front street, tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss will officiate. Mr. Campbell was a resident here many years ago. He was ill less than a week, the result of too close application to work, which caused brain trouble and then an affection of the kidneys. He was in an unconscious condition when he passed away. Mr. Campbell was visiting in Plainfield on Sunday, June 6.

Mr. Campbell was an inventor of considerable note and prior to his last illness was working to perfect a patent lock. While a resident of London he devoted four years to inventing a typesetting machine, similar to the Mergenthaler, but the latter concern perfected its machine a few weeks ahead of Mr. Campbell's invention and it is estimated that he lost about $20,000 during the four years. He was also famous as a dentist and several dental appliances were his own invention.

MISS ANNA THATCHER BRIDE OF GEORGE ALLEN.

Miss Anna Thatcher, daughter of Thomas R. Thatcher, of Easton, Pa., became the wife of George Allen, of East Second street, at high noon today, the ceremony being performed at the home of the bride's parents, North Ninth street, Easton. The wedding was a quiet affair, none but the immediate relatives and close friends of the couple being present.

A dainty post-nuptial luncheon was served immediately after the ceremony, covers being laid for twenty-two. The couple left for a wedding trip of two weeks' duration, after which they will make their temporary home on East Second street. Mr. Allen, who is an expert machinist, is a son of the late Daniel Allen.

PIANO RECITAL GIVEN BY MISS ALICE L. MORGAN.

More than one hundred friends attended the annual piano recital by pupils of Miss Alice Louise Morgan at her home on Albert street, last night, and the work of the young people was appreciated very much. The program, a classical one, with a few popular numbers, was rendered in a manner that brought forth much applause.

Among those taking part in the program were the Misses Gladys C. Waring, Estella M. Force, Kathryn Clark, Helen G. Able, Irene Moy, Harriet C. Morgan, Evelyn M. Hillman, Kathryn A. Stevens, Vivien E. Dunn, Emma Heidliff, Wilhelmina Endress, Katherine Endress, Margaret K. Mortimer, Dorothy Langford and Madelyn Moy and J. Townley Pierson, Evan B. Stevens, W. Herbert Hillman.

Boys Devestate Flower Beds.

On the complaint of Walter Wikoff, of West Fifth street, James Traynor, 12 years old, of West Third street, and William Taynor, 11 years old, of McDowell street, were arraigned before City Judge Runyon at the session of court today. Mr. Wikoff complained that the boys, together with Edward Hamilton, of Bergen street, who was not in court, had been destroying shrubbery and the flower garden at a house he owns in the West End. The Judge gave the boys a talking to, hinting at what might happen if there was a "next time," and finally suspended sentence.

Miss Olive DeLaney, of Madison avenue, has returned after a two weeks' sojourn at Atlantic City.

The Wise Squirrel

It was on a beautiful sunny day in April, of this year, that a cunning gray squirrel with a long bushy tail and large erect ears, came cautiously up to where I sat on the porch, and took from my hand a nice big English Walnut, cracked it and swallowed the meats. Two more nuts he ate in like manner, and the fourth, a butternut, he carried to his burrow natural bank, (a hole in the ground near a tree) and left it as a "Savings Deposit."

One-fourth of his "gettings" the wise squirrel saved. He is promised no interest on his deposit, and yet he is wiser than, the man, woman, boy or girl who is allowed interest but who is not putting away something every week in the

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

"Remember that old tune, Tom," he asked—" 'Sweet Genevieve?' "

"Get out!" snapped Perkins. "That's a million years old. Why don't you keep up to date if you're going in for music? What do you care about 'Sweet Genevieve,' anyway?"

"I used to know somebody that sang it—once—long ago," said Pike quietly. "I used to hear John Simpson whistle it years before he died and left all that money to me for those two kids. Tom"—he turned suddenly and transfixed his friend with an accusatory finger—"what would you think of a guardian that doesn't guard?"

Perkins regarded him rebelliously.

"Depends on whose guardian he is and whether the guardees want him to attend to business or not. If you're talking about those kids of John Simpson's, I'd say you've done about all you could be expected to. You've kept the money together, haven't you? You've made it grow. You've sent it along regular—over there. What more could any one want?"

"Maybe that isn't enough."

"When are those two coming home?" went on Perkins. "Why don't they come back and spend John's money where it was made—at home?"

"I don't believe they're coming back right soon," replied Pike. "Things sort of seem to attract 'em over there. It must be a mighty fine place."

"Huh!" replied Perkins disgustedly. "What's the matter with Kokomo? Why don't that girl come back home and marry and settle down? Tell me that."

Pike smiled queerly, and his head seemed to shrink into his shoulders a trifle as he thrust his hands into his pockets.

"I guess she's going to marry and settle down, Tom, all right," he said slowly. "From what I hear she's going to marry one of those dukes or earls I was mentioning."

"Marry a foreigner!" cried Perkins, jumping to his feet. "Why, I thought she"—

"Never mind what you thought, Tom," returned Pike. "I'm telling you she's going to be married. That's why I guess she won't be likely to come back to Kokomo. I guess Kokomo's a pretty poor looking place after some of those other places she's been seeing."

"How do you know?" asked Perkins, drawing his chair forward.

Pike lifted the letter he had folded up.

"I got this from her," he said simply. "Want to know what's in it?"

"Yes," answered Perkins.

"I can't let you read it, but it's from a place in Italy—Sorrento," he went on slowly, mouthing the unfamiliar word. "She says she's going to marry the Hon. Almeric St. Aubyn, heir to the ancient house of Hawcastle. And she wants to make a settlement on him. She can't marry without my consent, you know, Tom. If she does the money goes to the Kokomo Orphan asylum."

"Going to give your consent?" inquired Perkins.

"Don't know," answered Pike. "I've got to look the young man over first. I promised John Simpson I'd always look after her. That was when she was born. He said girls sometimes got into a tight place and they'd need some one to pull them out. Sounds good, doesn't it, Tom? Hon. Almeric St. Aubyn. Must be a member of congress or something over there. Maybe he'll be a senator some day. I can't object, Tom, if he's got a show to make a good living for her, can I? Say, what is a settlement, anyway? You don't suppose I've been keeping her short of money, do you, and she's had to borrow?"

Perkins shook his head gloomily.

"Don't ask me," he said. "I don't know anything about women. Why, Dan, I thought you'd mapped it out to marry"—

"That'll do for that," said Pike quickly. "We'll not talk about that now, Tom. Suppose you go down to Archie Toombs and ask him about Sorrento and how to get there and when a fellow gets there after he starts. I'm going to write a letter to Jim Cooley and get him to hunt up this Hawcastle."

When Perkins had gone Pike pulled open the letter and read it once again. It was the most formal of notes, beginning "Dear Mr. Pike" and ending "Yours sincerely." It contained a brief notice of the writer's intentions, or, rather, intentions in the event of a certain contretemps that to her seemed inevitable, and trusted that the end would meet with his approval.

He sighed as he folded it and returned it to its envelope.

"And that ends the guardianship," he muttered. "Wonder what I'm going to do with the old house now?"

From a drawer in his desk he pulled a framed picture that showed a delicately featured girl, with big, frank eyes and a wealth of light, curling hair that was half hidden by a big garden hat. There was a smile about the lips that seemed very engaging, and the muslin dress she wore had been accentuated in its simplicity by the art of the London photographer. Pike had preserved the picture, which had been given to him by old John Simpson the day before he died, and he sighed as he looked at it.

Then he laid it face down upon the desk and dropped his chin into his hand. It may have been an hour that he sat there, and in that time never a thought of his legal business crossed his mind. He was busy with a fanciful picture of an unknown city that in spite of his desire seemed to take on the aspects of a larger Kokomo, and in his fancy he could see a big, well knit young fellow bending eagerly over to look into the face of a girl, and he heard her call him Almeric.

"Must be a mighty fine man," he mused—"a fine big man—to capture her."

Then Perkins came in to ask if Pike wished to sail from New York for Havre in two days' time, stating that it would be necessary to leave that night if Pike wished to take passage on her.

"I'll go, Tom," he said. "Maybe you'll drop in here once in awhile and tell folks that ask for me that I'll be back in a month or so."

Then he sat down and wrote to Jim Cooley at London.

At 8 that night he stepped aboard an eastbound train and the next afternoon was in New York. Sorrento seemed a long way off, and it was with a heavy heart that he walked up the gangplank of La Provence.

CHAPTER II.

THE EXILES.

SIX years of life abroad, and these during the most impressionable period of their young lives, had left an indelible imprint upon the two young people.

Horace Simpson had taken to himself the manners of the Harrow and Oxford youth. He had eschewed the society of what he had learned, with parrot-like aptness, to call those "vulgar Americans" and had confined his social intercourse solely to such of the European "haut ton" as he could manage to scrape acquaintance with.

And this last was a somewhat uphill task, for, whatever else one may say about the English, they are inclined to view with very little favor the possessor of no other attribute than money. True, there are exceptions, and these but prove the rule.

Ethel, who had grown into a really beautiful young woman, had followed suit, so far as in her modest powers lay. Such of her school friends as would permit the half formed acquaintance to ripen she had retained. Such others of her own modest beginnings she had quietly but emphatically dropped. From plain democracy she had sought the antithesis, and the leap was all the more an earnest one because of its breadth.

The Simpsons—and they had added their mother's maiden name and linked it to the paternal nomenclature with a hyphen—had been deeply bitten with the aristocratic virus and after a long and arduous struggle had managed to meet Lady Creech.

This titled mondaine had the misfortune to be viciously short of patrimony and inordinately long of lineage, and, while her life of self denial had doubtless imbittered her, she had a most inordinate value of birth and a distinct appreciation of cash; hence when it came her way to pick the Granger-Simpsons out of the slough of commonplace acquaintance she did it with a royal favor and for a stipulated consideration.

"Really, my dear Hawcastle"—she pronounced it as old sailors pronounce "fo'c's'tle"—she was wont to say, "really, of course, they are quite impossible, but the girl is an adaptable little thing, and I may be able to make something of her in time, while the boy—ah, I fear I shall have to leave him to you and St. Aubyn."

"Do as you like," replied the Earl of Hawcastle, with some choler, "but keep them out of my way as much as possible. I positively will not be badgered by these unbaked colonists."

"One might stand a quantity of badgering, Hawcastle, for £300,000," at which the genial earl would squirm nervously.

At any rate, the Simpson children began to be seen in the second stratum of London society and met endless numbers of the shopworn nobility, but, sad to relate, never one of the truly respectable. To those who know their London there are several layers of nobility, and the layer the ordinary individual meets, who has no social prestige to begin with, is composed of that peculiar class that lends its name to doubtful directorates, to queer prospectuses, to struggling milliners with an eye on the main chance and who gladly extend unlimited credit to their patrons in return for modest and well put advertisement.

Strangely enough, the Hawcastle-Creech combination did not drag the willing Simpsons into the glittering presence of the real set.

On the contrary, with a somewhat dog in the manger policy, they awakened both the earl and his sister-in-law to the fact that they wished no sharers in those American dollars that John Simpson had sweated his brow for, and as a consequence they proposed a little trip—a quiet, ante-season trip—to Sorrento, where not a guest would disturb them and where matters might be given a chance to right themselves.

And there, strangely enough, the Simpsons met the Comtesse de Champigny and were quite delighted to find the gifted and brilliant Frenchwoman an intimate of the earl's. The second morning of their arrival the gay comtesse put in an appearance and with a promptitude that was astonishing took young Horace under the widowly wing and marked him for her own. And that same morning the noble earl took his equally noble son into the shrubbery and spoke to him.

"You've got to do it, St. Aubyn," he said. "The family honor is at stake. For heaven's sake, marry the little fool! What if her scurrilous name is Simpson? You can make her forget it. We are stony broke, my good boy, and she has a hundred and fifty thou. That will keep us going for another year or two, and if Helene can capture the young ass, Horace, I'll force her to divide with me."

"But it's such a beastly bore, governor," drawled Almeric St. Aubyn, and he flicked idly at the rhododendron bushes with his stick.

He was a pale, washed out youth, with an inimitable drawl and a shimmering of intellect that might, if it had been given an opportunity, have resolved itself into a good working imitation of a brain. To his friends he was "that hopeless ass" and to his enemies and debtors—of the latter not a few—"that beastly bounder, St. Aubyn."

"You see, governor," the honorable Almeric went on, "it isn't as if I cared for the little gal. I'm a queer beggar,

"The family honor is at stake."

you know, and it's fearfully rough on a chap to pretend interest in such a little vulgarian. Of course I know we're awfully hard up and all that sort of thing, but"—

His noble father seized him roughly by the arm.

"You don't have to live with her, you know," he said savagely. "It will be easy enough to make it so unpleasant for the minx that she'll be glad to go back to the States, and she can't get back a penny. We'll have that tight enough."

The Hon. Almeric laughed.

"Oh, all right, old chap!" he drawled. "I'll lift her to the infernal seventh heaven, or whatever you call it. Don't expect me to moon over her, though."

And that compact being settled, the earl went off for his morning walk along the cliff and Almeric to keep his engagement for a morning ride with Ethel Granger-Simpson.

BOROUGH PEDAGOGUES DEFEAT CITY FACULTY

It took just one hour and fifty-five minutes at Crescent Oval, yesterday afternoon, for H. C. Krebs' North Plainfield High School faculty to show its superiority over Ira W. Travell and his corps of instructors in the National game. The boroughites by their hard hitting and good fielding totaled up a score of 17 to 9 at the end of the nine innings.

The real feature of the game was the pitching of H. C. Krebs, of the N. P. H. S. The Somerset County Superintendent not only looked like a veteran on the rubber but he had a wide out-drop that made the best high school batters from this side of the brook nearly break their bats reaching for it. Such batters as Jack Lyness, Blow Giddes and Thunder Clark all fell victims to "the measley fade away." At the end of the game Mr. Krebs had fanned nine batters. Best, of the N. P. H. S., was also in good trim and had his support been better the game would have been rather close.

The game was won by the hitting of North Plainfield. Krebs, Conroy and Kieffer got two base hits. Giddes for P. H. S. also shared the same honors. One of the features of the game was that three double plays were pulled off.

In the sixth inning Smith showed bad taste while running to first base. Mr. Travell, who was covering the bag at the time, gave the runner plenty of room, but Smith seeing a good chance to show some baseball tricks deliberately ran into the baseman, causing him to miss the ball.

For the N. P. H. S. team Kieffer and Powlison played a good game. Webster at second shows he has not forgotten all he knew about the game. Travell and Best, for the Plainfield team, played fine ball. Their work was watched with much interest.

CLINTON AVENUES ARE NOW THE PLAINFIELDS

The members of the Clinton Avenue Baseball Club met last night and decided to change the name of the organization to "The Plainfield Baseball Club," which it will be known by hereafter. It is proposed to make the team one representative of the city and this means that the nine will be strengthened and that games with stronger aggregations will be scheduled.

On Saturday the locals will play the Newark Giants at Crescent Oval. This is one of the best colored clubs now traveling and the contest should be a fine one. A series of three games have been scheduled with "Dave" Driscoll's New Brunswick club, the first of which will be played at New Brunswick on Saturday, June 26. The other dates will be announced later.

Manager Dorflinger has signed Boyd, of Elizabeth, for an outfield position. He is considered one of the fastest fielders in this part of the State and is also right there with the stick. Other changes are in contemplation. Ortleib will continue to pitch for the present. He is going good and is able to hold opposing teams down to a few hits.

MATINEE MEET ON SATURDAY AFTERNOON

The Plainfield Driving Club has completed arrangements for its matinee meet Saturday afternoon at the driving park. The races will start promptly at 2 o'clock. Three strong classes have been arranged, in which some of the best horses in this vicinity will start. There will be a 2:40 and 2:25 class and a free-for-all. William Hudson will be the starter. The entries are as follows:

2:40 class—"Midnight Herr," C. Case; "Black Duke," B. R. Waldron; "Ithyn," C. Smith; "Judge Rifford," George Forgerson; "Whisper," T. F. Quinn; "Mary L.," C. C. Brower; "Asia," Phil. Jenner; "Ash Boy," John Osborne; "The Minister," N. M. Giles.

2:25 class—"Queen," W. French; "Half Moon," John Osborne; "Fred V.," Frank Irving; "Maud C.," R. L. Edwards; "Lady Sidnut," C. Smith.

Free-for-all—"The Rector," H. W. Evans; "Aaron B.," A. C. Blair; "Bay Prince," T. H. Brantingham; "Jim Dick," John Taylor; "Paul Revere," W. H. Hutchings.

BOWLING.

Burscher and Meyer landed three games last night in Campbell's two-man tourney.

The scores:

Burscher	201	204	147
Meyer	167	203	198
	368	407	345
Mc Laughlin	158	158	207
Theirs	169	173	122
	327	331	329

The local bowling season will come to an end on Saturday night when Johnny Campbell will close the alleys for the summer.

On Thursday night Skelly and Campbell and Matthews and Brown will clash in a series of games.

The Somerville duo bested the locals in a match on last Wednesday night but the latter obtained revenge on Saturday night and Thursday night's match is to be the rubber.

Two seven-man teams from Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus will roll a Duck Pin match on Thursday night.

The teams will be captained by Arthur Canon and Dave Doyle.

GOLF.

This is to be a busy week in golfing. Today at the Fox Hills Golf Club the first professional match with money up in the Metropolitan Golf Association district since the visit of Harry Vardon in 1900 is to be played between Aleck Smith of Wykagyl, and Isaac Mackle. The latter is on his home course, on which many regard him as invincible, a contention that has led to the match, which is for $250 a side.

There is a still greater novelty scheduled for tomorrow at the Englewood Golf Club, the only competition of the sort ever held in the world. It is to be an aggregate score four hole match between pairs maed up of a woman and a professional. The women are to "chip in" for the prizes, which will be in cash for the professionals and in plate for the feminine amateurs. Mrs. E. F. Sanford has the affair in charge and if enough women volunteer it will be carried out; but the outcome will not be known until this afternoon. The competition will be welcomed by the professionals, for they want all the practice they can get over the course before the open championship.

In the way of tournaments the spring fixtures of the East Jersey Golf Association will be held on Friday and Saturday at the Forest Hill Field Club, when the new clubhouse will be thrown open; the Hudson River Golf Association will have its championship at the Twaalfskill Club, Kingston, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday; the Massachusetts amateur championship will be on at the Oakley Country Club and there will be several big competitions in the west.

There will be four days of golf instead of only the usual two in connection with the open championship of the United States at the Englewood Golf Club on June 24 and 25. The title event will be preceded by a team match between professionals stationed at Western and Eastern clubs on June 22, and on June 23 there will be a four ball competition for teams made up of an amateur and a professional. For the latter competition the Englewood Golf Club has presented three prizes of $100, $60 and $40, the amateurs of the winning pairs to receive cups or medals. Entries for the open championship close on Wednesday with R. C. Watson, secretary of the United States Golf Association.

LIVELY "SEND-OFF" FOR MR. AND MRS. MELLICK.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Hartley Mellick, who were married at Grace church yesterday afternoon, will have cause to remember the "send-off" given them at the North Avenue Station, last night, while they were waiting for their train. A number of guests, who followed the couple to the station, planned to have some fun with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Mellick were placed on one of the baggage trucks and with a dozen or more at each end, were ridden up and down the platform station until the train arrived. Cheer after cheer was given for the bride and groom. The coach which carried the couple to the railroad station was not only elaborately decorated with white ribbons, but a long string of tin cans added to the merriment of the occasion.

Miss Sherwood Entertained.

MAIL CLERK INDICTED?

U. S. Grand Jury Said to Have Found a Bill Against Conkling.

WILL BE ARRAIGNED FRIDAY.

City Judge W. N. Runyon Retained as Counsel for the Accused Man—Will Not Fight Case.

John Conkling, the 21-year-old mail clerk at the local postoffice, who was arrested last week by Inspectors Gibbins and Butler, charged with violating section 1609 of the postal laws—stealing money from letters, will be arraigned before Judge Cross or Judge Rellstab in Trenton, on Friday, when he is expected to plead.

The United States Grand Jury was in session yesterday, and it is understood that among the indictments found was one against Conkling. City Judge William N. Runyon has been retained as counsel for the accused young man. It is said that Conkling will not fight the case, preferring to let the law take its course.

Conkling is at present detained in Newark, having been removed from the Hudson County Jail several days ago, after being arraigned before United States Commissioner Lindsly Rowe. He was committed in default of bail.

The mail clerk's arrest followed the disappearance of two special delivery "test" letters, dropped at the local postoffice by the inspectors. The letters should have been in mail pouches leaving Plainfield at 9:59 and 12 o'clock that day, but the inspectors failed to find them when they searched them on the trains. They then returned to the local office, where Conkling was accused of taking them. He then confessed, it is said, and in answer to a question said that he had been engaged in the practice since February last. Special delivery letters were his hobby.

Conkling was appointed a substitute clerk in 1906, and later was made an assistant mailing clerk. Prior to that he worked at the office as a special messenger boy. Because of his aptitude he made rapid progress and was assisted by Postmaster Bird in being promoted. He was the chief witness in the case against former Letter-carrier Daniel McNamara, convicted on a similar charge, and was active in getting evidence against him. McNamara is now serving a nine months' sentence in the Essex county Penetentiary at Caldwell.

MOTHER ACCUSES SON OF RIFLING TRUNK-BANK

On the complaint of his mother, who declares that he is a "bad boy," Walter Robinson, colored, sixteen years old, was escorted to police headquarters from his home on East Third street by the woman this morning and arraigned before City Judge Runyon. Mrs. Robinson, who is the wife of Ruffin Robinson, declares that the boy stole $7.50 from a trunk in her bedroom yesterday. The boy is the brother of Petwin Robinson, who was convicted of stealing a bicycle a short time ago.

Walter is lazy, his mother says. "He loves to have money, Judge, Your Honor," said Mrs. Robinson, "but he won't do a bit of work to earn it. Why that boy has had lots of chances to earn the money he likes to spend, but he's too lazy. He gets the money, though, and if he don't earn it, where can he get it from unless he steals it?" Mrs. Robinson also told how the lock to her trunk-bank had been pried off with a file and the money taken from under a pile of blankets. Walter, of course, stoutly denied the charge of theft, and said that he hadn't had but a dollar since Sunday. His mother told how he had once taken two dollars from her before, and the court got the idea that the boy is a clever falsifier.

City Judge Runyon told Walter that he would be given a chance to make good in the home, but gave his mother probation charge of him and stated that he would hold the boy for the grand jury if there are any more complaints. Mrs. Robinson is a church member, and told the court how she used to talk to Walter nightly and pray with him that he might mend his ways. Walter finally got the idea that the Judge meant what he said about "next time" and left the court-room with the intention of getting a job.

MISS RAYBERT'S SINGING DELIGHTS SOUTH AMBOY.

Miss S. Etta Raybert, soprano soloist at Trinity Reformed church, was one of the soloists at the sixth concert given by the South Amboy Choral Society, on Wednesday night, last, and as on several previous occasions she was given a great ovation by a large audience. The South Amboy Citizen in its story of the concert, has this to say about Miss Raybert:

"Miss Raybert, as before, proved her popularity with the audience. Her voice is a rich soprano of wonderful beauty and strength, yet under her own complete control. Each number she sang called forth continued aplause, and although the program was a hard one, she generously responded to several insistent encores."

SAW THIEF IN MIRROR

Horace Vail Watches Boy Steal His Wheel and Then Nabs Him.

AT CITY BANK BUILDING.

Anthony Cudlick, the Prisoner, May Know Something About the Many Other Bicycles Stolen.

Mirrors in the jewelry store of Charles E. Vail, of Park avenue, enabled Horace E. Vail, the jeweler's son, to see a roughly dressed Slavish boy take his bicycle from the side of the First National Bank building and mount it to ride away, at about 10 o'clock this morning. Young Vail, who had been watching the boy in the mirror, rushed to the street and captured the bicycle thief himself. At police headquarters, where he was taken by Patrolman Nolan, the prisoner said he was Anthony Cudlick, sixteen years old. He was locked up.

The bike, which is a new one, had been left by the bank building a short time before by Vail, who entered his father's store. As he stood behind the counter, gazing in the mirror across the store, he saw the stranger pause by the wheel as he sauntered by, and finally, shifting a bundle he carried to his other arm, take the wheel to the curb and mount. Vail and his father rushed from the store and dragged Cudlick from the bike.

Questioned by Patrolman Nolan, who was summoned by the elder Mr. Vail, Cudlick said that "a fellow who had just gone in the store" told him he could take a ride. This was, of course, disproved. The crowd which gathered at the arrest saw the boy securely hand-cuffed and led to police headquarters with his hands locked together. The officer, who drew badge No. 13 at the recent police inspection, did not seem to want to take chances on his prisoner getting away.

The arrest of Cudlick may throw some light on other thefts of bicycles which have baffled the police for several weeks passed. Cycle owners to the number of more than twenty-five have reported the loss of their mounts at headquarters since cycling days began this spring, and although some of the bicycles have been recovered by the police, there are still a number who have been vicitimized.

CHARMING LAWN FETE

Ladies' Auxiliary to Trinity Commandery Hold Successful Outdoor Affair.

TO ESTABLISH HOSPITAL BED.

May pole Dance, Pony Rides, Fortune Telling and Palmistry Among Numerous Attractions—Will Net $75.

After several postponements, because of rainy weather, the lawn fete for the benefit of the Masonic bed in Muhlenburg Hospital was held yesterday afternoon by the Ladies' Auxiliary to Trinity Commandery, K. T. The affair was held on the spacious grounds of Winfield E. Angleman at Waynewood Park and was well attended.

The grounds were all a-flutter with flags and bunting, with Japanese lanterns for illumination in the evening, the whole presenting a very pretty spectacle. A May-pole dance was given under the direction of Mrs. Herbert Buxton and Mrs. Percival Martin, with the following little boys and girls taking part: Ruth Buxton, Margaret Lounsbury, Grace Quick, Erma G. Dobbins, Marjory Dufford; Masters Everett Martin and Sydney Angleman. The dance was executed nicely, the nimble feet of the children keeping time to the music as they wound in and out wreathing the pole in divers colors, only to reverse and unwind the gay colors again.

All the afternoon the tables were the mecca of visitors who kept the willing young women clerks busy wrapping up good things to take home and the waitresses serving ice cream and cake. The children enjoyed immensely the sports provided for them in the archery court, cocoanut throw and pony rides. Besides, there was "El Paso Jack" the bronco buster to throw them into fits of laughter with his comical stunts on a real western pony, and a patient little donkey with all the solemn shyness of his kind, waiting to be scared into action, in charge of Master Robbie Muir.

For the older folks there was a fortune teller, Signor Alvindini, and a palmist, Madame Carmelita, who beguiled the jingling dimes from the pockets of the valorous dames and maidens whose futures were thus revealed and laid bare to them. Taken all together the affair was a success, the amount realized being about $75.00.

The tables were in charge of the following ladies: Ice cream, President, Mrs. J. F. Buckle, Mrs. George Macintyre and Mrs. E. M. Vail. Cake, Mrs. E. A. Lowe, Mrs. Harry W. Marshall and Mrs. James Shores Pray. Lemonade, Mrs. Arthur McVoy, Mrs. Elizabeth Woodhard and Miss Helen Adams. Candy, Mrs. Frank G. Payson, Misses Cora and Jeanne Coyle. Cocoanut Alley, Winfield S. Angleman, Masters Harold Williams and James Buckle. Cane rings, Masters Franklin Buckle, Benjamin Cooley and Miss Eleanor Pray. Archery, Masters Roy Macintyre and Mead Holstein. The waitresses were: Misses Reba Marshall, Mabel Pray, Hazel Williams, Ella Jarrett, Ray Warnock and Anna Warnock. Arthur McVoy, Jr., was in charge of the grab-bags.

The music was from a phonograph kindly loaned by Mrs. George Geiblehouse, attended to by Master Charles Bloom. The reception committee was: Mrs. C. D. Adams, Mrs. W. S. Angleman, Mrs. Julius Williams and Mrs. Edward Cooley.

ABREAST OF THE TIMES, THOUGH 96 YEARS OLD

Bennett Britton, Plainfield's oldest citizen, who is familiarly known as the "old young man" because of his remarkably physical endurance and vitality, is today celebrating his ninety-sixth birthday quietly at his place of business at West Front and Clinton avenue, where he has been for several years.

Mr. Britton was born at Paterson, June 16, 1813, and has resided in Plainfield and Scotch Plains since the close of the Civil War, of which he is a veteran, and in spite of his advanced age looks to be not more than 60. He is possessed of a tenacious grip on life and has a great respect for fresh air as a vitality builder, being a lover of walking.

Mr. Britton keeps posted on the lively doings of the day and is a keen reader of the newspapers. A host of friends are wishing Mr. Britton many happy returns of the day.

MINSTREL SHOW MUSIC WAS WELL RENDERED

Going over the entire musical program for the big benefit minstrel show to be given for "Tom" Muir at the New Plainfield theatre Friday and Saturday nights, the big minstrel chorus breathed out the melody in good style at the rehearsal held in the Elks' lodge rooms last night, when Judge Runyon, who held the baton, declared the singing to be about perfect. Another rehearsal of the chorus will be held in the lodge room at 9 o'clock tonight, and the singers will appear with the principles on the theatre stage for the dress rehearsal Thursday night, when the show will be staged "just as it's going to be."

The final new piece, a swinging closing chorus, was taken up last night, and the choruses were sung in the order to be used in the show. Several of the end men were present and sang their songs, so as to give "the hundred and fifty" a chance to hear how things would go with the crescendo choruses.

If you people who are going to see that show don't get your tickets soon, you'll be "on the outside a-lookin' in," and that means in the gloomy minority. Develop into "wise virgins," or something like that, trim your lamps and focus them on the box office; get in the ticket window line. You're sure to say "value received" afterwards.

MRS. TOTTEN WANTS $5,000 IN DAMAGE SUIT

Mrs. Totten, who until recently occupied the house at the corner of New and West Fifth streets, owned by Harry Dreier, has entered a suit, in tort, through her counsel, Winfield S. Angleman, against Dreier for $5,000 for illegally preventing her having access to her chattles after being dispossessed.

Deputy Sheriff P. V. Weaver dispossessed Mrs. Totten after the death of Frank Bacon, who died recently from injuries received by being struck by a train and who claimed to be in possession of an unrecorded deed to the premises. Dreier acquired the property by purchase from the city under the Martin Tax Sale act and at the time of the accident to Bacon was in litigation with him over the title to the property. The writ is returnable at Elizabeth on June 21.

BITTEN BOY CLIMBS TREE TO ESCAPE DOG

Bitten in the left arm and thigh and with his clothes torn by "Flo," a bull-dog belonging to Lines Groo, of East Second street, Clifford Lock, a fourteen-year-old boy who lives on East Sixth street, came to police headquarters yesterday afternoon to make a complaint about the vicious animal. Lock had previously been to Dr. Emic Cooper, of Westfield, and the physician had examined the bite wounds, which were slight, and given treatment.

Lock says that the only reason he wasn't hurt worse was because he climbed a tree. Frank Force, a boy companion, who lives on Richmond street, was also attacked and had his trousers torn by the snapping dog. Other members of the party were Harry Runn, of South avenue, and Howard McDonough, of East Sixth street, and the boys said in court today that they were attacked by the dog as they walked past the Groo home yesterday afternoon on their way to a lot near-by where they were going to pick daisies.

Mr. Groo was in court, too, and he stated that "Flo," who is the mother of two young pups, is a most peaceful canine, as are her offspring. He wasn't home yesterday afternoon, but cannot understand how the dog came to bite the boys. Mr. Lock appeared with her son, and corroborated the boy's story. Mr. Groo asked for an adjournment of the case, so that his wife and another eye-witness could give their version of the alleged attack. Judge Runyon will hear more details Saturday morning, when the witnesses are to appear. Mr. Gro hinted that he would retain counsel.

"Flo" has been in trouble as a biter before, according to the police, for two pedestrians bear the marks of her teeth, it is said, as the result of alleged attacks more than a month ago. Mr. Groo seemed to think that the boys were on their way to his place to steal cherries, and he didn't seem very sympathetic about the bites. Neighbors say that the dogs are playful, and won't bite unless teased.

REMARKABLE OPERATION

Skillful Surgeon Saves the Life of Mrs. Sidney Titsworth.

FIRST OF ITS KIND ATTEMPTED.

Comprised Breaking Open of the Skull and Severing Nerve Filament—Patient Recovering.

Mrs. Sidney R. Titsworth, wife of a former well-known Plainfielder, who is now one of the leading physicians of Bridgeport, Conn., is recovering from a most remarkable operation performed on April 23 last in a New York Hospital. It is said that never before in the annals of medical and surgical science, has there been attempted such a daring operation. It comprised the breaking open of the skull behind the left ear and the severing of a nerve filament, known as the pars interm dia lying between the seventh facial and eighth auditory nerves. The operation was for ear neuralgia and is said to be the first of its kind ver performed.

Many physicians who were in New York attending the convention of the American Neurological Association saw a woman who had been saved from death by a daring and successful operation for ear neuralgia. Mrs. Titsworth appeared before them gladly at the New York Academy of Medicine and the following day Dr. L. Pierce Clark, the neurologist who diagnosed the case, and Dr. A. S. Taylor, the surgeon, who performed the operation, both of New York, will give a technical description of their work later.

Mrs. Titsworth had been afflicted for several years with violent and piercing pains in the ear. At times they were so excruciating that she screamed in agony, and it was impossible to alleviate them appreciably with powerful drugs. Life was unbearable. Seven physicians treated her in vain. She finally came under the care of Dr. Clark, who has paid especial attention to all forms of nerve disease. He made an elaborate study and found that the malady was not face neuralgia, as had been supposed, but that it was due to the condition of the nerve connecting the geniculate ganglion with the brain.

Dr. Clark decided it would be necessary to sever the filament, known as the pars intermedia, which lies between the seventh facial and eighth auditory nerves. Mrs. Titsworth was informed that the operation was a daring one and that it involved risk. She said that she would gladly undergo it, as life was not worth living, and that if she died as a result of the operation she would be better off than if she continued to live without finding relief.

After a consultation, Dr. Clark placed Mrs. Titsworth on the operating table. An inverted U shaped incision through the scalp and skull was made behind the left ear. The diameter of the opening thus made was about three inches. An instrument was put down for two inches, the cerebellum was lifted and by means of a small electric light the nerves were revealed. By means of a small hook the nerve was raised and then severed.

The surgeons could see plainly the nerves controlling respiration the disturbing of which would have caused death. The variation of an eighth of an inch through any cause would, in the opinion of Dr. Clark, have proved fatal. He spoke in the highest terms of the skill of Dr. Taylor, who had operated in accordance with his diagnosis. The ganglion is now not deprived of nourishment, although it no longer connects with the brain.

THE PARK THEATRE IN THE HANDS OF A RECEIVER.

The creditors of The Park Theatre Company, which formerly conducted a moving picture place at 120 East Front street, have been notified that the concern has gone into the hands of a receiver. The place was conducted by Charles J. Woehrer and Thomas P. Murphy, of Asbury Park. The creditors are requested to present their claims to the receiver, Leon R. Taylor, within three months from date, or they will be barred from participation in the distribution of any money that may come into the hands of the receiver.

Messrs. Woehrer and Murphy acquired the property formerly police headquarters and after extensive improvements opened a moving picture theatre. At first business was good, but later the patronage fell off and the place was closed. No effort has been made to re-open the theatre.

Beginning July 1, the dues of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will be changed from fiteen to seventeen cents a week.

SIX RECEIVE DIPLOMAS

First Commencement at Mt. St. Mary's College Celebrated on the Campus.

BISHOP J. A. McFAUL PRESIDES.

Assemblyman Prince Makes Commencement Address Before Graduating Class and Large Audience.

The Right Reverend James A. McFaul, D. D., L. L. D., bishop of the Catholic diocese of Trenton, presided at the commencement exercises on the compus of Mount Saint Mary's College on Watchung mountains this afternoon. There was a large assemblage of the parents and friends of the graduates including a number of the clergy from various cities.

Bishop McFaul conferred the honors on the six young women graduates and made an address. The graduates were Miss Grace Regina Rafferty, of Sandford avenue; Miss Irene Austin Smith, of Jackson avenue; Miss Margaret Frances McDonough, of South Plainfield; Miss Annabel Elizabeth Jones, of Goldsboro, North Carolina; Miss Maria Ellen O'Hara, of New York city, and Miss Edna Catherine Kahney, of Princeton.

These six young women form the first class to be graduated from the new college structure. There are as yet, of course, no graduates from the academic department, but several of these graduates will continue their studies with an academic course at the institution.

The principal address was delivered by Jacob C. Prince, a member of the faculty of Columbia University, and speaker of the House of the New Jersey legislature. His topic was "Education," and was a masterly speech in which the value of an education was set forth and showed what a grand asset our great educational institutions are to the country. Mr. Prince's address was followed with profound attention and at its close the speaker was heartily applauded.

Assemblyman Prince spoke in part, as follows:

"It has not been customary among those who do not or will not understand the true significance of a religious order—a body of men or women voluntarily grouped together to accomplish an object dear to them all—to decry the entire system of conventual societies. I feel sure that all persons who follow the religion of Christ are striving for the same object. They are all endeavoring to live in harmony with the divine teachings of Him who came to guide them through the ocean of life to that gentle harbour of Love where all evil is to be eliminated and the perfect life to be attained.

"I do not wish to preach a sermon, but remember, as I do, the life and work of Mother Mary Catherine McAuley, the foundress of the Order of the Sisters of Mercy, that woman who from her earliest childhood was naturally drawn to the religious life, whose highest ideal was that of self consecration, not to a vague and selfish goal but to that only true and practical religious life which desires to efface itself and work for the good of others.

"There is no higher life than that devoted to education;; education both religious and secular and in theses days of luke warm religious feeling when a too brutal indifference to religious ties be they Catholic or Protestant is insidiously making itself felt in all classes of our social life, I feel that your exhortations and the example of your lives in religious matters, as well as your learning in the humanities are well calculated to check the attacks upon the rising generations of this demon of indifferntism.

"So much do I disagree with the modernistic view of an exclusively specialized education to the detriment of all broad training that I always breath a sigh of relief when I enter an old fashioned school such as yours here and most of our Public Schools in this State where essentials are still insisted upon and the pupil is not turned into a half-fledged specialist before the necessary ground work has been laid.

"I have mentioned before an indifference to religious matters as becoming too evident in every circle of society. I regret to say that this peculiar tendency to general carelessness seems to be an inherent characteristic of our too variegated modern American life. The cause of it all clearly lies in the remarkable material growth of this country during the past fifty years, a growth which has produced a haste in everything—an unreasoning hurry to get through the increasing-

OVERTAXED.

Hundreds of Plainfield Readers Know What It Means.

The kidneys are overtaxed;

Have too uchm to do.

They tell about it in many aches and pains—

Backache, sideache, headache.

Early symptoms of kidney ills.

Diabetes, Bright's disease follow.

A Plainfield citizen tells here a certain cure.

J. H. Stewart, 313 Arlington, Ave., Plainfield, N. J., says: "An acute pain in the region of my kidneys was a prominent feature of my kidney trouble. My back also ached and I had cold sweats. I finally became so bad that I had to stop work, but even then I did not improve. I at length commenced taking Doan's Kidney Pills and three boxes stopped my ached and pains and restored my kidneys to a healthy condition. That was in 1905 and up to this time no attack of the trouble has ever reappeared. In return for the benefit I derived from Doan's Kidney Pills, I am glad to endorse them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

AN ORDINANCE

To Guard Against Danger of Fire and Explosion in Connection With the Use of Illuminating Gas or Fuel Gas in Buildings.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That all pipes of one and one-quarter inches in diameter or over, for the supply of illuminating gas or fuel gas to buildings hereafter erected in the City of Plainfield shall have a properly installed gas cut-off at the curb line of streets in which such pipes are or shall be connected with gas mains, and any person who or corporation which shall lay or cause to be laid any such pipe without such gas cut-off at the curb line, shall on conviction be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars for each offense.

Sec. 2. That no person or corporation shall supply illuminating gas or fuel gas, or allow the same to be supplied, to buildings hereafter erected in the City of Plainfield through pipes of one and one-quarter inches in diameter, or over, not having a properly installed gas cut-off at the curb line of the street in which such pipes are or shall be connected with gas mains, under a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars fine for each offense.

Sec. 3. That all gas pipes now used or that may hereafter be used to supply illuminating gas or fuel gas from gas mains in streets to any school building, church building, Sunday-school building, hotel building, factory building or any building containing a theatre, public assembly room, music hall or concert hall, whether such building be now erected or shall be erected hereafter, and whatever may be the size of such gas pipes, shall be furnished with a gas cut-off properly installed at the curb line of the streets adjacent to such buildings in which such gas pipes are or may hereafter be connected with gas mains.

Sec. 4. That on or after the first day of September in the year nineteen hundred and nine no person or corporation shall supply illuminating gas or fuel gas, or allow the same to be supplied to buildings specified in section 3 of this ordinance, whether such buildings be now erected or shall be erected hereafter in the City of Plainfield, and whatever may be the size of such gas pipes, unless gas cut-offs shall be first installed at the curb line as provided in said Section 3 of this ordinance, under a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars fine for each offense. 6 9 2 oaw

RARITAN.

Hugh B. Reed, of Newark, spent Saturday and Sunday with his mother, Mrs. Anne Reed, north of this place.

Another carload of filters has arrived for use at the new pumping station on the Duke estate.

The Raritan Band will go to Whitehouse on July 4 to participate in the celebration there.

GOLF.

In winning the Cornell cup at the Apawamis Club last week C. A. Spofford had the tenth hole in two strokes The distance is 345 yards and he used a wooden spoon club for the second shot. The course, as those who participated in the recent Metropolitan amateur championship there will recall, is now in fine turf and the greens are true. The annual invitation tournament will be held there on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 1, 2 and 3. The qualifying round will be at thirty-six holes medal play. There is a gold medal for the maker of the low score, and the first sixteen will qualify for a cup and runnerup prize, and the second and third sixteens for single cups. There also is a match play cup for those defeated in the morning's play for the first cup There will be a thirty-six hole handicap for a gross and net score prize on the last day for those not in the cup contests. The announcement is made that in all match play rounds stimies must be played.

Golf has opened briskly at the Deal Golf and Country Club and now that it has been decided to pass the open tournament this summer, the entry of 200 or 225 having made the affair too burdensome to be managed, there is talk of reviving the New Jersey Shore championship. There was formerly a team circuit which included the Deal, Hollywood, Seabright and Monmouth Beach clubs, and ten years or so ago there was an individual championship. Mortimer M. Singer was the winner and received a handsome gold medal, the gift of George Harvey. If made an annual interclub fixture a championship of the shore clubs would attract many players.

A. H. S. Clark, a Scot, has won the championship of Ceylon. He also held the title in 1907 and beat the 1909 champion, W. H. Smallwood, in the final. It was one of the most exciting matches ever witnessed on the Nuwara Elija course and was only won on the nineteenth green.

The United States Golf Association wrote to the Ladies Golf Union of Great Britain offering a cup to be played for by a British team of women in this country. The answer was that while there could be no more interesting trip than a tour of the States golf courses unfortunately the difficulty of raising a representative team at the present time is too great to be overcome.

Summers of the Detroits has been stung hard his last two times out. The New Yorks knocked him out of the box and the Washingtons followed suit.

Among the largesse which fell to Hoblitzel the other day for making a home run was a box of candy. If he includes such gifts in his dietetic curriculum he won't make many home runs.

The whitewash that Mathewson inflicted on the Reds last Saturday was the second he has forced on the team this season. Griffith's sluggers haven't scored a run off the king of the twirlers.

Two fifteen inning games were played on successive days in the Eastern League last week. Russell Ford, late of the Highlander staff, and Savidge, recently with Cincinnati, were in one of them. Ford finally landing the game.

Members of the Rube family in the big leagues are Waddell, Marquard, Vickers, Kroh and Oldring—all pitchers but one. The Cys are not so numerous. Young and Seymour being the two most distinguished scions of that house.

For the first time this year the Highlanders played last Saturday as if panicky. They went bad most of the week principally because they weren't hitting, but never went up in the air before. With the pitching staff doing as well as it is there is no reason why the team shouldn't

If there's something about a grounds, such as a background, to affect the batting eye home players always figure that they get the worst of it, but George Stallings doesn't agree with this view. He holds that the home players have the advantage because they have a chance to get used to the surroundings, topography and other local peculiarities.

St. Mary's would like to arrange games with light semi-professional teams, Y. M. C. A., preferred. Address communications to P. E. Kiely, No. 540 West Sixth street, Plainfield, N. J.

The North Plainfield Athletic Association has elected these officers for next year: Carlton Smith, captain, and Harry Smith, manager.

The Plainfield Baseball Club will cross bats with the Newark Giants at Crescent Oval, Saturday afternoon. Ortleib and Seery will be the battery and it is possible that Boyd, of Elizabeth, may play in the outfield.

There is still some uncertainty about Clifford Randolph. While he is supposed to be a member of the Binghamton, New York State League club, Manager Wolverton, of Newark, still has a claim to the Plainfielder, and at present refuses to let him go. Wolverton let Randolph go first to Williamsport and then Bingamton so that he might get an opportunity to play oftener than in Newark. His case will probably be adjusted in a few days. He only pitched one game for Bingamton.

Jack Martin, who is playing short for Dave Driscoll's team at New Brunswick, is said to be making good and has already caught on with the fans in that burg.

"GOOD" FOR A YEAR, BARNEY "OFF" AGAIN.

For the first time since June 2 of last year, Barney Tracy was locked up last night for drunkenness. The genial local character was found in a much befuddled state in front of the Salvation Army headquarters late last night, as the result of ninety cents worth of good booze, taken internally.

Barney gave the details of his debauch at court today. He told Judge Runyon that someone gave him an ice-box yesterday and he succeeded in selling it for a dollar. As soon as the deal was completed he was joined by "Brother" William, his pal, and the two jointly invested the money in liquid refreshment. To judge by the results, Barney got the lion's share, for the police say that yesterday morning, after several rounds, he was overcome by a sense of the beautiful, and went to the railroad station park to garner flowers. He was urged to desist and with this appetite for collecting the beautiful flowers snubbed, he collected his beautiful jag.

Barney is always a peaceful character, and made no disturbance when in liquor. The fact that he has kept away from jail for a year won his a "suspended sentence" from City Judge Runyon, and he departed with a promise that he would keep out of trouble for another year.

DEMOCRATS WILL MEET TO ORGANIZE

The Democrats of the city will gather at the Board of Trade rooms, tonight, for the purpose of effecting a new organization and planning for the approaching campaign in the fall. Several men prominent in the party have undertaken the task of reviving interest in the principles of true Democracy and have issued a call to all Democrats and others interested to attend and participate in the general discussion.

L. J. Ellis said today regarding tonight's meeting:

"As the call says 'We appeal to all who desire to see sound Democratic principles prevail.' Now truly 'Republican' principles and truly Democratic principles are the same. At one time each party claimed to stand for the rights of man a fair field and no favors. Gradually the Republican party has drifted away from the rights of men and now stands for favors for the classes. There are many enrolled as Republicans who realize this and whose sympathies are with sound Democratic principles, who keenly feel that the Republican party does not represent them, who feel that there is little in the Republican party of today of its earlier principles which won their allegiance to keep them tied to it now, and who prize this country's honor and welfare above party. We say to these men don't let a mere name make you longer cling to a party which does not represent your sentiments, or frighten you from one which however often misguided in the past, from your viewpoint, it has been is sound in principle and must be depended on eventually to save the country from despotism and revolution. We believe these good citizens will be glad to unite with us in a movement to combine for action the men of the best political thought of the town. We appeal to them and Democrats of all persuasions to come tonight to 109 Park avenue and help form an effective organization to promote the domination in our government of those sound Democratic principles which are necessary to its preservation and as everlasting as the hills.

PALMER & LEWIS SCORE IN COMEDY SKIT "SPANGLES."

On the bill at the New Plainfield theatre this week are Palmer and Lewis in the scenic comedy success "Spangles," a travesty act and a scream from start to finish. The characters call for lots of life and it is there.

Two new acts have been added to the bill, Copeland and Jones and "Billy" Tower. Copeland and Jones do a refined singing and talking act and they make one of the most pleasing teams ever seen in Plainfield. Tower with his trick dancing also makes a hit. Caites Bros. and La Petite Lulu please everyone with their clever singing and dancing. One of the Caites Brothers is a little chap six years old who alone is worth the price of admission.

COL. AND MRS. CORBUSIER RETURN FROM BERMUDA.

Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. W. H. Corbusier, of this city, returned yesterday from Bermuda, where the Colonel traced the records of his family. The colonel is a retired surgeon of the regular army, who served in the Philippines during the Spanish-American war, and is an uncle of Dr. Harold D. Corbusier, of this city, who served in the same war and also in the Boxer uprising as a United States army surgeon.

Col. Corbusier is a geneologist of note and during his investigations in Bermuda of his family tree searched among church registers and Colonial Secretary papers. One of his ancestors was a Hugenot who fled from France, where his estate was confiscated.

Alvin Mystifies Big Auidence.

"The Great Alvin" performed a clever feat at Proctor's theatre last night, when he extricated himself from a large dry goods box, in which he had been securely fastened by nails and ropes. It required exactly ten minutes for the "Hand-Cuff King" to release himself. Friday night at 10 o'clock he will attempt to free himself from a straight-jacket in a tank containing eighty gallons of water. A capacity audience witnessed last night's performance and was completely mystified by Alvin's exhibition. Today there will be a complete change of program at Proctor's, new vaudeville acts and motion pictures.

"THE HUNGARIAN," MISSIONARY TOPIC

The Home Missionary Society of the First Baptist church held the closing meeting of the season yesterday afternoon in the lecture room when a very interesting paper was presented by Mrs. William A. Conner on "The Hungarians." Referring to the close analogy between the life of a people and the physical aspects of their home country, Mrs. Conner described the wild grandeur of the land as a fitting arena for the romantic and too often tragic drama that forms the history of the people.

Among the variety of races peopling Hungary, all of them Slavonic, Mrs. Conner said the dominant race was the Magyars, and their freedom from anything resembling the crushing force of serfdom that formerly existed in Russia has had an immense influence on their character. Their many conflicts, the observance of St. Stephen's day, the influence of the patriot, Kossuth, and the story of the establishment of the ducal monarchy Austria-Hungary in 1868, giving them a prominent place among the nations of Europe, was full of interest.

The paper was preceded by a devotional service led by Mrs. Reuben Knox, the president of the society, and was followed by the adoption of a revised constitution.

A HAT STORY.

"Just let me tell you the latest hat story," said a young woman. "A friend of mine had been ill for some time, and so, of course, didn't buy a hat. Finally she was able to sally forth on the all-important quest. She looked and looked, and the more she looked the more discouraged she became, for the hats were most remarkable, both as to shape and trimming. The result was that she didn't find anything that suited, so she returned home minus her hat.

"She knew that her husband would expect to see a new hat on his return from the office, so she decided not to have him entirely disappointed. Her sense of humor was still keen, no matter how tired she was physically. She proceeded to evolve a sample 'hat,' a small waste basket serving as the foundation. Ribbon, flowers, a small feather duster or two, a bunch of parsley and some other odds and ends which she found somewhere about the house all came in handy. She set the hat just where it would be in range of vision on her husband's return.

"Did he see it? Indeed he did; that is, he glanced at it. I suppose visions of even worse concoctions he had seen in the shop windows came to mind. At all events, that kind-hearted man didn't criticise the creation, and it was only when his wife brought it to him for close examination that he appreciated the joke."

ly complicated life-tasks.

"I do not hesitate to say that in many instances the American city has almost destroyed the home. The skyscraping apartment where everything is done for the mother of the family of moderate means that she thus loses her taste and ability for her natural home duties has produced a type of woman unknown fifty years ago, a woman whose life is largely spent in places of amusement or in the many woman's clubs or debating societies.

"Pray do not imagine that I am depreciating the American woman. There is no woman in the world with a more brilliant aptitude for accomplishment than the American women. I am merely pointing out to you what I deem a grave danger caused by the centralized effort of our bustling time.

"The chief function of the woman of today is to be the home-maker; the real centre of the family. No training is better adapted to impress this cogent fact upon the mind of the young American woman than that which you have received here. A liberal education in the arts in the best old-fashioned sense of that word coupled within insistence upon the fundamental facts of a guiding religion must inevitably tend to the development of a healthy-minded tender-souled responsible American woman.

"Let me in closing once more lay stress upon this word 'responsible' emphasizing the sense of that responsibility which is about to be yours the responsibility first of keeping alive the pure flame of that Christian faith which has touched you here and in speaking thus I am addressing Catholic and Protestant students alike. The true American woman is the cultivated woman of the home."

Music for the occasion was furnished by the Y. M. C. A. orchestra under the direction of Martin A. Koriff.

300 P. B. C. PUPILS TO PARADE CHARTER DAY.

To Appear Before Judge Schenck.

George Suydam will be arraigned before Judge Schenck at Somerville, tomorrow, and it is expected that he will be committed to the Reform School at Jamesburg. Suydam, who has recently developed some of the traits of Jesse James, is now believed to be incorrigible, and through the efforts of Mayor Samuel Townsend and Superintendent H. C. Krebs, of the borough schools, the lad was remanded and sent to Somerville, where Judge Schenck will be requested to dispose of the case.

Brooklyn Lad Fined $1.

August Miller, whose home is in Brooklyn, was taken before Borough Recorder Dolliver last night and fined $1 for riding his wheel on the sidewalk.

The Wise Squirrel

It was on a beautiful sunny day in April, of this year, that a cunning gray squirrel with a long bushy tail and large erect ears, came cautiously up to where I sat on the porch, and took from my hand a nice big English Walnut, cracked it and swallowed the meats. Two more nuts he ate in like manner, and the fourth, a butternut, he carried to his burrow natural bank, (a hole in the ground near a tree) and left it as a "Savings Deposit."

One-fourth of his "gettings" the wise squirrel saved. He is promised no interest on his deposit, and yet he is wiser than, the man, woman, boy or girl who is allowed interest but who is not putting away something every week, in the

A public playground for children will be opened on Second street, Bordentown, by the Progress Club tomorrow.

The heat in the South Jersey glass factories was so intense Monday that the men were able to stay at their posts but a few minutes at a time.

The Millville Council will meet on June 22 to legalize the appointment of City Marshal Biggs, who was declared to be holding office illegally by the Supreme Court last week.

Disputing the legality of Camden's title to the land, Eli T. Browning has brought suit in the Chancery Court at Camden to restrain the city from sinking additional artesian wells at Delair. The case will be disposed of next Monday.

Mrs. Deborah Shoemaker, who is ninety-four years old, walked to the Second Methodist Episcopal Church in Millville, Sunday, and, upon profession of faith, was received by Rev. W. E. Lake as a member of the church on probation.

His wife Anna, having deserted him and two children, Henry Husted, of Millville, has been vainly searching Philadelphia for her for three days. Seventeen-year-old Pearl Greaves, the ward of Mr. Husted, left in company with his wife.

At the annual meeting of the Kate Aylesford Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, of Hammonton, Mrs. A. J. Rider was elected regent. After taking her seat Mrs. Rider presented to the chapter a gavel made from the frigate Augusta, sunk off Gloucester.

The thirteenth child and the first girl of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Yates, of Trenton, was born Sunday, the thirteenth day of the month. In spite of the hoodoo little Miss Yates made a good start in life, being endowed with a hearty appetite and a justly pair of lungs. Six of the Yates boys are living.

After a jury had been drawn in the Camden Circuit Court Monday to try the $5,000 damage suit of John C. Rowand and wife against the Public Service Railroad Company, for injuries received by Mrs. Rowand when their horse took fright at a car, the opposing lawyers got together and agreed upon a settlement.

Mrs. Mary Zusnoski, of 29 Franklin street, Paterson, reported at police headquarters Monday afternoon that a man representing himself as being an inspector of the Passaic Water Company, came to her house, and on being admitted went through several of the rooms, apparently looking over the water pipes. When he departed she missed her gold wedding ring.

Frank Howard, nine years old, of Jersey City, started early with his Independence Day celebration by buying a cheap cartridge pistol and accidentally shooting ten-year-old Elizabeth Findlay in the cheek. The girl was removed to a hospital, and the boy was arrested. Esther Bollan, charged with selling the pistol to the boy, was arrested for violating the law that prohibits the sale of firearms to a minor.

Plans were completed Monday by the managers of the Young Women's Christian Association in Jersey City for the summer home which the association is to have this year at Pompton. Through the generosity of a friend money to rent and partly maintain the home for the season has been donated and a large house, having twelve rooms and spacious grounds in Pompton, has been taken. The place has a fine vegetable garden, a large lawn, many comforts and, last but not least, a horse.

Saying that he thought he had been given every chance to get through his examinations and that it was not fair to the other members of the class that he take the proposed re-examination, which the faculty of the Atlantic City High School had offered to those who had failed to pass, William Surran, of the senior class, refused to accept the opportunity to take the qualifying tests Monday. Surran, who captained both the football and track teams this year, is one of the most popular students at the school and his courageous stand has caused considerable comment. The majority of his friends uphold him and say the proposition of giving the six pupils who failed to get through their examinations a second chance is unusual, to say the least, and not fair to other classes.

Not Greatly Damaged.

Mrs. Dewtell—I do think Mr. Hankinson is the meanest man I ever heard of, without exception.

Mrs. Jenkins—Why, what's he been doing?

Mrs. Dewtell—Sued a man for alienation of his wife's affections and set the damages at only $10.—Judge's Library.

Little Barbara's Complaint.

Four-year-old Barbara went to church with her two sisters and came home crying.

"What is the matter, dear?" inquired her mother.

"He preached a whole sermon—about—M-Mary and Martha," sobbed Barbara, "and—never said—a w-word about me."—Lippincott's.

Miss Marie Brown, of New York, who has been visiting friends here, has returned home.

Many women whose occupation requires their time for most of the day have complained that our wonderful two-hour sales of hats, of which they have heard so much, have been ill-timed so far as they are concerned, because they cannot get to the store from 10 to 12, the hours during which most of our sales have been held.

CHAPTER III.

IN DISGUISE.

An hour later Mariano, the maitre d'hotel of the Regina Margherita, stepped out upon the terrace and began to lay a cloth upon one of the small round tables that stood close to the white marble balustrade. On the other side of the wall could be heard the mandolins and guitars of the fishermen, and Mariano glanced up crossly as the song arose upon the morning air.

"Silenzio!" he cried, and for a moment the music died down.

Mariano went at once to the table upon which he had spread the cloth and placed silverware and delicate china upon it, and he was thus engaged when Michele, the commissionnaire, appeared at the top of a flight of marble steps that led into the eastern wing of the hotel, fronting on the terrace.

"Here is M. Ribiere to see you, sir," he said softly, with a backward glance over his shoulder, and Mariano straightened up instantly, with a smile of welcome, for Ribiere was an old and valued accomplice in the gentle art of soft Italian legal stealing.

A tall, alert young Frenchman, clad in an English walking suit of gray and carrying a portfolio beneath his arm, ran lightly down the steps and approached the maitre d'hotel.

"Ah, Mariano!" he cried as he approached.

The genial Mariano bowed gracefully and rubbed his flexible hands together.

"M. Ribiere!" he chattered gayly. "This is one of the days of days"—

The music burst forth again, and he whirled about angrily in the direction of the lemon grove.

"Silenzio!" he cried, with waving hands. "Silenzio!" and turned again to Ribiere. Michele, with a glance at them, went back within the hotel.

Ribiere turned a warning glance toward the hotel and whispered in Italian:

"Let us speak Engleesh. Fewer understand."

Mariano again bowed and spread out his hands in assent.

"I hope m'sieu still occupy the exalt' position of secretar' to monseigneur the gran' duke."

The Frenchman walked quickly to one of the little wicker tea tables that were scattered about, sat down and opened his portfolio.

"We will not mention either the name or the rank of my employer," he said gravely. "There are reasons of state. You understand?"

The maitre d'hotel threw up his hands in despair, and his round eyes rolled heavenward.

"Again incognito! Every year he come to thees hotel for two, three or four day, but always incognito!"

Ribiere paid little attention to him, but opened a notebook and removed a fountain pen from his pocket. Mariano shrugged his shoulders and went on setting the table, then stopped and looked up.

"Each time we lose the honor to have it known," he went on. "In Naples, everywhere, are reech American peoples that would give large pourboire to mingle with his highness"—

The secretary lifted a warning finger.

"Have I not said it is to be incognito, and yet you prate of highness in the first breath. Would you wish he shall withdraw his patronage?" He looked staringly at the man opposite him. "See that you do not offend again." He consulted his watch.

"He comes in his machine from Naples. As on former visits, all is to be as before. No one must guess. To all he must be Herr Grollerhagen"—

"Herr Grollerhagen!" ejaculated Mariano quickly and with astonishment in his round features. "Herr Grollerhagen!"

"He wishes to be known as a German," went on M. Ribiere. "It pleases him to be so thought."

Mariano stood lost in contemplative astonishment.

"What a man," he sighed—"of caprice, eccentrique, so wonderful! Ha!"

The secretary smiled in a superior manner.

"You have said it. Last night he talked by chance to a strange North American in the hotel at Napoli. Apparently he is much interested. Today he has that stranger for companion in his automobile. I remonstrate. What use? He laugh for one-half the hour."

Again the maitre d'hotel remained lost in astonishment. For some moments he stood with the napkin in his hands gazing out over the wonderful bay that lay before the hotel.

"He is not like those cousin of his in Petersburg and Moscowa," he said at last, with a touch of awe in his tones. "And yet, though monseigneur is so good and generoso, will not the anarchist strike against the name of even royalty himself? You have not that fear?"

The secretary shivered in the soft warm air and seized his companion by the wrist.

"I have!" he said quickly. "He has not. I take what precautions I can secretly from him. But of what use? You have few patrons?"

A smile crossed Mariano's face, and he shrugged his shoulders expressively.

"It is yet so early in the season. "Those poor musician"—he pointed off beyond the gates—"they wait always at every gate to play when they shall see any one coming, but of late they are disappoint. Within, with us in the hotel, are but seex people, all of one party!"

An expression of relief crossed the Frenchman's face, and he opened his notebook quickly.

"Good!" he murmured. "Who are they?"

Mariano scratched his head with one ruminative finger and bent his brows upon the table in thought.

"There is milor', an English excellency—the Earl of Hawcastle; there is also his son, the excellency honorabile Almeric St. Aubyn; there is Miladi Creeshe, an English miladi, who is sister-in-law to Milor' Hawcastle."

Quickly Ribiere jotted down the names in his book and then looked up.

"Three English," he said. "Good so far. Those English are safe."

Mariano went on:

"There is an American signorina, Mees Granger-Seempsone. Miladi Creeshe travel with her to be chaperon." Here he became enthusiastic as the memory of sundry pieces of gold and silver wakened his keen thoughts. "She is young, generoso; she give money to every one; she is multa bella, so pretty, weeth charm"—

"You mean this Lady Creeshe?" interrupted the Frenchman, with a puzzled frown.

"No, no, no!" cried Mariano in horrified amazement. "Miladi Creeshe is ole lady and does not hear so well; quite deaf; no pourboires; nothing. I speak of the young American lady, Mees Granger-Seempsone, who the English honorabile son of Milor' Hawcastle wishes to espouse, I think."

Ribiere wrote rapidly in his notebook and without looking up said:

"Who else is there?"

"There is the brother of Mees Granger-Seempsone, a young gentleman from also North America. He make the eyes all the day at another lady, who is of the party, a French lady, Comtesse de Champigny. Ha, eet amuse me!" And he burst into a respectful titter.

"Always incognito!"

Ribiere looked at him with grave astonishment and bent once more to his notebook, over which the pen flew with a practiced hand.

"Why?" he said shortly.

Mariano smothered his mirth with the napkin he carried and with an effort controlled himself.

"Becoss," he answered—"becoss I have thought that madame the comtesse is so good a friend of the ol' English Milor' Hawcastle. A maitre d'hotel see many things, eh, and I think Milor' Hawcastle and madame have known each other from long perhaps. This dejeuner is for them; also I think from what I hear that both have been in Russia one time. They spik logezzer in Russ."

"Pouf! They will not recognize my employer," said Ribiere, "no more than this North American who travels with him and who is as innocent as a babe. Set dejeuner on the table instantly, when he shall arrive, for two—a perch, petit pois, iced figs, tea. I will send his own caviare and vodka from what I carry."

"Va bene, signor!" answered Mariano and vanished into the hotel.

BASEBALL.

Manager Dorflinger of the Plainfield Baseball Club is playing Harrington, formerly of Holy Cross club at short and the youngsters is certainly making a hit.

On Saturday, June 26, Manager Dorflinger's team will play its first game with Dave Driscoll's fast team at New Brunswick. A return game will be played here later.

The Eastern League race is remarkable in that six of the eight clubs are below the .500 mark in games won and lost.

Wonder whether Walsh will be sent in twice in a series in the other cities.

Mr. Kerin of the American League staff is the most emotional strike caller ever heard. He puts his whole soul in it.

It would be nice if the Giants could repeat that four straight dose in Pittsburg. However, two there will suffice.

In Mullin's eleven straight victories his opponents have averaged less than six hits a game.

"Just wait until the Bostons, New Yorks and Athletics strike the hot weather the latter part of July and August and you'll see them fade away and the Washingtons be at their best," prophesies Moriarty of Detroit, dady of all the seers. May be it won't be hot then.

Chester Nourse, the Brown University pitcher, has signed a contract with the Boston-American club and will join the team tomorrow. Shortstop Gardner of the University of Vermont will join the team today.

Charter Day Lawn Fete.

Under the auspices of the Nonpariel Social Club, a grand Charter Day lawn fete will be held at the club's spacious pavilion and grounds on St. Mary's avenue, near Berckman street, where refreshments and other attractions will be offered. The affair will be held on the afternoon and evening of July 5, 6 and 7. Prof. J. J. Porter's orchestra, of Elizabeth, will furnish the music for dancing. C. J. Mackoy is chairman of the general committee. The officers of the club are as follows: President, John W. Maury; vice-president, Robert Stevens; recording secretary, T. Henry Karney; sergeant-at-arms, William H. Daniels; general secretary, William H. Jones; treasurer, Dr. J. C. Anderson.

Exercises at Groszmann School.

The pupils of the Groszmann School will present the play, "Thornrose or the Sleeping Beauty," in the school auditorium at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon. In connection with the exercises it is expected that addresses will be made by Dr. S. Adolphus Knopf, of New York; Dr. A. B. Poland, of Newark; Dr. S. P. Godhart, of New York, and Charles Everett Neier, of this city. Conveyances will be in waiting at the end of the Somerset street trolley to carry guests to the school. Admission will be by complimentary tickets.

Funeral of Mrs. Catherine Mehl.

The funeral of Mrs. Catherine Mehl, of West Second street, took place from her late residence yesterday afternoon. The service was conducted by the Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. Among the many floral tributes was a large bouquet sent by the fire department of which her son, George Mehl, Jr., is a member. F. B. Ham Charged With Forgery.

Frank B. Ham, civil engineer and preacher (not ordained), of Cranford and Westfield, and a petit juror, was arrested today on a charge of forgery and released under a $500 bail bond. It is claimed that he forged a deed. The trial is set down for July 8. Foster M. Voorhees is his counsel.

AN UNWILLING PIRATE.

Some time last October the old ship Dessoug foundered at sea, says Youth's Companion. It had had a long career, beginning with its launching in Scotland about 1864, and ending in the humble capacity of a coap transport. Its great feat was the bringing to this country, at the expense of William H. Vanderbilt, of Cleopatra's Needle, which the Khedive of Egypt had presented to the city of New York. A writer in the Brooklyn Eagle tells the story of this famous voyage.

Nobody had ever heard of the Dessoug when Lieutenant H. H. Gorringe was commissioned to go to Alexandria to bring home the obelisk. Twenty-five thousand dollars bought the boat from a steamship company in the eastern Mediterranean. Two plates were removed from the bows, and the gigantic obelisk was rolled right into the inside, where it was made secure, and the plates replaced. Although the Dessoug met with a terrible storm on the way across the ocean, and although the machinery was disabled, the vessel rode it out in safety, and brought the priceles cargo intact to port.

The real romance of the trip, however, lay in quite a different direction. When Lieutenant Gorringe decided to buy the Dessoug, commercial complications arose. He was warned that if he applied for clearance papers a score or more attachments would be placed on the boat because of debts owing to English and Greek merchants by the Khedive. Accordingly, as soon as the obelisk was aboard, and properly fastened, the ship put to sea without any formality.

Congress did not allow the American flag to fly over the craft which had been built abroad, and the captain did not dare to raise the Egyptian colors because he had not officially "cleared" from the Alexandria custom-house. Therefore the Dessoug was literally a piratical boat, and fair prize for any civilized nation that captured it.

The lieutenant took the precaution to write to the Governor of Gibraltar, the only port at which he intended to stop, stating the exact facts, and asking that he direct the officer who came aboard to make a very superficial examination.

Just before leaving Alexandria the name of the boat—Dessoug—was painted on the quarters and on the bows in letters a yard high. This was in order to enable the identity to be fixed by any vessel which meditated firing a shot across its bows.

Arriving at Gibraltar Lieutenant Gorringe called upon the Governor and explained the situation. The Governor comprehended the absurdity of the case and allowed the nationless craft to coal and provision at his port. Had he chosen he could have seized the Dessoug and sent the treasure in the hold to be erected on the Thames embankment.

English Divine to Preach Here.

Rev. and Mrs. A. C. Nickerson have left for England where they will spend the summer. During June and July Mr. Nickerson, who is pastor of All Souls Unitarian church, has arranged an exchange of pulpits with Rev. William Lyddon Tucker, of Bridport, Dorset, England. Mr. Tucker is a graduate of Oxford University and is pastor of one of the largest Unitarian churches of southern England.

Philathea Class Elects.

At the business meeting of the Philathea class, held at the Temple Baptist church last evening, the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Charles Griffen; vice president, Miss Fraser; secretary, Mrs. Edward Baker; treasurer, Mrs. Peck; financial secretary, Miss Edna Carson; teacher, U. B. Crane; assistant teacher, Miss Ida Hodkins; press agent, Mrs. W. C. LaRue.

Wants to Change His Name.

Rev. Dr. Henry Hale Sleeper, the well-known rector of Grace Episcopal church, Elizabeth, announces that he will apply to the Court of Common Pleas for permission to change his name to Henry Hale Gifford. He will make the application at the court house in Elizabeth, Wednesday morning, July 14, at 10 o'clock.

Approaching Wedding.

His Status.

"Is that ex-New Yorker who likes London so well a naturalized Englishman?"

"No," answered Miss Cayenne, "merely a denatured American."—Democratic Telegram.

Morris Hunter will lead the Christian Endeavor Society meeting at Hope chapel, tonight. The topic will be "The Hill of Difficulty."

MEDALS FOR GRADUATES

In the Absence of Bishop, Priest Presents the Diplomas at Mt. St. Mary's.

BIG CROWD AT EXERCISES.

Interesting Program Rendered at First and Commencement of Girls' School.

Owing to a sudden indisposition The Right Reverend James A. McFaul was prevented from presiding at the commencement exercises of Mount Saint Mary's College yesterday afternoon and the obligation fell upon Father W. H. Miller who discharged the functions of the occasion with tact, and in a short speech deplored the inability of the bishop to be present.

Father Miller presented the diplomas and hung be-ribboned gold medals around the necks of the graduates who had won distinction in their studies.

There were about 300 relatives and friends of the college gathered in the natural amphitheatre when the exercises began and this number was increased until nearly 400 were within the shade of the mountain nook.

After a selection by the orchestra, the chorus "Our Festal Day" was beautifully sung by the students. This was followed by the salutatory address by Miss E. C. Kahny which was applauded. Gold medals were then given to the graduates as follows: Miss Annabel Elizabeth Jones, of Goldsboro, N. C., medal presented by Monsignor O'Farrel; Miss Irene Austin Smith, of Plainfield, medal given by Bishop McFaul, also that given for proficiency in Latin by Rev. [illegible], of Raritan; Miss Mary Catharine Hahny, of Princeton, a medal given by Right Reverend Mons. Brady, of South Amboy; Miss Grace Regina Rafferty, of Plainfield, medal given by Thomas Scully, of South Amboy; Miss Margaret Frances O'Hara, of New York City, that given by Mrs. David Kenny, of Plainfield; and Miss Annabel Elizabeth Jones, for proficiency in music, a medal given by Rev. Wm. H. Miller.

Miss Irene Smith read an essay, "Joan of Arc," which was followed by the address of the day by Hon. John D. Prince.

A solo and chorus, "Mountain Maid's Revel," followed by some

YOUTHFUL BIKE THIEF HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Caught as he was riding away on the wheel belonging to Horace E. Vail, which he had stolen from in front of Charles E. Vail's jewelry store on Park avenue, Anthony Cudlick, sixteen years old, arrested by Patrolman Nolan, was held in $200 bail to await the action of the grand jury by City Judge William N. Runyon at the session of the city court today. There was no bondsman, and Cudlick who came to this city from Cranford, was taken to the Elizabeth jail this afternoon.

The young Slav seemed confused by the accusation brought against him by young Vail, the bike owner. He said that he had just come from Cranford yesterday morning, and stopped by the City National Bank building to rest. The wheel was near him, and according to his story, a man standing by it told him that he might take it and go for a ride. "I did not feel like I want to ride far," said Cudlick, "and anyhow I be no ver' good rider, but I sit on the seat, you see, and when I start off, somebody run quick out of the store and stop me. I get off and take the bicycle wheel back."

Young Vail spotted the theft, which is one of a long series which have been reported within a month, with the aid of mirrors in the jewelry store. He saw the reflection of the rider as he started off and made the capture himself.

TENANT MUST PAY RENT

Landlord's Action Brings Out Facts of Domestic Disagreement.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT.

Wife Surprised When Husband Denies in Court That They Had Separated.

There was only one contested action in the District court, this morning, that of the landlord and tenant case of Mrs. Catherine Meyers against George W. Jaekel, both of Summit. Charles M. Dolliver, as counsel of record, was assisted by Charles La C. Hoff, of this city, in trying the case for the complainant. LeRoy Gibby, of Summit, was counsel for the defendant.

Mr. Jaekel, who is associated with the law firm of Dickerson, Brown, Raegener & Matty, of 141 Broadway, New York, was a tenant of Mrs. Meyers at 84 Elm street, Summit, from 1905 to May 1, 1908, when it was shown by the testimony that he sold all his personal property and left the premises owing $300, which was the state of demand.

Mr. Hoff, while cross-examining Mr. Jaekel, caused a bit of a sensation to an otherwise uninteresting case, by asking the defendant if it was not true that his wife left him and taking her children, went to Atlantic City, implying that it was for this reason that he sold his personal property and left the premises with the rent unpaid.

The defendant vigorously denied that his wife had left him, while Mrs. Jaekel, who was present in court, added weight to the declaration by a show of great surprise and suppressed laughter directed toward her husband.

The defendant declared that his reason for not paying the rent claimed was that the landlord had promised to make certain repairs and had failed. One of the chief causes for complaint seemed to be a range, which Mr. Jaekel said was in such bad repair that it could not be used.

Mr. Meyers, who is the agent for his wife in property matters, testified that practically all the repairs called for were made and more besides. His wife concurred in his statements.

Judge William Newcorn in deciding the case, said that the tenant had

FAIRY FOLK IN PLAYLET

Little People of Holy Cross Church Present "A Night in Slumberland."

NETTED $50 FOR MISSIONS.

Two Score Junior Auxiliary Members Please Large Audience as Fairy Tale Characters.

If you didn't you should have! Should have what? Seen "A Night in Slumberland," at Holy Cross Parish house last night. Say! it was great! Cast chosen from the Junior Auxiliary of Holy Cross church, and forty-three pressed into service. It was like this—At twilight in a garden in Slumberland, Jack of the Beanstalk and Cinderella meet after Jack has put the Babes in the woods to sleep and talk over the great event—The crowning of Nemo. Jack says it is to be preceded by a lawn party in the garden and Red Riding Hood, running in, laments the probability of Flip finding out, telling his uncle and spoiling all the fun.

Just this happens in the second act after the lawn fete, where all the little people of Slumberland come and are presented to Nemo; Flip, sneaking in unseen, making side remarks to the audience up to his final arrest by the Brownie Policemen, caused much laughter. Perhaps the best of all was the Cat Comedians and their play given for Nemo, "The Three Little Kittens."

The last scene was after the lawn fete. The arrest of Flip in the garden, the three cronies talking it over, Jack of the Beanstalk, Red Riding Hood, Cinderella, all pleased the large audience. The strident Jack, the dear glass slipper—loving "Cindy," and the bashful Red Riding Hood won lots of applause.

The whole was greatly enhanced by Miss Laura Bristol's singing, a feature in itself. Perhaps her "Fairy Lullaby," sung as Jack put the Babes to sleep at midnight was the sweetest.

The stage was arranged for a garden scene with hayrick, bean pole and garden gate, all profusely decorated with green boughs and daisies and played upon by twinkling electric stars, wonderful to behold.

Not last among the wonders were the "Curly Locks Sundaes" sold between the acts by crepe paper gowned "Flowers" and tinseled "Stars." This was in charge of Mrs. Allen, Miss Ruth Burt and Miss Lundborg.

And now, of course, you want to know about the acting. Who wouldn't! With the pen of a ready writer let us assert that the honors were about divided between Bertha Kellar as "Jack," Ruth Deitz as "Cinderella," Florrie Cornwell as "Red Riding Hood," and Margery Chandler as "Flip." And who shall forget the "Knave of Hearts," Grace Wakefield, as she fell over the garden gate, minding the tarts she stole from the Queen! And let's not overlook Miss Florence Small, the "Princess," and Ethel Journeaux as "Nemo," with their followings.

Mrs. Florence Deitz was in charge of the costumes and the production was under the management of Miss Iola Moore and Miss Miriam Carman, who coached the little girls.

The cast of characters follows:

Princess, Florence Small; Nemo, Ethel Journeaux; Candy Kid, Ethel Hall; Flip, Margery Chandler; Jack of the Beanstalk, Bertha Kellar; Cinderella, Ruth Deitz; Red Riding Hood, Florence Cornwell; Babes in the Woods, Nettie Rilling and Blanche Dein; Mother Goose, Charlotte Waddams; Little Bo-Peep, Virginia Powell; Mistress Mary, Gussie Bremmer; Miss Muffett, Elizabeh Voorhees; Boy Blue, Margery Burtis; Jack Horner, Dorothy Keller; Knave of Hearts, Grace Wakefield; Simple Simon, Mabel Rilling; Jack and Jill, Edna Smith and Ethel Rilling; Curly Locks, Emma Mantz; Three Little Kittens, Leila Journeaux, Francis Dien and Edith Lee; Mother Tabby, Selina Cornwell; Pages, Grace Cornwell and Marion Alster; Tom, the Piper's Son, Lydia Schemp; Brownies, Harriette Morgan, Dorothea Rushmore, Helen Lee, Grace Brewer, Marguerite Barkalew and Marian Blair; Flowers, Gladys Deitz, Katherine Stevens, Marion Wooley, Violet Mourey, Grace VanDenburgh and Anna Blume; Stars, May Hoagland, Pauline Mourey, Ruth Small and Louise Sill.

James Lindzey was stage manager and the electrical effects were arranged by William Little. The "properties" were in charge of George Ball and Raymond Mosher with Howard Riley were the ticket collectors. The affair netted $50 and the money will be used for missions partially supported by the auxiliary.

DEMOCRATS FORM CLUB

LeRoy Ellis Chosen President of the Local Jeffersonian Association.

JAMES F. CONNELLY SPEAKS.

County Chairman Wm. E. Tuttle and James E. Martine Also Address the Meeting.

About twenty Democrats assembled last night in the Coward building, 109 Park avenue, for the purpose of forming a permanent and effective organization, which will assume an important and active part in the coming fall campaign.

The meeting was started promptly at 9 o'clock, with Harry W. Marshall in the chair. Mr. Marshall spoke very briefly and to the point about the "call," which had been sent out regarding the advisability of forming a Democratic club. Mr. Marshall introduced William Tuttle, of Westfield, chairman of the Democratic County Committee, who spoke on national, State and local issues in an interesting way.

James F. Connolly, city counsel, of Elizabeth, then spoke at great length on the Democratic party, reviewing its work and contrasting it with that of the party now in power. Among the things worth remembering he said "Contrary to the general belief, foreigners who enter these United Staes, and in time become naturalized, turn, not to the Democratic party, but to the Republican."

"This is due to the fact that the new citizens are not thoroughly familiar with the Jeffersonian principles, and if the Democratic party would by means of lectures, and pamphlets inculcate the Democratic doctrines in these voters the percentage of gain would be enormous."

Getting down to local matters, Mr. Connolly said: "I believe such an organization as we have in Elizabeth would be highly effective here. We let the young blood run the club, and older Democrats, who hold official positions give their advice and assistance in every way. Thus we have a highly effective organization and there is no logical reason why a similar organization should not be successful in this Republican stronghold."

Of course James E. Martine was there and spoke about the Democratic club of former years. He then moved that a Democratic club be formed in the city of Plainfield. His motion was carried unanimously. P. J. Reville then placed LeRoy J. Ellis in nomination for president of the club and he received a rising vote, everyone present getting to his feet. Mr. Ellis attempted to dodge the election but his declination was floored. A secretary pro. tem. was then appointed.

On a motion president Ellis appointed the following as a committee on constitution and by-laws, Harry W. Marshall, J. O. Stevens and R. B. Cory, who will report at the next meeting on July 21.

Mr. Martine suggested that the election officers be nominated at the next meeting which will be done. On motion of Mr. Marshall the city executive committee of Elizabeth and the county committee were invited to be present at the next meeting of the club. Mr. Connolly spoke in favor of this motion and said that he would suggest that no elaborate preparations be made and that liquid refreshments be dispensed with. Following is a list of those present:

J. O. Stevens, W. H. Brokaw, J. E. Martine, C. A. Sturtevant, LeRoy J. Ellis, Frank J. Shattle, W. B., John and P. J. Conley, J. V. F. Dilts, Peter Flynn, John Casey, James and John C. McCarthy, A. F. Marsh, R. B. Cory, H. W. Marshall, P. J. Reville, John F. and Thomas McCarthy.

Announcement is made of the approaching marriage of Miss Beatrice Nash, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles I. Nash, of DeLacy avenue, and Charles Edgar Pettit, of Bound Brook. The ceremony will take place Wednesday evening, July 7, at the home of Miss Nash's parents, and the couple will reside in Chicago, where Mr. Pettit has been appointed western manager for a large New York jewelry house.

"NO JUNKET" SAYS CHIEF

Mr. Kiely, in Address at Police Chiefs' Convention, Denies Some Insinuations.

AT SESSION IN BUFFALO.

Local Police Head Tells of Opposition to Sendinf Convention Delegate to the Gathering.

Taking exception to the insinuations that delegates to the International Association of Police Chiefs' convention enjoy "grand rounds of pleasure at the expense of the poor tax-payer," Chief of Police Patrick S. Kiely, of this city, who represents the Plainfield "finest" at the big convention in session at Buffalo, spoke today before the assembled police heads at the Hotel Iroquois there, pointing out the various ways in which previous conventions have been a help to him in the management of the police department.

When the Common Council voted to allow Mr. Kiely, who has long been a member of the international association, to attend the convention now being held in Buffalo, the value of his attendance there was discussed at length by the city fathers. It was finally decided to appropriate $100 to defray the Chief's expenses, but he will be called upon to make a report of the sessions and must tender an "expense account." The final session of the convention will be held tomorrow.

Mr. Kiely's speech follows:

"I have been requested by your worthy President, Mayor Sylvester, to prepare a paper to be read before this convention, I am sorry he has not assigned any particular subject for me and, as all the great subjects have already been extensively treated, I have myself chosen one, which seems pertinent and practical. A question much discussed in a great many cities is as to whether or not it is a good thing to send Chief of Police to attend this annual convention, and whether or not there is any education derived therefrom. In fact some of our legislators ask whether these conventions are not mere play for the various members of this association, grand rounds of pleasure at the expense of the poor tax payer.

"The first convention I attended was in New York city nine years ago. I have not missed one since that time and I consider it has been a great education to me in police matters and has resulted in great benefit to my city and people. All other cities here represented, I believe have received a like benefit. I wonder if you ever stop to think about this great body of men, who meet annually in various places from all over this great country. To my mind this convention is an intellectual body composed of members selected from the various municipalities for their superior knowledge of police matters, as I am sure politics has not entered into the question of any of your appointments. In the city, which I have the honor to represent, no member has ever been questioned as to his political affiliations. We require a mental and physical examination, as well as good moral character, and when a man measures up to the standard in these respects, he gains his position irrespective of all other considerations.

"I have devoted the best part of my life to police affairs, having been a member of the police force for twenty years and having patrolled for ten years. I feel that my success as an officer has been gained in large part through my being a member of this great association, and I also believe were it not for this association and its effective grasp on police matters throughout the States, legislators would frown on police officers and the criminal classes would run rampant without detection or the fear of detection. In our unity there is the strength, which comes from joining to help one another. The one great object is to advance the efficiency of the American police system. This is a grand and noble work, which should call for the assistance of our lawmakers, particularly those having charge of our police departments.

"This association was organized in Chicago, Illinois, May 18, 1903, and to my mind it is one of the grandest organizations in this great country. It has already been productive of great good, the prevention of crime and the apprehension of criminals in the United States being its watch word.

"Among the police departments of this great country today there is a constant telegraphic correspondence and the effectiveness of one department depends in a great measure upon the organization of the other. To bring the various police departments into more friendly relations, is the principal object of this asso-

ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS CAMP

Plainfield League Will Start Its Crusade Against the "White Plague" Here.

FAVOR HOSPITAL CONTROL.

A Model Tuberculosis Camp Will be Conducted Experimentally for Six Months.

An enthusiastic meeting of the Plainfield Anti-Tuberculosis Society was held last night in the parish house of Grace church. It was a joint meeting and was attended by a committee representing Muhlenberg Hospital. Among those present were Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, president of the society; J. W. Murray, Dr. B. Van D. Hedges, James Murray, William Dutcher, Duncan W. Taylor, Samuel Huntington, William S. Tyler, Hugh F. Fox, E. F. Feickert, George Holstein, Dr. F. E. Du Bois, Mrs. Samuel Huntington and Miss Georgiana Smith.

After considerable discussion the society decided to ask the co-operation of Muhlenberg Hospital in the maintainance of the proposed camp. A committee from that institution met with the society Monday night, and a member of the Board of Governors made the suggestion that the hospital establish an outdoor camp for the treatment of tuberculosis; also that the hospital should have entire management and control of the same, selecting the site for the camp.

It was understood, however, that the society should supply the funds to carry on the work and should name all the patients. This proposition was presented last night and agreed upon. It was decided to establish a camp for six months as an experiment.

The finance committee is now ready to receive any contributions for the work or such contributions may be sent to Rev. Mr. Stevenson, the president.

The Plainfield society has for some time been planning to inaugurate a campaign against tuberculosis. It is now conceded that if taken in time tuberculosis is curable and for that reason the Plainfield society is anxious to adopt the methods of prevention and cure.

Tuberculosis is divided into two classes for treatment, the hospital for advanced stages and the sanatorium for the curable type. The Plainfield society has applied itself particularly to the second class or curable cases. The society will now seek a suitable site for the camp, one where there is plenty of fresh air. The best of food and medical attention will be furnished patients admitted to the camp.

GOLF.

At the meeting of the club delegates at Muirfield on the eve of the British amateur championship the very sensible proposal of the Tantallon Club was adopted to retain the present five championship courses and every sixth year to play the competition on another green, such green to be chosen by the delegates at their annual meeting a year before the new green falls to be played on. This ends the agitation to abolish the rota and to assume yearly elective functions. The plan retains the old courses that are so rich in historical and sporting recollections, yet permits at due intervals a visit to an entirely new scene, a concession that will give variety to the circuit and do much to strengthen the game in the localities to be selected. The first championship outside the five links is slated for an Irish green.

Birkdale, where Miss Dorothy Cameron recently won the British women's championship, has its faults, and there is much criticism that a better green had not been selected. An Irish player when asked what she thought of the course replied: "There isn't enough grass on it to feed a pig."

In reviewing the British amateur championship for Golf Illustrated F. Kinloch makes this comment on Travers: "A lot of interest was shown in the Travers-Henderson match. The American had not been playing in his proper form, still those who did not know how well Mr. Henderson could play expected him to win. It may be said at once that though Mr. Henderson made a few mistakes it was no disgrace for Mr. Travers to be beaten, for Mr. Henderson was driving as straight and as far as any one. Mr. Travers generally had to play the odd off the tee, and he did not put very well, missing a very important one at the thirteenth, but he played his chip shots, as Ben Sayers said to me, like a professional, and it was easy to see that on his best he would be a most difficult man to beat. As it was Mr. Henderson had to hole an eight yard put to win by 2."

It has been decided to postpone the four ball match for pairs made up of a woman and a professional, originally scheduled for Tuesday at the Englewood Golf Club, to Tuesday, June 22, if it can be arranged then, so as not to conflict with the team match between the Eastern and Western professionals.

There are to date only sixteen entries booked for the open championship of the United States Golf Association. The nominations include Tom Vardon, the English player, but George Duncan, of Scotland, had not been heard from. Secretary R. C. Watson is the only amateur to be named. The list closes on Wednesday and the competition will be at the Englewood Golf Club, June 24 and 25.

Tom Anderson, Sr., has fixed a big mirror against his shop back of the eighteenth green at the Montclair Golf Club to aid him in instructing new players and to correct the faults of old ones. The method is an old one at riding schools, but this plan to let golfers "see themselves as others see them" is new on the links.

"TAG DAY."

As the Elizabeth Journal pointed out editorially yesterday, Plainfield is an exceptional city. It is a community known beyond the borders of the State for its civic pride and for its charity work. Second to none among its many noble benevolent organizations is The City Union of King's Daughters. This worthy body of women conducts a day nursery, and a baby camp, both of which institutions are so well known that any explanation of their usefulness is needless. It also supports a city nurse. It is for these that "tag day" will be observed on Saturday. Remember this fact when you are "tagged" and give according to your means for the maintenance of these charities.

BAPTIST CHURCH GROWTH

New Edifice Built Every Fifteen Hours Says Rev. Mr. Folsom.

BAPTISMS EVERY 3 MINUTES.

More Than $22,268,900 Was Raised in New Jersey Last Year.

Remarkable Showing Made.

An interesting lecture illustrated with stereopticon views was given last night in the First Baptist church by Rev. J. E. R. Folsom, field secretary of the New Jersey State Baptist Convention. The audience was not large but very attentive and many facts relating to the remarkable development of the denomination were demonstrated.

Mr. Folsom said that the present density of the population of the State was about 300 to the square mile and was growing at a tremendous rate and that this growth is largely made up of foreign born people. If this increase continues," he said, "New Jersey will become the greatest manufacturing State in the Union." Governor Fort was quoted as saying that we would soon have from one and a half to two millions of actual population along the shore from Sandy Hook to Cape May.

"This remarkable fact," Mr. Folsom said, "makes it apparent that this is our opportunity as well as our problem. These new comers have got to be taken seriously and they must be taught."

Some of the statistics thrown on the screen showed that in 1908 a new church was built every fifteen hours, and there was a baptism every three minutes during the year. This was increased to one every two minutes in 1909. The money raised for Baptist church purposes amounted to $22,268,992 in 1908. The State missions also made the greatest progress of any of the denominations, the State Convention, being largely responsible for this result. 135 of the present large number of Baptist churches were built during the last eighteen years.

Mr. Folsom said that the churches are increasing at a rate never before equalled anywhere. There is now no need to cross the ocean to become a foreign missionary. The foreigners are coming to us. Italians were referred to as the most progressive element now arriving in this country and it is natural that they should follow the man, a fellow countryman, who discovered it. The American youth will some day wake up and find that he is working for an Italian. The Italian boy is the one who can start with a bunch of bananas and in a few years be the master of a $60,000 business

Among the slides thrown on the screen were photographs of the prominent workers among the foreign people, who have established churches and missions and who are masters of the language spoken by the people among whom the missionary work is carried on.

Speaking of the colored race Mr. Folsom said that as they become able to read they naturally read the Bible and in the Bible they read of John The Baptist, and taking the facts narrated in the book literally, they of course become Baptists. There are many colored people deeply interested in the missionary work among their own race.

Believing that the lack of parsonages is responsible for many of the failures that have occurred in the country districts the energies of the convention have been directed toward the buying or building of suitable houses for the ministers in charge, with surprising results for betterment. Young peoples' societies have also been encouraged to work along lines calculated to increase their interest in the general missionary work an dthey are developing a wonderful work.

By this decision the deduction obtained by "Count" Van Ness in the lower court of two payments of $500 and $1,000, with interest, amounting to $2,965.76, is allowed in reduction of the amount originally denied.

ciation, and these conventions have succeeded in doing this. The powers that govern and control police departments should be composed of men with characters above reproach. They should be non-partisian in their political ideas and have no scruples in performing their duty, regardless of political or any other influences. When the police departments in the various municipalities of this country shall be governed, as far as possible, according to one common standard, a grand improvement over the present systems will be the result.

"Nothing is more demoralizing to a police department than the interference of men outside of the department, men who have personal or political axes to grind; of the scheming of some officers against their superiors to secure power as a reward for past services. This association assuredly deserves to flourish and it will continue to suppress crime in the future as it has done in the past, without fear or favor."

MEDALS FOR GRADUATES

physical culture exercises by twenty-four young women were well received and a chorus of which an Ave Maria, sung by a number of hidden voices, was the feature, was finely done.

The closing number brought the audience to its feet. A flag drill executed by fourteen boys, ending with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner, being the means.

Will Escape From a Trunk.

"The Great Alvin," who is playing a week's engagement at Proctor's theatre, will attempt a new trick, tonight, that of getting out of a Taylor iron-bound trunk, sent here especially for the purpose. If he succeeds the trunk will be presented to him. He will be securely handcuffed before entering the trunk. Last night he got out of a U. S. mail sack in less than a minute. Barnett & Maxim, the comedy acrobats, are the great daughing hit of the show.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The South Plainfield Juniors have secured the field on Park avenue, between the Plainfield Riding and Driving club's track and the home of C. Brower. The club will use the field for Sunday ball only, playing at other times on the Front street grounds.

A very successful strawberry and ice cream festival was held last night in Washington hall for the benefit of the First Baptist church. Despite the rival attraction, the tent show, the hall was filled to its capacity and was prettily decorated.

Miss Ellen Ostrye, a teacher in the local school, has accepted an appointment in one of the Perth Amboy public schools for next term.

The first game will be played on the new grounds next Sunday when the Juniors meet the Imperials of Plainfield.

The remains of the old grist mill, which was burned last January, are now being cleared away.

pursued the wrong course in vacating the premises, if additional repairs were to be made, besides he was called upon to give the landlord three months notice, under the terms of the lease. In consequence the defendant was bound by the agreement. Accordingly he gave the complainant judgment for $300, the amount of demand.

TRAIN HITS TROLLEY; BOROUGHITE INJURED

Cormack Muldowney, of Somerset street, the borough, was among those injured in a collision yesterday afternoon between a trolley car and a New Jersey Central stone train, at the grade crossing near Polhemus creek, Findern. He was brought to his home and is under the care of Dr. Albert Pittis. His injuries consist chiefly of cuts and bruises.

Several residents of South Bound Brook and Somerville, passengers on the trolley car, were injured. Mrs. F. T. Karn, Mrs. John Wall and Mrs. John Stuart, of the former place, being among those whose injuries are likely to prove fatal.

The accident is said to be due to carelessness on the part of the crew of the trolley car who failed to use the derailer at that point. William Murphy, of North avenue, was the engineer in charge of the train and was on his way to the stone quarry at Chimney Rock.

There is a short curve near the place of the accident and Murphy failed to see the car in time to prevent a collision. The car was completely wrecked. A majority of the passengers escaped injury by jumping. The wrecked trolley was in charge of Joseph Campbell, conductor, and J. J. Jones, motorman, both of New Brunswick. Both escaped injury.

FREEHOLDERS PLAN BRIDGE TO BE BUILT AT NEW MARKET.

The county engineer of Somerset county has been instructed to prepare plans for a bridge to be constructed over Bound Brook and the New Market stream at New Market, and Freeholders Bunting and Stacy were named as a committee to confer with the engineer at the meeting of the Middlesex County Board of Freeholders held at the New Brunswick court house yesterday.

The Suffolk County Construction Company was awarded the contract for the construction of the gravel road to be built between Deans and Franklin Park, their bid of $8,984 being the lowest. Morris Tervol was awarded the contract for the construction of the Jefferson avenue county line road, between Middlesex and Union counties. His bid for the work was $4,942. The report of County Collector H. R. Groves showed a balance of $11,229.69 for the month of May.

"TAG DAY" A BLESSING AND NOT A NUISANCE.

Any persons who are dreading the approach of "Tag Day," feeling that untold terrors and "hold-ups" are in store for them, may well lay aside their fears. "Tag Day" is not going to prove a nuisance, but rather a blessing. You will be "tagged," of course, unless you stay indoors all day, but you will only be asked to give such amount as you feel you can spare, and one "tagging" is all you will get. The badge given you will protect you from all other busy young persons.

No big amounts are asked or expected, but on the principle that "many a mickle makes a muckle," the Tag Day Committee feels that if numberless tiny sums are contributed, the result on Saturday evening will be most gratifying to all well-wishers of the worthy charities. Your aid is greatly desired. Please be one of the cheerful givers.

MISS OLIVE RANDALL BECOMES MRS. BAKKER

Miss Olive Amanda Randall, daughter of Mrs. Ruth E. Randall, of Plainfield avenue, was the bride of Fred Bakker, Jr., of Plainfield avenue, last night, when the wedding ceremony was performed at her mother's home in the presence of a small gathering of relatives and immediate friends. Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church, officiated, assisted by Rev. C. Alfred Bakker, a brother of the groom, who has recently graduated from a theological seminary.

The bride was daintily gowned in a white Princess dress, trimmed with old point lace; she wore a tuille veil, caught up with orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of bridal roses. Attending her as maid of honor was Miss Florence King, of North Plainfield. Miss King wore an Empire gown of old rose, and carried a shower bouquet. The flower girl was little Miss Grace Quick, of Whitestone, Long Island. Herman Bakker, a brother of the groom, was best man.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, which took place at 8 o'clock in the evening, a wedding collation was served and shortly afterward the couple left for their honeymoon. They will make their home in this city. Mr. Bakker is employed at the Potter Press Works. He is a native of Holland, where his father, Rev. Frederick Bakker, is in charge of a Dutch Reformed church at Rotterdam.

Buy Church Edifice.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association closed a deal this morning with the Church of Christ, by which it obtained possession of the property on Grove street belonging to that denomination. The association has paid $1,000 in cash, thus reducing the mortgage to $2,000. The building will be converted in a club rom and a gymnasium. There will also be a class room for Bible study.

The Wise Squirrel

It was on a beautiful sunny day in April, of this year, that a cunning gray squirrel with a long bushy tail and large erect ears, came cautiously up to where I sat on the porch, and took from my hand a nice big English Walnut, cracked it and swallowed the meats. Two more nuts he ate in like manner, and the fourth, a butternut, he carried to his burrow natural bank, (a hole in the ground near a tree) and left it as a "Savings Deposit."

One-fourth of his "gettings" the wise squirrel saved. He is promised no interest on his deposit, and yet he is wiser than, the man, woman, boy or girl who is allowed interest but who is not putting away something every week, in the South through Long Branch (immediately adjoining Port-au-Peck), West End, Hollywood, Elberon, Deal Beach and on to Asbury Park, returning inland through the residential districts. North through Monmouth Beach, Galilee, Low Moor to Seabright, thence across the Shrewsbury river, over the Rumson road, returning by Little Silver over the seven bridges to Port-au-Peck. Our proposition is a pure and simple summer proposition. We sell you a six-room and bath bungalow, including a plot 50 by 150 feet, for $2,100. There are others that are larger on larger plots that cost a trifle more. In the six-room bungalow you have on the first floor a reception room with massive open fireplace, dining-room, kitchen and bedroom. On the second floor there are two bed-rooms and bath. The kitchen and bath-room fixtures are a credit to a ten thousand dollar house. The houses are supplied with water from deep driven artesian wells, absolutely pure, electric lights, telephones, in fact every convenience you have today. We are building for the benefit of the lot-holders a large clubhouse, with bowling alleys, billiard rooms, tennis courts and boat landing. Our restrictions are rigid. We are planning a home colony and we are going to have it. There are thirty bungalows now under construction and they are selling fast. Convenient terms of payment can be arranged. You are invited to visit Port-au-Peck at anytime to suit your convenience as our guest. For further particulars see Charles Matt, Port-au-Peck Realty Co., Prospect and Edgewood avenues. TO COOK MACARONI

SIX WAYS IN WHICH IT MAY BE SERVED.

To Those Not Properly Familiar with This Healthful Dish the Following Instructions Will be of Material Interest.

Plain—Break into half-inch pieces enough macaroni to fill a cup; put into a kettle of boiling salted water and cook for 20 minutes, or until tender; turn into a strainer and let cold water run through to rinse it; put into a shallow baking dish and cover with white sauce; cook one tablespoonful of flour in one tablespoonful of hot butter in a small saucepan, and stir in gradually one cup of hot milk; season with salt and pepper, pour over the macaroni and cover with fine cracker crumbs, moistened in melted butter. Bake until brown.

With Cheese—Prepare as for plain macaroni, then mix half a cup of crumbled cheese with the macaroni before adding the white sauce.

With Eggs—Add two hard-boiled eggs, chopped fine.

With Ham—Add one cup of fine minced ham, seasoned with mustard, and beat one raw egg in the sauce.

With Oysters—Add one cup of oysters highly seasoned with salt and pepper; moisten with one cup of cream in place of the sauce if you like.

With Tomatoes—Fry one teaspoonful of chopped onion in one tablespoonful of butter until slightly colored; add one tablespoonful of flour, and when well mixed, 1½ cups of strained tomatoes, and season with salt; this may be mixed with the macaroni alone, or with the addition of the cheese or the oysters. In these variations, always cover the mixture with the buttered crumbs, as it prevents the macaroni from becoming dry; but if the macaroni is not baked, it may be served with any seasoned sauce without crumbs.

Appetizing Odorless Onions.

Take six large onions over which has been poured boiling water to remove skins. In the center of each make a hole about the size of a quarter. Boil six eggs ten minutes; take out yolks and mash fine, then cream into them one heaping teaspoon of butter, add celery salt, pepper and a little table salt to taste, roll out one or two crackers and mix lightly with the egg. Stuff the onions with this till you have used all the egg mixture, then place in a shallow pan with six tablespoonfuls water and bake till done; do not burn or scorch. Cut and spread thinly with butter six slices of white or brown bread and lay on a platter. Make a nice thick milk gravy, using about one tablespoonful of flour to a pint of milk; when onions are done remove carefully from pan on which they were baked and place them, one on each slice of buttered bread, and put over them the hot milk gravy. Serve while hot. Cold mashed potatoes, either white or sweet, can be used for filling.

Fruit and Nut Cheese.

Quarter pound brazil nuts, quarter pound pecans, half pound almonds, half pound walnuts, half pound each of figs, dates and raisins. Prepare nuts as usual, mix well with the fruit and run through food chopper, using smallest knife. Pack in cocoa or baking powder cans. Cover well and it will keep for months. When wanted dip in hot water and it will slip out easily. A slice of this between thin pieces of bread makes a dainty sandwich for luncheon or picnic and is more nutritious than meat. It also makes a delicious confection when cut in cubes and dipped in melted and sweetened chocolate. The above are some of the many ways in which this cheese may be used.

Vegetable Salad.

One-half package of gelatin, one-half cup of cold water, juice of two lemons, one-fourth cup of vinegar, one-half cup of sugar, one teaspoon of salt, one cup of celery cut in small pieces, one cup of shredded cabbage, one cup of blanched almonds cut twice, three sweet red peppers cut fine. Soak gelatin in cold water two minutes and add vinegar, lemon juice, boiling water sugar and salt. Steam, and when beginning to set, add remaining ingredients. Turn into a mold and chill. Serve on a lettuce leaf with mayonaise dressing, or cut in dice and serve in cases made of red and green peppers. Fine served with cold sliced veal or chicken.

Orange Pie.

Three eggs, three-quarters cup sugar, juice of one orange and half-grated rind, juice of half a lemon and grated peel, a little nutmeg, one tablespoonful butter, cream and sugar; beat in the orange and lemon, add the beaten eggs, saving the whites of two. Line a pie plate with rich crust, pour in this the mixture and bake. Beat the whites with two tablespoonfuls powdered sugar and a little grated rind of an orange. Spread over the pie when done and brown lightly.

To Clean Coat Collars.

The collars of dark cloth coats, which often show white inside after a little wear, may be cleaned with a spoonful of ammonia, into which enough salt has been put to make a soft mixture. This is really an excellent cleanser.

Tea for the Sword Fern.

Perhaps botanists can explain why this plant is so fond of indulging in a cup of tea every few days. To be sure, it asks for neither cream nor sugar, but the stimulant itself is peculiarly grateful to it.

MUST BE WELL ARRANGED.

Whole Secret of Charm of Flowers in Living Rooms.

The street corners are gay with flower stands, which give forth a joyous promise of spring. The sunny daffodils nod their dainty heads in sheer delight to every passing breeze, reminding one of Wordsworth's lines:

Here and there we catch delicate whiffs of violets. It is hard to resist buying a few to take home. Then the prices are so tempting—a whole glowing, sparkling dozen of daffodils may be had for 15 to 35 cents, and the most fragrant and richly colored violets are only 25 cents for a good sized bunch.

As a means of home decoration, flowers reign supreme. There is nothing that so surely gives the cheery, "livable" looks to a room, and in the studio they are simply ravishing. The arrangement of the flowers has a great deal to do with their charm. A great bunch of long-stemmed flowers fairly crammed into a vase three times too short and proportionately small necked is absurd, while, on the other hand, small flowers, such as violets or arbutus, placed in the neck of a tall, lanky vase are about the flattest things in the world. The color, too, must be carefully considered. A red rose in a sky blue vase is enough to make one shiver. But lightness and delicacy of touch are perhaps the most essential in arranging flowers, so as to bring out their best points.—Boston Herald.

MOHAIR SUITS FAD IN PARIS.

Material Has Developed Much Popularity in the Gay Capital.

The newly discovered process by which mohair and wool threads can be mingled to take dyes in soft and beautiful colorings has lifted mohairs to the patrician class among fabrics. Some of these new mixtures have been taken up enthusiastically by Paris tailors, who commend the lightness of the new stuff as well as its dust-resisting qualities.

From Cheruit, a veritable princess among tailors for women, comes a delightful little "going away" suit of dove gray wool and mohair, built on straight lines and decorated only with lines of "crewel" embroidery—the old-fashioned coarse needlework with which our grandmothers were familiar. The coat of this suit falls to the knee and is lined throughout with chiffon in the soft dove gray shade.

Quick Baths Are the Best Tonic.

Some women say that they have not the vitality to withstand a daily bath. That is usually the case when the bath is considered a bother and too much strength is expended in the scrubbing and rubbing.

The most beneficial bath is the quick one that is over within three minutes.

Such a bath is a tonic.

It is not necessary to get into the tub. Merely go over the body speedily, bathing away the dust and secretions of the skin, rinsing quickly and rubbing briskly until the skin fairly tingles.

If one is nerve tired a hot bath just before going to bed will act as a soothing, restful comforter.

Black Lace Sashes.

Now that sashes are accepted, the designers are ingenious in their uses of new materials. All kinds of ribbon have been employed and the latest thing is black lace, edged with velvet.

Wide Chantilly lace is used because of its graceful design and it looks well over other materials. It is even used over white satin gowns and those of dull pink and blue.

It is bordered with two-inch velvet ribbon or bound with piece velvet draped round the figure in folds, then fastened at back in the center or at the left side under an antique buckle.

From this float out two ends, much wider at bottom than top.

Gayly Trimmed Blouses.

The single color note that fashion decreed for the winter blouse, and the costume as well, has vanished with that season. The new fancy waists are so elaborately trimmed, so decorated in contrasting colored embroideries, soutache braids, and jeweled buttons that the effect is almost oriental in many of the most fashionable designs. Even the plainer cotton and linen blouses strike the same note of contrast in the color scheme, with their colored art and hand embroideries.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning June 20, 1909.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—"Pilgrim's Progress" series.—VI. The Hill of Difficulty.—Rom. vii, 14-25; II Cor. vi, 1-10.

In our last view of Bunyan's pilgrim we saw him at the cross, where the burden which he had carried so long fell from off his back, filling him with great joy and gladness. But, like the real Christian's life, when the burden of sin is rolled away at the cross his journey is not ended. He must still go forward, sometimes amid dangers and difficulties, as Christian soon discovered. But with the burden of sin gone and the grace of God to sustain us we may face trials and temptations with confidence that we can overcome them even as Christ overcame them.

The Hill of Difficulty was the first obstacle that stood in the way of Christian's advancement. He met it soon after his experience at the cross. Because the blood of Christ has cleansed us from sin does not induce Satan to abandon his efforts to destroy us. Indeed, his efforts are all the more vigorous. So long as we are out of Christ the evil one is not much concerned about us, but the moment we accept Christ he turns his batteries against us. Pilgrim found it so, for he soon came to the "foot of Hill Difficulty, at the bottom of which was a spring." There were two other ways besides that which came straight from the gate. One turned to the left and the other to the right. They were called Danger and Destruction and the straight way Difficulty. Two others were also present at the bottom of the hill. One of them took the way called Danger, which led him to a great wood. The other took the road marked Destruction and was led into a wild field full of dark mountains, where he stumbled and fell and rose no more.

Some people have a propensity for taking the wrong road. They follow false paths, which lead to destruction. But, though Difficulty was rugged and steep, Christian selected it. He started up running, then came to a walk, then to crawling on his hands and knees, with great difficulty making advancement. Thus it is with all Christians. Difficulties abound. Self denial and exertion must be put forth. The world allures us; temporal interests draw us. It is no small difficulty to overcome evil habits and tendencies. It is a severe struggle. "The spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak." "While we would do good, evil is present with us." Sometimes the farther we go the harder the way becomes. We start on the run, but soon come to a walk and then have to crawl. The Christian life is no beating at wind, but a real antagonist opposes us, and we must fight if we would win. But what does it matter with Christ to help us?

This day the noise of battle,
The next the victor's song.

Halfway up the hill Christian came to an arbor, a pleasant resting place. Here he fell asleep and on departing later left his precious roll, which contained his instructions. He ascended the hill before discovering his loss and was compelled to return. Fortunately he found the roll, but his carelessness led him to much trouble, grief and hardship and should warn us against carelessness and indifference.

BIBLE READINGS.

Gen. iii, 1-8; Prov. iv, 25-27; Matt. iv, 1-11; vii, 12-23; xi, 28-30; Mark viii, 34-38; I Cor. xi, 22-33; I Tim. ii, 1-3; iv, 1-8; Heb. xii, 1, 2; Rev. ii, 10.

Two Famous Trustees.

A remarkable feature of the last international Christian Endeavor convention, held at Seattle, Wash., was the election to membership in the board of trustees of the United Society of Christian Endeavor of President Henry C. King, D. D., of Oberlin college, Ohio, and Mr. William Phillips Hall of New York. Both of these gentlemen accepted the election with great heartiness.

WILLIAM PHILLIPS HALL.

Not until long after the election did any one think of the interesting fact that Dr. King and Mr. Hall were presidents of two organizations whose views and purposes are popularly supposed to be quite diverse, for Dr. King was president of the Religious Education association and Mr. Hall was president of the American Bible league. This is an illustration of the spirit of Christian Endeavor, which brings together for practical cooperation in Christian service all sincere followers of our Lord.

President Hall is a Methodist and a very successful business man. Above all, he is an evangelist who spends a large part of his time in evangelistic work and has led thousands of men to Christ. He especially delights in speaking to men and is known all over the United States as "the business men's evangelist."

Already he has been of distinguished service to Christian Endeavor evangelistic work, and he also feels a warm interest in the foreign work, taking especial charge of Christian Endeavor extension in South America. His splendid physique, genial temper and magnificent qualities of mind and heart make him an ideal guide and inspirer for Christian Endeavorers.

President King has been at the head of Oberlin college since 1902. He is a most effective public speaker and is heartily in sympathy with the Christian Endeavor movement.

CHAPTER IV.

STRANGE NEWS.

THE Earl of Hawcastle was nearly at the end of his financial rope. And yet to look at him as he entered upon the terrace from the lemon grove no one would have thought that a care in the world possessed him.

Added to the natural calm demeanor of the Englishman of station was a certain self possession gained by years of standing on the brink of events, and, while this brilliant morning his cares had hung even a little more heavily upon him than was his desire, yet he gave no outward hint of any troubles that beset him.

He was a well preserved man of fifty-six, with close cropped iron gray hair and a straight cut military mustache that hid certain cruel lines in his mouth and softened the severe lineaments. He carried himself with an erectness that bespoke pride in race, if not in deeds of his own. He was distinguished with that curious individuality that causes those in the street to nudge one another and ask in whispers who another may be, and he was unmistakably high bred.

True, his sense of honor that would balk at cheating in a card game or the larceny of a traveling bag was not sufficient to debar him from conniving at the attachment of a young and helpless girl's money with the foreknowledge of a lifelong misery for her as the consequence.

This morning he was clad in an immaculate suit of lightly striped white flannel, with carefully pipeclayed shoes, and the pale rose necktie that he wore was a living monument to the fact that the well groomed Englishman knows no peer on earth, while the jaunty exactness of his snowy panama hat was a revelation in proper headgear.

As he entered the terrace his alert glance swept it from end to end, and he noted that there was no one about. He moved at once to the table that Mariano had set for him, and at the instant he sat down Michele ran down the steps of the hotel with a folded newspaper in his hand which he presented to milord with a low bow. Mariano entered bearing a coffee tray, and the earl greeted him with a cheerful good morning which Mariano acknowledged as one would a favor from a king.

"Milor' is serve," he announced with soft accents and took the hat and light walking stick, bestowing them with reverential care upon a side table. As the earl unfolded Il Mattino he glanced up.

"No English papers?" he said.

"Milor', the mail is late," answered Michele and bowed himself up the stairs.

"Also Mme. de Champigny," growled the earl as he glanced down the unfamiliar pages.

As he spoke the countess, clad in the very latest Parisian creation, swept down the steps and approached the table. She looked well, and she knew it.

Apparently about thirty-two, she would probably have confessed to five years more under pressure, but her dark beauty was well set off by the light colors she affected, and the tilt of her parasol revealed more to the capable eye of an observer than a ream of self description or admission.

She was of that type that causes the elderly dowager of any race to regard her with suspicion and to gather her male entourage beneath the protecting wings. Mme. de Champigny, raising her hand with a little gesture of greeting, paused an instant as she stood at the top of the steps and cried softly:

"Me voici!"

The earl jumped to his feet and bowed, inquiring at the same time:

"My esteemed relative is still asleep?"

The countess swept forward to her chair, which Hawcastle pulled out for her, and murmured:

"I trust your beautiful son has found much better employment — as our hearts would wish him, eh?"

Hawcastle laughed shortly and mirthlessly.

"He has. He's off on a canter with the little American."

Whereat the demure countess clapped her daintily gloved hands together and cried softly:

"Brava!"

That they were old friends, these two, was to be seen at a glance. There was no inquiring as to each other's tastes and dislikes. It was evident that long association had instilled an intimate knowledge of the other into the mind of each, and they met as good comrades without more than perfunctory courtesy. The earl went on as he reseated himself.

"I didn't mean Almeric, however, Helene, but my august sister-in-law." Without further comment he turned to the paper again and read. The amiable countess smiled at him enigmatically and broke a roll with the gesture of an empress.

"The amiable Lady Hermione Treveyan Creech has dejeuner in her apartments. What do you find to read, mon cher?"

Hawcastle threw the paper down upon the cloth with an exclamation.

"I'm such a duffer at Italian," he said, "but apparently the people along the coast are having a scare over an escaped convict, a Russian."

The hovering Mariano, who was flitting about the table like a wounded sparrow, started slightly and hesitated with a silver cover in his hand, then stepped forward.

"If milor' will pardon me"— The countess also started and put down her fork with a slight rattle.

"A Russian?" she ejaculated.

"Yes," grumbled the earl. "An escaped Russian bandit has been traced to Castellamare"— He paused to insert the choicest bit of melon in his mouth, and Mariano's jaw dropped with the excitement.

"Castellamare—not twelve kilometers from here!" he whispered in awestruck tones, and the earl continued when he had masticated the fruit:

"And a confidential agent—secret service man, I dare say—has requested his arrest from the Italian authorities. But, to quote from our grandiose Il Mattino, 'the brigand tore himself from the hands of the carabinieri,' or something like that. I can't be sure, but it read to me"—

Mariano broke in excitedly. He had picked up the paper and was devouring it with avidity.

"If milor' permit, and madame"—he bowed like an automaton—"I shall translate."

"Quite right, Mariano," said the earl, and the maitre d'hotel went on avidly.

"The brigan' tore himself," he read excitedly, "from the hand of the carabinieri, and without the doubts he conceal himself in some of these grotto near Sorrento, and searchment is being execute'. The agent of the Russian embassy have inform' the bureau that this escape one is a mos' in-fray-mose robber and danger brigan'."

"What name does the paper say he has?" interrupted Mme. de Champigny, with a catch of her breath, and Mariano bowed again jerkily in her direction.

"It has not to say, madame," he replied. "That is all. And will milor' and Mme. la Comtesse excuse me? And may I take the journal? There is one who should see it."

Hawcastle smiled slightly at his excitement and nodded.

"Very well, Mariano," he said, and Mariano, with another jerk that was supposed to include both of the illustrious ones, disappeared with a speediness that was alarming. For an instant there was silence, and then the countess, with a quick upward glance of her dark eyes, said tremblingly:

"I should like much to know his name."

The earl smiled and went on with his breakfast.

"You may be sure it isn't Ivanoff," he said, but the assurance did not seem to carry weight with madame, for she leaned her chin in her hand and looked off over the bay, and there was a troubled look in her eyes.

CHAPTER V.

THE ENGAGEMENT.

"HOW can one know it is not Ivanoff?" she asked slowly, and this time the earl laughed aloud.

"He wouldn't be called an infamous brigand," he said, but the countess waved her hand.

"That, my friend, may be only Italian journalism."

"Pooh!" said Hawcastle. "This means a highwayman—not—not an embezzler, Helene."

The countess arose from the table and moved about restlessly with her eyes on the blue expanse.

"I should be glad to believe it, my good friend, but I—I care for no more to eat. I have perhaps some foolish feeling of unsafety. It is now two nights that I dream of him—of Ivanoff—bad dreams for us both, my friend."

The earl looked up in amazement and then burst into a laugh.

"What rot!" he exclaimed. "It takes more than a dream to bring a man back from Siberia."

The countess looked at him with some sharpness.

"Then I pray there has been no more than dreams," she murmured quietly.

Even as she spoke there came the tinkling sound of the mandolins and guitars, and madame turned to the lemon grove in time to see a young girl in a fawn colored riding habit, with a soft felt hat upon her head and a riding crop in her gauntleted hands, enter, followed by three picturesque banditti with the instruments.

As she reached the terrace she paused and drew from her glove some silver which she dropped into the hand of the first villain with a laugh. Then she turned, smiling, as the musicians withdrew and waved her crop at the two who were watching her. The earl arose with a bow, and madame advanced with outstretched hand.

"Ah, the divine Miss Granger-Simpson!" said Newcastle with raillery in his tones, and the girl laughed with a happy, care free face.

"The divinely happy Miss Granger-Simpson," she said, and at the sound of her voice and the look in her eyes the countess ran to her and kissed her rapturously upon each cheek.

"Oh, I hope you mean"— she began, when Hawcastle interrupted her with some excitement.

"You mean you have made my son divinely happy?"

The girl extricated herself laughingly from the embrace of the countess and turned to the earl.

"Is not every one divinely happy at Sorrento," she cried, waving her crop, "even your son?" and with another laugh ran quickly up the steps and into the hotel, leaving the other two looking at each other with astonishment.

As they looked a piano from the music room that opened upon the terrace broke forth with Chaminade's "Elevation," and Ethel's voice took up the words clearly. The countess turned to her companion.

"She flies to her piano, mon cher. Ah, that is good for our little enterprise, eh? Listen!"

Hawcastle sat down with a grunt of satisfaction.

"It's time! If Almeric had been anything but a clumsy oaf he'd have made her settle it weeks ago."

The woman turned her dark eyes upon him with a flash.

"You are invidious, mon ami. My affair is not settled. Am I a clumsy oaf too?"

The earl laughed quietly.

"A RUSSIAN!" SHE EJACULATED.

BOWLING.

Two match games are on for decision to night at Johnny Campbell's alleys. On alleys one and two Skelly and Campbell will oppose Matthews and Brown, the Somerville sharpshooters, in a four out of seven match series, and on alleys three and four two teams from Watchung Council, K. of C., will roll a duck pin match. Some of the knights are very proficient with the small balls and pins and as there is considerable rivalry between the two teams an interesting match is looked for.

Shannon and O'Keefe forfeited six games last night to Waters and Stout and Herbert and Compbell in the two-man tourney. The latter teams rolled for averages as follows:

Herbert	168	143	170
Campbell	158	208	208
	326	351	378
Waters	183	153	201
Stout	194	192	163

Pedagogues' Ball Game.

Editor, The Daily Press:

From an account of Monday's baseball game between the City and Borough high school faculties and students the reader might infer that the collision between Carlton Smith and Mr. Travell was due to unfair tactics on the part of Smith.

Inasmuch as Smith is a thorough gentleman in sports as well as otherwise, this reflection on his playing is unjust to him. The collision, however it may have been caused, was entirely unintentional on the part of Smith, who regretted the occurrence more than any one else. He would not purposely throw any opposing player, least of all the head of our neighboring high school.

WATCH FOR THE COMET AT SUN'S ECLIPSE TONIGHT.

The eclipse of the sun today, which will be visible in all parts of the country, is one of the most remarkable that the astronomers have ever noted. At the time, sun down, when the eclipse begins, the new comet, discovered by Edwin F. Naulty and Dr. Brooks, of Hobart College, will be plainly visible provides, of course, the weather is clear.

The sun will set with about a sixth of its surface covered by the moon's shadow and at this time the phenomenon of a comet with its accompanying tail will be observed a little south of west and should become more distinct as the evening advances. Thousands of glasses, including all those of the United States observatories will be directed to the western edge of the horizon at about 7:30 tonight.

HOLLAND PLATES STOLEN DURING WEDDING RECEPTION.

During the reception which followed the wedding of Miss Olive Amanda Randolph and Frederick Bakker, Jr., at the home of Mrs. Ruth E. Randolph, of Plainfield avenue Wednesday night, half a dozen plates of cake were stolen from the kitchen. The kitchen window was raised as the guests were in the front part of the house, and the cakes, plates and all, were "lifted."

The cakes were not particularly needed for food, because the guests were amply provided for. But the plates, were gifts to Mrs. Randolph from Mr. Bakker, who brought them to her from Holland upon his return a year ago. Four large cakes were on these plates, and there were other valuable plates taken, piled with small cakes, which were taken along with their contents. The matter has not been reported to the police.

3 HURT IN AUTO MISHAP

Dr. Megargee's Collarbone Broken and Wife and Child Also Injured.

PHYSICIAN'S CAR DAMAGED.

Mrs. Megargee Accidently Starts New Machine Which Crashes Into Tree.

Dr. George L. Megargee, a retired physician, residing on Willow avenue, the borough, is detained at home with a broken collarbone, while Mrs. Megargee and her six-year-old son, John, are suffering from general bruises and contusions, the result of a peculiar automobile accident, last night. The Megargees, who formerly resided in Philadelphia, moved to this city a week ago, and having purchased a White steamer, decided to take their first ride last night.

They reached East Front street and Farragut road at 7:45, when it began to rain. The doctor stopped his machine for the purpose of putting up the leather top. While engaged in doing this, assisted by his wife, Mrs. Megargee's arm accidentally touched the throttle on the machine, throwing on the power. The big car started to back up with increasing speed. The doctor at first ran along side the machine in an effort to shut off the power.

Failing in this he jumped on the running-board. Just as he was about to reach for the throttle, the car crashed into a big tree. The force of the collision threw the doctor over against the tree, breaking his collarbone, while his son, who was on the rear seat, was thrown out, receiving cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Megargee remained in the car, but was considerably bruised when it came in contact with the tree. Although severely injured, the doctor succeeded in reaching the throttle and shutting off the power. The rear of he car was damaged to a great extent, the axles being twisted and several minor parts were broken.

About the time of the accident, Councilman William L. Smalley, Jr., of the borough happened to be driving by and he took Dr. and Mrs. Magargee to the home of Pierre Mali, while their son was removed to the home of R. F. R. Huntsman, nearby. Dr.

IDEAL WEATHER FOR BEN GREET SHOWS

Much interest is being evidenced in the appearance of Ben Greet's famous company in two of Shakespeare's plays which are given this afternoon and tonight on the greensward of Mount St. Mary's college on the slope of the Watchung mountain between this city and Scotch Plains. This afternoon at 3 o'clock the "Taming of the Shrew" was presented and at 8 o'clock tonight "A Midsummer Night's Dream" will be given. "There is not a single genius in the cast, but the play is a unity," says one of the leading dramatic critics of the country.

The Ben Greet Players include thirty leading Shakespearean actors, and are now on tour in the United States for the seventh consecutive year. So successful have they been in fact in this country. So successful have they been in fact in this country that they have appeared in London only once during the past six years. The excellent work of the company may be attributed to the fact that ensemble is aimed at and no one is featured. In this way Shakespeare takes on new life and the audience gives itself up entirely to the enjoyment of a magnificient story beautifully told.

Among those in the company are Frand McEntee, Keith Wakeman, L. W. Parker, Hubert Seborne, Leonard Shepherd, Millicient Evison, C. A. Barnett, G. Brengle Hare, Frederick Macklyn, Edmund Mortimer, Jack O'Brien, Percy Waram, Mark T. Wilson, Lucia Cole, Helen Drawitt, Grace Cuernsey and Aubusta True.

The amphitheatre seats 2,000 people. Those who have not made returns for tickets will kindly communicate with Mrs. D. T. Kenney.

A Surprise Party.

Ernest Dorfinger, of 400 Clinton avenue, was a much surprised individual when he was called out of church last night in a hurry and on his arrival home ran into a bunch of his friends who had taken possession of his house and were prepared to spend the evening there with music, games and refreshments. There were about thirty in the party and they turned to and gave Ernest the time of his life.

School Teacher Operated On.

Miss Mabel Trenbath, of Madison avenue, a teacher in the Somerset street school, was operated on for appendicitis yesterday at her home by Dr. George W. Endicott. She is reported to be doing well.

MR. AND MRS. HADLEY ENTERTAIN CHURCH CHOIR

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Hadley, of Leland avenue, entertained the choir of the Park Avenue Baptist church, at their home, last night. While the affair was intended for the choir members, their wives and husbands were also included among the guests. The home was attractively decorated with American flags and cut flowers, and the effect in the dining room was especially pleasing.

The guest of the evening was Robert Humpston, organist of the church, who favored the gathering with a number of selections on the piano, while his wife delighted all with her singing. Other forms of amusement were games of all kinds. Later an elaborate supper was served by Mr. and Mrs. Hadley, and this was followed by several entertaining after-dinner speeches, in which the host and hostess were complimented.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Humpston, Mr. and Mrs. William Hadley, Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Flinn, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Charles VanWinkle, Mr. and Mrs. Wheaton S. Lowry, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Dayton, Mr. and Mrs. James, Mrs. Griffen, Mrs. Charles Steiner, Miss Randolph, Miss Jones, The Misses Cora Brokaw, Florence G. Hawkins, Louise Harroll, Ida Hadley, Elma Runyon, Harry Johnson and Joseph M. Hawkins.

MRS. J. McVEY'S TREAT FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN.

Mrs. J. H. McVey, at whose residence the school at Clinton avenue is held, gave a delightful party for the pupils and their little friends yesterday afternoon. The tables were spread for about seventy-five little people who thoroughly enjoyed the feast. Sandwiches were first served, then came plain and fancy cakes, with delicious ice cream and strawberries. Nor was this all, for, soon appeared plates laden with fine mixed candies, that caused the eyes of the little ones to sparkle with joy.

The Misses Caroline and Grace, daughters of Mrs. McVey, assisted by friends, served the refreshments. Just as the little people were about to leave, favors were presented and each carried home a little souvenir which will serve to remind them of a generous hostess and a most enjoyable feast.

COLOSSAL TESTIMONIAL FOR TOM MUIR TONIGHT

Thomas M. Muir.

The colossal testimonial which has been arranged for "Tom" Muir and which will take plcae tonight and tomorrow night at Counihan's New Plainfield theatre will be one of, if not the, greatest shows ever given in Union county. Under the tireless efforts of Judge William N. Runyon the rehearsals have brought the performance to a point of perfection never before attained here. Everybody who has been in any way connected with the enterprise has given his services with a will worthy of the cause and the financial result is expected to equal if it does not exceed any similar event in the history of the State.

Mr. Muir has been a reporter of The Daily Press for over nine years and is favorably known to nearly everyone in the city. He is now confined in the Muhlenberg Hospital threatened with total blindness and this benefit will be a substantial testimonial of the regard in which he is held by his friends.

The performance will open with a minstrel show with a chorus of 125 voices and some of the most promi-

Clifford Randolph had a conference with Manager Wolverton of the Newark Eastern League club on Wednesday, and expects to land in a permanent berth within a few days, where he will have an opportunity to work regularly.

Catcher Pauxtis, who joined the Yankees a few days ago, will finish the season with the Altoona Tri-State League club for the purpose of getting more experience.

It was up to "Christy" Mathewson to break Pittsburg's winning streak, which he did on Wednesday to the score of 8 to 2. The Smoky City fans are in sack cloth and ashes in consequence.

Doc Newton, formerly with the Yankees, and last season with the Newark Eastern League club, has been turned over to Toronto.

The Newark Giants, colored, will clash with the Plainfield Baseball Club at Crescent Oval tomorrow. This should be one of the best contests of the season, as the Giants are considered exceptionally fast.

Rochester now leads the Eastern League Club with a percentage of .636. A year ago this club occupied seventh position with a percentage of .452. The Newark club is in fifth place and is making a hard fight to improve its position.

"Bugs" Raymond is reported to have engaged in a fight with McGraw while en route to Pittsburg from Cincinnati, and the former is said to have had one eye closed. This sort of thing does not help to win games.

The Trinity Baseball Club will play the Warren chapel team on the West End avenue grounds tomorrow, and on Saturday, June 26, will meet the nine from Grace M. E. church at the same place.

Jack Peacock will do most of the twirling for the Y. M. C. A. team this season. He was unable to be here last Saturday and Manager Listman found "Warry" MacLaughlin willing to help him out.

PERSONAL.

Miss Ella Jones, of Newark, who has been visiting friends here, has returned home.

Mrs. William VanDuyn, of the borough, has returned from a visit with friends at Somerville.

Miss Dagmar, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. J. B. Probasco, of this city, for several months, has returned to her home in Parish.

Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Downs, who have been living at the home of the late Dr. J. T. Fritts on Park avenue, have leased one of the apartments in the Sterling Building on Park avenue, and will soon take possession.

Rev. Frank P. Woodbury, president of Howard University, will speak at the Congregational church, Sunday, in the interest of missions. The annual offering for missions will also be received.

Plainfield, N. J., June 18, 1909.

BIGGEST SINGLE CHECK FOR CHARTER DAY FUND

The largest individual subscription for the Charter Day fund was announced today, when the finance committee reported that George J. Whalen, of East Front street, has subscribed $150 as his share toward the celebration of Plainfield's birthday as a city and North Plainfield's quarter-century anniversary as a borough. Other subscriptions reported today are Richard D. Williams $10; E. M. Cave, $10; Henry Paul, $10; Harold Hansen, $10; John Harman, $10; Champlain Riley, $10, and J. W. Coddington, $10. The subscriptions made public by the finance committee to date have now reached a total of $6,525.

Leo Slonim, a West Front street jeweler, has offered a handsome silver loving cup to be awarded to the best appearing fire company in line for the big firemen's parade, which will be a feature of the closing day of the celebration. The cup will be placed in his store window on exhibition.

Members of the senior class of the Plainfield Business College are making elaborate plans for the part the school is to take in the Charter Day parade on Monday, July 5, and the girls are busy making up the hats and sashes to be worn by the pupils on that occasion. A reception was held at the college auditorium last night, where much of the time was spent in discussion the Charter Day plans.

Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, of the city schools, was in consultation with members of the parade committee at the city High School today, and it is planned to have the school represented by a float in the parade the first day of the celebration. This float will probably show the work of the manual training department. The North Plainfield High School will also be represented in the parade by a float. A chorus of school children to sing at the exercises to be held in the city park Monday afternoon, July 5, will be made up of fifty pupils from the city schools and fifty from the borough schools.

MISS EDNA WILDEY WINS THE TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP.

Miss Edna Wildey, of the Plainfield Country Club, matched with Miss L. S. Hammond, of New York, won the metropolitan tennis championship title in the women's doubles, the final round of which was played on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club, New York, on Wednesday. The pair defeated Miss Marie Wagner, national indoor champion, and Miss Erna Marcus, 6—4, 6—2.

Miss Wildey has been a strong competitor in national, State and local tennis tournaments for several seasons past and has won many hard-fought matches.

Cornerstone Laid.

The cornerstone of Trenton's new million-dollar City Hall was laid yesterday afternoon with interesting ceremonies. Vice-Chancellor E. R. Walker, a lineal descendant of Mahlon Stacy, the founder of the city, made the address. Others participating were Ferdinand W. Roebling, chairman of the City Hall Commission, who actually laid the stones; the Rt. Rev. Bishop James A. McFaul, Mayor Madden and the Rev. Hamilton Schuyler.

"Royal Blue" Delayed.

The "Royal Blue" Express on the Central Railroad was tied up east of the Elizabeth station for almost an hour yesterday afternoon. The injector on the engine became defective and the boiler would not draw water. The situation was relieved when a drill engine took the disabled train and engine into Jersey City.

COLOSSAL TESTIMONIAL

nent soloists in the city. Benjamin W. Evans, who needs no introduction, will be the interlocutor, and H. N. Blimm, Geo. Cose, W. J. Firstbrook, George Rittenhouse, John V. Todd and Wm. J. Counihan, ends. This array of local talent ought to be enough to fill the house to the limit. Besides these brilliant wits the following soloists will be heard, William F. Tallamy, William Holmes, Elmer D. Cutting, Bertram F. Tallamy, Ray Mack and Fred Miller.

The orchestra, under the direction of William E. MacClymont, will consist of eleven pieces and the score has been arranged and orchestrated by Wm. Crandon-Bevan in colaboration with Judge Runyon.

Part two opens with an interesting exhibition by "Sir General," an educated pony, quoted as "the most intelligent animal ever brought into the limelight." Leo. Donnelly, brother-in-law of Samuel Cunningham, treasurer of the new theatre, known as the best monologuist on the stage, will follow and his act is sure to equal his previous performances. A company of comedy gymnasts, The Three Marvelous Mills, will present an act that will astonish as well as amuse the audience.

As a final attraction the "Four Luciers" will give a musical act in which J. H. Lucier, the famous blind pianist, will appear and play some of the best classical music.

Mr. Counihan has donated the use of the theatre and the advance sales for tonight indicate a full house. Those who have not yet bought tickets for either night are urged to do so at once as by tomorrw morning it is doubtful whether any seats will be left.

There was a full attendance of the chorus at the rehearsal last night and the way the fellows sang would suggest weeks of careful preparation and a sincere purpose. The chorus is simply immense.

W. F. Tallamy's "No one knows" is a song worth going miles to hear and it is splendidly adapted to Mr. Tallamy's voice. The double quartet accompaniment to Mr. Holmes' "Clang of the forge" is another number that will enthuse the audience

Get aboard or you'll be late for the musical treat of the year.

Court House Has Elevator.

The new elevator in the Union county court house at Elizabeth made its first trip yesterday, much to the satisfaction of the county officials, lawyers, clerks and general public used to the winding stairways, which heretofore had been the only means of going from floor to floor.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

A small party of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Sandher, Lehigh avenue, last night, the occasion being a farewell supper in honor of Miss Ellen Ostrye, who will leave tonight for her home in Clymer, N. Y. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. George Sandher, Miss Marguerite Mc Donough, Misses Grace and Lillian Norman, Miss Nora Maguire and Miss Ostrye.

Painters are at work upon the home of Mrs. eGroge Ryno, of Brookside avenue.

Edward Norman is spending a few days with friends in South River.

The Andy John vaudeville show moved to New Market yesterday.

P. B. Cregar, who was a classmate of Dr. Magargee, at Bucknell University, was summoned, and after temporary treatment, the family was taken home in a conveyance furnished by Mr. Mall.

Mrs. Megargee and her son are able to be about the house, but the doctor's injuries are such as to confine him to his room. It will be some days before he will be able to go out.

The automobile was taken to F. L. C. Martin's garage, where it is now being repaired. Dr. Megargee is experienced in operating an auto, but the peculiar circumstances of the accident, made it practically impossible for him to prevent it. That he and his family were not injured more seriously is considered remarkable.

Editor, The Daily Press:

We highly compliment you upon the cartoons you are running upon the front page of The Daily Press, entitled "Just For Fun." They are certainly well drawn, right to the point, and will undoubtedly stir up much interest as well as form a valuable keep-sake for those whose pictures are run.

Yours respectfully,
VOORHEES & COMPANY.

Here's a Worthy Case.

Editor The Daily Press:

That there is to be a camp for tuberculosis patients in Plainfield will be welcome news to many a sad home in this city. Probably no one will make earlier application for admission than a young man, born in this State and for years a resident of Plainfield, who is now too ill to be received at the State Sanatorium. A delicate wife is trying to support the five little children. She needs another single bed. Anyone interested please telephone the Charity Organization, "103 Plainfield."

CHARITY.

JAIL HAS NO TERRORS FOR "HANDCUFF KING."

"The Great Alvin" did a stunt yesterday afternoon that left the crowd who followed him from the theatre standing open-mouthed and wondering if Alvin is man or demon. Promptly at 5.30 he was locked securely in a cell at the Borough police station after having been thoroughly searched, even to his shoes. As the big cell door closed upon him he said to Chief Weiss, "If I am not out in twenty minutes come in and release me and I'll acknowledge myself beaten."

Twenty minutes later Mr. Alvin was discovered opposite the jail calmly reading a copy of The Daily Press. He said to Chief Weiss when leaving to return to the theatre, "Say, Chief, you've got a good jail there, it was the hardest to get out of that I ever tackled."

Before being locked up part of Alvin's clothing was taken from him and locked in another cell. To get out he had to escape from one cell, recover his clothing from another and pass through a locked iron door and a woden outer door. He accomplished this in less than the twenty minutes stipulated.

Last night at Proctor's Alvin escaped from a locked trunk in full view of the audience.

Big Proctor Show Today.

The best bill of the week will be offered at Proctor's theatre today and tomorrow, including the Riva Larsen Troupe of acrobats; Rich & Howard, song and dance act; John Rucker, in monologue and song and "The Great Alvin," who will perform several new tricks and there will be five new reels of life motion pictures to conclude the best show ever.

The Women's Home Mission Society of the First Baptist church, will not meet again until fall. The foreign mission society has also adjourned its meetings for the summer months.

Assistant Postmaster and Mrs. James Martin, of Westervelt avenue, are parents of a daughter, born to them this morning.

HERE AND THERE.

Just to prove that they could take a dare, John Burns, the popular proprietor of the Kensington hotel and "Tom" Brantingham, owner of a hotel on Park avenue, mounted the wagon on which one of the latest style hurdy gurdy's toured the business section this morning and wended their way to the entrance of E. C. Westcott's cafe on Front street, and while Brantingham turned the crank Burns passed the hat. They were rewarded with a handfull of small coins which proved the financial value of the outfit. The trial of the scheme was the outcome of a conversation held at the Kensington this morning in which the number of hand organs now in the city was being commented upon. Mr. Burns opined that it was a profitable business. He proved his assertion as he gathered in $5.00 in fifteen minutes for the hand organ man.

The Wise Squirrel

It was on a beautiful sunny day in April, of this year, that a cunning gray squirrel with a long bushy tail and large erect ears, came cautiously up to where I sat on the porch, and took from my hand a nice big English Walnut, cracked it and swallowed the meats. Two more nuts he ate in like manner, and the fourth, a butternut, he carried to his burrow natural bank, (a hole in the ground near a tree) and left it as a "Savings Deposit."

One-fourth of his "gettings" the wise squirrel saved. He is promised no interest on his deposit, and yet he is wiser than, the man, woman, boy or girl who is allowed interest but who is not putting away something every week, in the

GOV. FORT'S SEA GIRT MILITARY DETAIL.

Governor Announces Officers Who Will Serve During the Coming Encampment.

Governor Fort, as commander-in-chief of the military forces of the State, through Adjutant-General Wilbur F. Sadler, Jr., yesterday named his military detail for the Sea Girt encampment, beginning July 10 and ending August 14.

The detail is as follows: Brigadier-General Wilbur F. Sadler, Jr., adjutant-general; Brigadier-General C. Edward Murray, quartermaster-general; Colonel Frederick Gilkyson, assistant adjutant-general; Colonel Austen Colgate, military aide, and aides-de-camp. Lieutenant-Colonel William G. Schlauffer, medical inspector; Lieutenant-Colonel Austen H. Condit, assistant inspector-general, and First Lieutenant Nelson B. Gaskill, Third Infantry.

Another order details the officers for the quartermaster general's department as follows: Colonel James V. Oliphant, Colonel D. Stewart Craven, assistant quartermasters-general; Colonel William H. Earley, assistant commissary-general; Lieutenant-Colonel Alexander R. Fordyce, Jr., deputy quartermaster-general, and Major Samuel S. Armstrong, assistant paymaster-general.

Application has also been made for the detailing of Major Harry B. Salter, of the division staff, to this department for the term of the encampment.

CONTRACTS AWARDED FOR NEW STREETS.

Amesite Decided Upon by Union Freeholders for Paving to Be Done at Once.

The roads committee of the Union County Board of Freeholders declared a preference for amesite as a paving material and awarded contracts for that kind of pavement in preference to asphalt at its meeting at Elizabeth yesterday. The members of the committee have been on a trip of inspection over roads of this material in Camden and were very favorably impressed with it.

The E. C. Humphrey Company, of Hackensack, was awarded the contract for the paving of Walnut avenue, Cranford, for $15,483, in preference to a lower bid for asphaltum by O'Rourke Brothers, of Yonkers. Bids for the paving of Terrill road, in this city, will be re-advertised for in order that the committee may get figures on amesite.

The committee decided to award the contract for the paving of Edgar road, to cost $41,194.44, to the Humphrey concern, with instructions to pave the road up to 1,300 feet of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad only, pending the close of the negotiations with the railroad to provide for the depression of the street where it crosses the railroad at grade.

TEST OF SERVICE LAW IS BEFORE THE COURT.

Wednesday was devoted by the Court of Errors and Appeals at Trenton to argument on the constitutionality of the new civil service law of New Jersey, by which public offices within the control of the State and in all municipalities adopting the provisions of the act are taken from politics and made subject to competitive tests. Essex county men are fighting the law and seeking to abolish the commission, at least in so far as it applies to that county.

It was argued by counsel for the State and the Commission that under the constitution adopted in 1844 the people surrendered to the Legisture the control of everything in local self-government excepting the right of taxation for local improvements.

Counsel for the contestants argued that the right of local self-government was guaranteed by Magnacharts under common law and that the people had never surrendered this right to the Legislature. Even if such had been surrendered, counsel argued, the Legislature is bound to respect the principle of self-government and not create a commission of citizens to manage affairs of counties of which they are not residents.

KILLED HIS WIFE; CLAIMS ACCIDENT.

Mrs. William Westervelt, of Teaneck, Slain by Husband in Their Bedroom.

William Westervelt, a contracting mason, of Teaneck, yesterday morning shot and instantly killed his wife Irene in the bedroom of their home. In a hysterical condition Westervelt asserts that the shooting was accidental.

He declares he was showing his wife a new double-barrel shotgun in order that she would know how to shoot in case bruglars entered the house, when the weapon was mysteriously discharged.

Mrs. Westervelt, who was standing directly in front of the barrels, received the full charge in the neck. Her jugular vein was severed.

At the time of the shooting the man and woman were both clad in their night clothes. Westervelt is in jail at Trenton and weeps continually. The coroner is investigating.

Rev. Ora J. Shoop will lead the Christian Endeavor Society meeting at the Park Avenue Baptist church, tonight.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

FINDS JERSEY JUSTICE "IS NOT SO SWIFT."

Because Judge Thomas A. Davis, was called to Camden Wednesday, the trial of Mrs. Frances J. Ridley, of Atlanta, Ga., could not proceed in Newark. She is under indictment charged with having taken jewels belonging to Mrs. Andrew Albright, of New York, while on a Southern train bound for New York last March.

Mrs. Ridley is a member of a well known Southern family and five hundred prominent Southerners have come to her defence. Among them are Representative John Sharp Williams and Representative Ansell J. McLaurin, of Mississippi; Bishop C. Kinloch Nelson, of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Atlanta; Bishop Wilmer, of the Diocese of Georgia; Judge Paul Speak, of Mississippi, and Representative James M. Richardson, of Alabama. Mr. Richardson was in court yesterday, having come North to aid in her defence during the trial. He was accompanied by United States District Attorney William W. Arnbrecht, of Mobile, Ala.

Prosecutor Mott made known the fact that he had telephoned to several counties to find a judge who could hurry to Newark, but that he was unable to find a county judge unoccupied.

"Jersey justice isn't so swift after all," remarked Mr. Richardson to the group of Southerners. "That about Jersey which is always heralded through the South doesn't seem true upon reaching here."

"I insist upon a trial," said Mrs. Ridley. "I want to prove my innocence in open court." Among those who formed a family group, of which Mrs. Ridley was the centre, was her nephew, Lieutenant Commander Ridley McLean, of the staff of Rear Admiral Schroeder.

Still Against Sunday Ball.

Counselor Elmer Demarest, of Jersey City, served notice Tuesday on the lawyers for the Jersey City Baseball Club that on next Monday he will make another effort to stop the playing of Sunday baseball at West Side Park. Rudolph Saltau, who was the complainant in the original suit, is the complainant in the new case. Mr. Demarest will base his application for an injunction on the ground that the games are conducted in such a manner as to disturb the peace and comfort of Mr. Saltau.

All of the local Masonic lodges have "called off" their meetings for the summer months.

Don't Be A Furnace Slave

The BOYNTON

Square Fire-Pot

PATENTED

reverses the usual order of furnace facts. It requires the least amount of fuel and the least amount of care. In return it gives the biggest, hottest fire you ever knew; a clean, clinkerless fire. It burns all the coal and when you shake it all the dust goes up the chimney. BOYNTON furnaces are clean. They give the maximum of heat for a minimum of expense. We will gladly give you the name of the nearest BOYNTON dealer, so that you may investigate.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for Steam or Hot Water. Also Ranges.

K. of P. Election.

The regular election of Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., took place in its lodge rooms last night. These were chosen; Chancellor commander, Samuel Rolhberg; vice-chancellor commander, J. D. Warren's Festival.

The strawberry festival at Warren chapel was somewhat marred by the inclement weather last evening, the rain keeping many away. However the good thing will bear repeating and all those who intended going last evening and didn't will be doubly welcome this afternoon and evening. Several more cakes are needed as heavy inroads were made on the stock yesterday afternoon.

Young Donnelly Improving.

The young son of Richard Donnelly, manager for J. W. Harriman's stables, who is ill at Truell Inn with typhoid fever, is reported as improving slowly. Young Donnelly was ill with the disease for two weeks prior to the local horse show, when he came here with his father, and was immediately put in charge of a Plainfield physician.

JAMES NASH BEST ATHLETE IN SCHOOL

Winning first place in all but one of the athletic events in which he was entered, James Nash, of the senior class of the Stillman School, won the title of champion school athlete at the Plainfield Driving Association track yesterday afternoon, when he made a total score of twenty-six points in competition. Cedric Ostrom, who won the standing broad jump, was the only schoolboy to defeat Nash in any event.

The meet, which was the first held by the Stillman School boys, attracted a large crowd to the track, and several of the events were closely contested. The events were eight in number, and were divided by classes in some cases. There was some fast time in the sprints and some of the records hung up are likely to stand.

Robert H. Bellows was second in the point total for the seniors, scoring thirteen points. He finished a first in the half mile, second in the shot-put and running high jump, and third in the hundred yard dash and standing high jump. H. Rosenson had a point total of 11 points, and took third senior honors. The other point winners of the senior class were Cedric Ostrom, 9; Arthur Grisley, 5; Joseph Carty, 3, and George Murray, 3. Arthur Van Zandt took first honors of the athletes entered from the juniors class. He won 16 points. Albert Bryniarski was second with 1 p4oints, then came Philip Van Deventer, 10; Jas. McNamee, 5½, and Harry Zook, 5. Ribbons will be awarded to the place winners in connection with the morning exercises at the school Wednesday. Officials of the meet were Paul Collier, David Smalley and George Durar.

Colored Odd Fellows.

The Union Lodge, No. 4026, G. U. O. of O. F., held its fourteenth annual reception in the Plainfield Dancing Academy last night. There were over two hundred members and friends present from such lodges as the Royal Queen, No. 3712, of Elizabeth; Passaic, No. 815, of Newark; St. Marks, No. 1678, of Jersey City; Hudson, No. 3847, of Jersey City; Goodwill, No. 4330, of Paterson and Raritan, No. 2631, of New Brunswick. The evening was spent in dancing. Music was furnished by Porter's orchestra from Elizabeth. Those on the committee of arrangements were William H. Jones, J. W. Maury, Walter Davis, J. D. Smith and George Toomey.

Presented Diplomas.

Samuel St. John Mc Cutchen, of North Plainfield, a member of the State Board of Education, conferred the diplomas on the senior class of the Model School, at Trenton, Wednesday evening. Mr. McCutchen acted for the president of the board, James L. Hayes, of Newark, who was unable to attend. The exercies took place in the State School auditorium and were in charge of James M. Green. Dr. Joseph Swain, president of Swarthmore college spoke on the "Higher Education of the Colleges."

The Man From Home

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

"No, Helene. Your little American is so in love with you that if you asked him suddenly, 'Horace, is this day or night?' he would answer, 'It's Helene.' But he's too shy to speak. You're a woman; you can't press matters. But Almeric's a man; he can. He can urge an immediate marriage, which means an immediate settlement and a direct one."

A young girl followed by three picturesque banditti.

Mme. de Champigny picked up a silver fork from the table and examined it carefully.

"It will not be small—that settlement? You have decided what sum?"

Hawcastle looked up sharply and nodded with decision.

"I have—a hundred and fifty thousand pounds!"

From the countess came a gasp of astonishment.

"My friend! Will she?" And she turned and stared at the room where the piano was still playing. Hawcastle laughed grimly.

"Not for Almeric, but to be the Countess of Hawcastle. My ancient sister-in-law hasn't been her chaperon for a year for nothing. And, by Jove, she hasn't done it for nothing, either!"

And this time he laughed quite heartily as with a grim appreciation of the jest.

"But she's deserved all I shall allow her," he resumed. "You see, it was

"She accepted me."

she who found these people. Indeed, we might say that both you and I owe her something. Even a less captious respectability than Lady Creech's might have looked askance at the long 'friendship' that has existed between us. Yet she has always countenanced us, my dear, though she must have guessed a great many things. And she will help us to urge an immediate marriage. You know as well as I do that unless it is immediate there'll be the devil to pay. Don't miss that essential. Something must be done at once. We're at the breaking point, if you like the words—a most damnable insolvency."

As he finished speaking the immaculate and vacuous Almeric himself strolled into the terrace and, putting up his glass as he came forward, said softly:

"Hello, governor! Howdy, countess!"

With an affectation of boredom he sprawled into a chair and tapped at his boots with his crop.

"Out riding a bit ago, you know, with Miss Granger-Simpson. Rippin' girl, isn't she?"

His father leaned across the table with tension in every line of him.

"Go on!" he said anxiously, and Almeric looked up at him with a silly smile.

"Didn't stop with her, though."

"Why not?" demanded the earl angrily.

"A sort of man in the village got me to look at a bull terrier pup," Almeric went on, with a yawn. "Wonderful little beast for points. Jolly luck, isn't it? He has got a head on him"—

Hawcastle interrupted savagely.

"We'll concede his tremendous advantage over you in that respect," he said and threw the cigar he had just lighted into the coffee cup.

"Is that all you have to tell us?" implored the countess, with a dramatic gesture, leaning forward. Almeric looked up with surprise.

"Oh, no!" he said. "She accepted me."

The earl drooped into a chair with a sigh of relief, and the countess clasped her hands ecstatically.

"Enfin! Brava! And will she let it be soon?"

Again Almeric stifled a yawn.

"I dare say there'll be no row about that," he replied. "You see, I've made her awf'ly happy."

"On my soul, I believe you're right," said Hawcastle, "and thank God you are!"

Rising, he walked up and down the terrace and then turned quickly.

"Here's her brother," he said softly. "Attention now!"

CHAPTER VI.

EASY PREY.

USUALLY when a man through inclination or environment decides that the manners of his people will not serve for him and that the customs of the land of his adoption are more applicable to his purpose he outdoes even the natives in his conformation to the existing modes.

Horace Granger-Simpson—the Granger was but a recent innovation due to the belief that Simpson by itself was altogether too hopelessly plebeian to attract even a modicum of attention—had consorted with the gilded youth of several capitals, and his education had progressed to such an extent that the youth of Kokomo would have stoned him instantly upon his arrival at the town depot.

He ambled with a rocking gait, drawn from the guardsmen he had so carefully watched, down the steps of the hotel on to the terrace, and his attire would have attracted notice from a Hindoo idol. He wore spotlessly white flannels, white shoes pipeclayed to a dazzling degree, a thoroughly British straw hat, chamois gloves and a pale blue scarf held together with a massive pearl.

For an instant Mme. la Comtesse looked at him and then, with a little cry of greeting, rushed toward the steps and took both his startled hands.

"Ah, my dear Horace Granger-Seempson!" she said excitedly. "Has your sister told you?"

Horace swallowed once or twice savagely and then made a heroic effort to keep down the radiance that was choking him, made two effectual dabs at his eyes with the handkerchief he took from his sleeve and responded joyfully, though brokenly:

"She has, indeed. I assure you I am quite overcome, my dear friends. Really, I assure you."

With a silvery laugh Mme. de Champigny stepped backward from him, making a little courtesy as she did so. The earl came forward with outstretched hands and grasped one of Horace's between both his own.

"My dear young friend," he said. "Not at all—not at all."

As the remark seemed a trifle ambiguous, Horace looked at him inquiringly, but, reading reassurance in his face, replied instantly:

"I assure you I am. I assure you I am. It's quite overpowering, isn't it?"

With a look of commiseration the countess regarded him and said softly:

"Ah, poor M. Horace!"

From his sprawled attitude in the chair the honorable Almeric drawled a protest.

"I say! Don't take it that way, you know. She's very happy."

Horace recovered himself instantly and crossed the terrace quickly to grasp the hand of the bridegroom to be. The fact that it was as limp as a mackerel did not worry him an instant.

"She's worthy of it—she's worthy of it! I know she is! And when will it be, St. Aubyn?" he said.

"Enchanting!" cried the countess enthusiastically. "So clear is his grasp of the case, eh?"

Hawcastle flashed her a glance and turned to Horace.

"Oh, the date?" he said doubtfully. "I dare say within a year—two years"—

There was another little cry of protest from the countess, and the earl glared at her menacingly. Horace started, too, and seemed to be about to enter a positive objection, but he contented himself with saying:

"Oh, but I say, you know, isn't that putting it jolly far off? The thing's settled, isn't it? Why not say a month instead of a year?"

"Ha-hum!" said the earl. "Oh, if you like! I don't know that there is any real objection."

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Plainfield's Big Show.

All Union county is interested in the three days' Charter Day celebration which begins in Plainfield on July 5. The event is well worth celebrating, calling attention forcibly to a significant date in the history of the place, and the program as outlined is both dignified and interesting. It should appeal to all the people and prove attractive to residents throughout this section of New Jersey. The list of guests who will honor Plainfield by their presence shows that men prominent in public life in the State have been quick to recognize the importance of the occasion which the city has planned.

Plainfield is to be congratulated on the public spirit which it has shown in connection with the approaching celebration. Though the plans have been matured successfully only with a whole lot of hard work, the smoothness with which the task has been accomplished has won the admiration of outside observers. The people of the city have rallied to the support of the committees in charge of the affair, giving both of their time and money, which has insured the success of Charter Day.

Any community with a people sensitive to public appeal in matters of interest to the general welfare is fortunate. Too often successful men in business, whose brains the municipality could well make use of, have no time for public duties. They have no time to attend the primaries, no time to go to the polls, and when it comes to serving on committees for public celebrations, they laugh at the idea. It is all they can do, they say, to look after their private business and spend a little time at home. They realize that the business of the city goes on, but unless the tax rate goes up several points they do not bother about who is mayor or what incompetent gets into the City Council. "Don't bother me," is the phrase with which they turn off those who appeal for assistance in one way and another for the sake of making the city a better place to live in.

Fortunately, this is not the situation in Plainfield. There are a host of people who make that city their home who have brains, wealth and interest in civic affairs. They put the shoulder to the wheel when it is necessary and go down into their pockets as well. The city boasts with pardonable pride of a clean and, what is equally important, a progressive city government. The saloon interests, instead of continually attempting to dominate in politics and drag down the social life, are kept in the background. The care of streets and trees, and a hundred other things which might be enumerated, show intelligence and efficiency in meeting the many and often perplexing problems of city administration. Plainfield leads, rather than lumely, crudely and tardily following in practical reforms, which has earned it the reputation of being one of the best governed cities in the State of New Jersey. In Union county we do not believe that there is any other city of its size which is more progressive or is governed so well.—Elizabeth Journal.

GIRL JEWEL THIEF GIVEN FIVE YEARS.

Nellie Hammond, 20 years old, who Wednesday pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing jewelry, was sentenced by Judge Atwater, at Elizabeth, to five years at hard labor in State prison at Trenton. She was accused of robbing Miss Marie Bosler, a wealthy patient at a sanatorium in Summit last fall.

The jewelry stolen by the girl was principally heirlooms kept by the family of Miss Bosler for many years. The girl was arrested several weeks ago in a hospital at Yonkers, N.Y., by Detective-Sergeant Samuel Murphy, and brought to Elizabeth, under extradition. When arrested in New York several articles of jewelry alleged to have been stolen from the Yonkers hospital were found in her possession.

Miss Bosler, the complaining witness against the Hammond girl, resides in Albany

EDWARD NICHOLS FALLS OVER, DEAD.

Edward Nichols, 40 years old, of 137 Bond street, Elizabethport, fell dead while talking to some friends on the corner of Bond and Second streets Wednesday. Mr. Nichols was a former member of the police force and was well-known in the downtown section. He was a brother-in-law of Frank Travers and of Bernard Travers, of the fire department.

When Mr. Nichols was stricken his friends called Dr. Samuel Korngut, of 167 Second street. When he arrived at the scene a few moments later he pronounced the man dead. The body was removed by R. J. Mitchel.

The county physician was notified. Dr. Korngut gave heart disease as the cause of death. Mr. Nichols had not been in very good health for some time. He leaves one daughter.

Why He Quit.

"So you abandoned the simple style of spelling?"

"Yes," responded the former advocate of the fad. "I found it so difficult to make people understand that I knew better."—Philadelphia Ledger.

CELEBRATION MEDALS OUT

Bronze Charter Day Souvenirs Bear Tier's Lake Scene.

FUND GROWS TO $6,570.

Officials For Big Athletic Meet Announced and Prizes For the Events Are On Exhibition.

The first lot of the official Charter Day celebration medals is placed on sale today. These souvenir medals are made in a rich golden alloy of statuary bronze, suspended from a tri-color ribbon, and are extremely artistic in appearance. In the centre, in low relief, is a representation of Tier's Lake, a scene selected because of its picturesqueness, and the fact that its geographical location between the two celebating municipalities makes it of mutual interest to both. In the foreground are two shields of the conventional shape used for historical dates; the one on the left overlapping the North Plainfield shore, bearing the charter and anniversary years 1884-1909, while the one on the Plainfield side bears the likewise proper dates 1869-1909.

Beneath these are floating ribbons with the names Plainfield and North Plainfield. Back of the ribbons, an eagle with outspread wings unites the motive and imparts a national touch appropriate to the season of the celebration.

In designing the medal the set coin treatment has been avoided, and a freer modelled effect is secured, by casting the bronze instead of stamping it—albeit at a trifling loss in distinctness. The rim is irregular and rolling, in imitation of the undulated oozed edge of a wax seal, in keeping with the charter idea.

It is presumed that everybody will wish to wear one of the souvenir medals, especially as the committee sell them at only a dime apiece.

A. L. Conant, director of the Charter Day games, to be held the afternoon of July 5, has announced the following officials for the occasion: Honorary director of the games, Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield; Honorary Referee, Mayor C. J. Fisk; Referee, George L. Listman; Judges, John H. Doane, Harry C. Runyon and P. H. Burns; Clerk of the Course, Charles Line; Starter, George L. Listman; Timers,

MANY COMPLAIN OF LINES GROO'S DOGS

If "Flo," the Boston bull-dog belonging to Lines Groo, of West Second street, had been on exhibition at the dog show today, she would have been carded as "dangerous," and would have been given a wide berth by at least a dozen people who live in the vicinity of Mr. Groo's home. These people were at police court this morning, and told how "Flo" and her family of three puppies rush out at pedestrians, and not only bark but bite. Teeth marks of the mother dog were shown on the limbs of three and there were tales of tree-climbing to escape.

It took nearly two hours to hear all the complaints about the canine family which is so adequately championed by the mother dog, and when the testimony was all in, City Judge Runyon announced that he would reserve decision in the case until next Saturday. The action was brought as the result of an attack by "Flo" on Clifford Locke, a fourteen-year-old boy who lives on East Sixth street, and the boy bore three bite marks as the result of an attack upon him while he was passing the Groo house on Monday. Locke's father was in court to look after his interests, and Mr. Groo was represented by Francis J. Blatz.

Among those who testified as to "Flo's" viciousness were Frank Force, another bitten boy; Harry Dunn, of South avenue, and Howard McDonough, of East Sixth street. Raymond Miller, a Westfield boy, who was bitten some time ago, also testified, together with J. M. Hunt, a neighbor of Mr. Groo, and Anthony Kofort, of Wiley avenue, who was bitten last month. All testified that the dog was aggressively vicious.

The fact that the Groo dog family has a kennel license, and numbers but four canines, and the fact that this license has been secured since the complaint was issued, was the cause of the reserved decision, it is said.

Mr. Manning to Speak.

Martin A. Korff and J. Harry Manning will be present at the Salvation Army meeting tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Korff will play several selections on the violin and Mr. Manning will give a heart-to-heart Gospel talk. A cordial welcome will be extended to all.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Young, of Somerville, have removed to Plainfield.

GROSZMANN EXERCISES

Drs. S. A. Knopf and S. P. Goodhart Speak at Watchung Crest.

OTHERS MAKE ADDRESSES.

Dr. Richard Moldenke, J. D. Lorzeaux and Dr. Groszmann Talk—A Fairy Drama.

The term exercises of the Groszmann School for Nervous and Atypical Children held yesterday afternoon at the school hall on Watchung Crest proved to be one of the greatest successes which this institution has so far achieved. A large and representative audience filled the hall to overflowing. People had come from distant points, even as far as Chicago, to witness these exercises. For local people these exercises meant the revelation of the fact that there is a great movement being carried on on the top of our mountain of which few had any knowledge. As J. D. Loizeaux, who was one of the speakers of the afternoon expressed it, his presence there for the first time made him feel strange that he had never been there before, but that he had now learned to appreciate what this work meant and that it would have his most sympathetic support, and that he only hoped that all the people of Plainfield would give themselves the opportunity of convincing themselves of the merits of the work and that it is worthy of their most emphatic assistance, financial and otherwise.

Other speakers addressed the audience, the most prominent of whom were Dr. S. Adolphus Knopf, the noted leader in the fight against tuberculosis, and Dr. Richard Moldenke. Dr. Knopf, in eloquent and inspiring words spoke fo his own great interest in this work, to which he has recently donated the sum of $1,000, and laid particular stress upon the humanitarian and philanthropic aspect of this great movement. Dr. Moldenke referred to the importance which this pioneer work has for social uplifting, and emphasized its value for communal, State and national problems. He suggested very strongly, that the work should receive the benefit of State appropriations.

WANTS PART OF ESTATE

Charles H. Hand Files Caveat Against Probate of Miss Holton's Will.

TESTAMENT NOT FILED YET.

Contestant Will Attempt to Prove That Miss Holton Was Unsound Mentally.

Seeking to obtain a portion of her estate, Charles H. Hand, of this city, yesterday filed a caveat in the office of Surrogate W. G. DeMond at Somerville against the admission of Miss Mary E. Holton's will to probate. Miss Holton died a week ago at her home on Duer street leaving an estate valued at $25,000, which she directed by her will distributed among charities and some fifteen relatives living in Newark, Bayonne, Hoboken and other places.

Mr. Hand in his caveat states that as a blood relative he is entitled to one-fourth of the estate and alleges that in his belief Miss Holton was of unsound mind at the time she executed the will. He further alleges that when her father died he left her an estate amounting to $80,000. This, according to Mr. Hand, was increased to $150,000 by shrewd investments, but before her death she had disposed of the bulk of it by contributions to missionary purposes in the Baptist church.

Winfield Scott Angleman, Mr. Hand's lawyer said today that he will attempt to prove that Miss Holton was of unsound mind and that the gifts to charity during her lifetime were void on that account and must be returned.

Mrs. James K. Arnold, another local relative, has also employed counsel to contest the will and it is expected that a caveat will be filed for her early next week. She claims one-fourth of the estate.

The will in question was drawn in April by Miss Holton's lawyer, Reuben Knox. J. Herbert Case, secretary and treasurer of the Plainfield Trust Company, and John Holton, are named as executors. Reed & Coddington, who represent the executors have not as yet offered the instrument for probate.

"TAG DAY" WORKERS GATHER IN THE COIN

If anybody escaped being tagged today it was because he was shut up in the house or in some other place where the taggers could not reach them. The tag merchants were ubiquitous and the way the coins rattled into the little pasteboard boxes was a caution.

At one o'clock when a count was made of the returns from 25 boxes nearly $225 had been collected. Using these figures as a basis in forecasting the total amount that may be realized from the 300 boxes that are in the hands of the collectors, nearly $2,700 will be the total amount collected for the King's Daughters' charitable enterprizes.

George J. Whalen, who gave $2 when first tagged added $10 more when he was informed of the character of the charity. The affair beundenominational in character has enlisted the sympathies of all classes which accounts for the generous response that is being made.

She Scared Off the Burglar.

An attempt to break into the home of Mrs. G. F. Hayden, 1212 Martine avenue, was thwarted early this morning when Mrs. Hayden, aroused by the noise of someone tampering with the back door, turned on the electric lights all over the house and scared the burglars away. Investigation showed that the lock on the back door had been forced, but the intruder had been scared off when about to enter the house. The police were informed by telephone, but the patrolmen could find no traces of the burglar.

Miss Fountain's Wedding Tonight.

Miss Ada Fountain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Fountain, of West Seventh street, and Robin Brown, of Verdon street, the borough, will be married this evening at 6 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church.

After Riley.

"When the frost is on the pumpkin and the corn is in the shock,"
And the hints of frigid weather at your household portals knock,
You will feel a wave of comfort o'er your contemplation roll
If in time you've stocked your cellar with the Geo. O. Stevens' coal.

MUIR TESTIMONIAL A GREAT SUCCESS

Capacity Audience Applauds Best Amateur Minstrel Show Ever Given Here.

TO BE REPEATED TONIGHT.

The new Plainfield theatre had its capacity tested last night when it attempted to hold the crowd that wanted to be accomodated with seats at the grand testimonial tendered by his friends to the popular young reporter, "Tom" Muir. Breathing space was about all that was left when the curtain went up on the first chorus, but when Judge Runyon announced that $1,094.75 had been received for the first night's effort, the cheering rapidly consumed the oxygen that was left and the audience sought the outer air.

It was a stirring scene, that last one—A hundred and fifty men cheering like mad, a man in the center of the stage wreathed in smiles, and a big floral horse-shoe, several bouquets and the background of red, white and blue, made a picture that will be remembered for many a day.

The audience was a sympathetic one and indulged itself to the limit in the matter of applause, and it may be said right here that the applause bestowed was fairly earned. The jokes were good, the instrumental and vocal music all that could be desired and the stage arrangements magnificent.

The drop went up as the chorus sang "In the Evening by the Moonlight," after the orchestra had played a medley of patriotic airs. As the curtain ascended, revealing the seried banks of red, white and blue costumes, the audience broke out in prolonged applause. It may safely be said that the arrangement and costuming of the chorus never had a superior anywhere and the brains that conceived the idea and the hands that worked it out are entitled to the praise they received.

The program was fully up to expectations, every number being encored and the different numbers passed along with the precision and smoothness of well-oiled machinery. Wm. F. Tallamy was the first soloist and sang "No One Knows," sweetly, his fine tenor voice being just right. George Rittenhouse got one over with "Just One Sweet Girl," that brought an encore and Wm. Holmes, assisted by the double quartet, received an ovation for the rendering of "The Clang of the Forge."

A sensation was sprung when George B. Cose, singing "Capt. Willie Brown," had a whistling chorus for accompaniment. It brought down the house. Elmer D. Cutting, John V. Todd, Bertram F. Tallamy and Wm. J. Counihan all received unstinted applause, Mr. Counihan getting a double encore. Ray Mack, Wm. J. Firstbrook, Fred Miller and Harry N. Blimm all got there with all there was in them, singing and acting their parts perfectly.

The double quartet which assisted Mr. Holmes and Mr. Tallamy was composed of these: Elmer D. Cutting, Joseph O. Randall, Wm. F. Tallamy, Edward D. Young, Louis V. Tallamy, Harry Uhler, Jr., Wm. G. Smith and Joseph C. Martin.

Between the acts Mayor C. J. Fisk delivered a speech. He said in part: "Ladies and gentlemen, I am not here in an official capacity, but as a friend of Tom Muir. Nearly everyone here known who he is. He is a Plainfield boy, son of a machinist and did not have the advantages that other boys enjoy, being one of a family of eleven children. He has always been bright, and has always been ready to turn to and help any one at any time and where there was any assistance needed Tom was always on hand. He has

ENJOY BEN GREET SHOWS

Two Shakespearan Plays Produced on St. Mary's College Campus.

OVER 3,000 IN AUDIENCE.

Superb Cast Roundly Applauded—Large List of Patronesses For the Affair.

The Ben Great Players presented Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew," to a large and fashionable audience at the open air theatre on Mount Saint Mary's college campus yesterday afternoon which was very favorably received.

It was a first-class performance in every respect, the company being a unit in the characterization of the parts. It has been said that the company played no stars ;that it is a company of artists without special individuality. However this may be, the audience yesterday was inclined to say that it was a company of stars who came and saw and conquered.

Miss Keith Wakeman, as Katherina, who was an understudy to Ellen Terry, seemed to have been imbued with all of that famous actress' and brought the audience to its feet at the conclusion of the first scene with Petruchio.

Another young woman, Miss Millicent Evison, as a servant to Lucentio, won the admiration of the audience by her correct interpretation and lively use of a comparatively small part. Frank McEntee, the Petruchio, was splendidly brutal, while his servant Grumio, (John S. O'Brien), was exceptionally brilliant.

Mr. O'Brien met with an unfortunate accident in the third act, when he cut his hand severely on broken glass on the stage in his encounter with the ferocious Katharina. This mishap did not feaze the actors who proceeded with the play as though nothing unusual had happened.

All the characters were cleverly portrayed and heartily applauded. An orchestra rendered appropriate music between the acts.

The performance of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," was even more largely attended than the afternoon's splendid entertainment having an audience estimated at nearly 1,500 people. The sudden cold snap did not affect the region of the hills, and the temperature was an ideal one.

The performance itself was well nigh perfect and brought forth tumultuous applause, every actor in teh cast being rewarded for his efforts.

No better interpretation of Shakespeare's idyl has ever been given in these parts. The financial return was very satisfactory and insures the scholarships for which the performances were given.

The patronesses were:

The Y. M. C. A. team will play the Clinton, Hunterdon county team, at Clinton, this afternoon. The locals are assured of a warm reception, as the Clinton boys have the reputation for playing fast ball.

Fred Burchell, who is well-known in local baseball circles, is pitching good ball for the Boston Americans this season.

The Plainfield Baseball Club will play "Dave" Driscoll's New Brunswick team at the latter place next Saturday.

Boyd, the fast-fielding and hard-hiting outfielder, will join the Plainfield Baseball Club today and should prove a valuable acquisition. He formerly played with the Elizabeth team.

Detroit now leads the American League race with a percentage of .620, and is closely followed by the Philadelphia Athletics. The Yankees are in fifth position, plugging away in the best way possible. The fans are not pleased with their showing, but hope for better things. Vaughn has been replaced at second base by Laporte.

Despite the fact that the Philadelphia Athletics used three pitchers, it was unable to defeat Detroit on Thursday. The score was 4 to 1. The Athletics used twelve men.

"Rube" Oldring, who at one time played here, is being given a vacation by Manager Mack, of the Philadelphia Athletics. He had fallen off in his batting and fielding.

Clark Griffith, manager of the Cincinnati team, is showing his ability to produce a good team. His aggregation now occupies third position in the National League race, and is doing almost as well as the Giants. This must hurt Frank Farrell.

GOLF.

A team from the Plainfield Country Club will play the New Brunswick team at the latter place, this afternoon. This will be the first match between these clubs this season, and will probably be followed by a return game here later. A match between the Country Club and the Park Golf Club members would be interesting.

The event of interest at the Plainfield Country Club this afternoon will be teh continuation of play for the Spring Hanidcap cups, Classes A and B. At the Park Golf Club there will be the weekly competition for the President's, golf cup and Summer cups.

"Marty" O'Loughlin, the professional at the Plainfield Country Club, will enter the big tournament at Englewood the latter part of he month for the open championship.

In the ball sweepstakes at the Westfield Golf Club, Saturday, Joseph Sherman finished first and A. R. Whitman received second prize. The weekly competition is for the Governor's cup, and is exciting considerable interest.

Never before in the history of the club has the course at the Plainfield Country Club been in better condition than at present. The members are delighted with it and appreciate the work of the green committee.

There will be a dinner-dance at the Plainfield Country Club, tonight, for the members and their friends. Plans are already being made for the opening of the new addition to the clubhouse.

Social life at the Park Golf Club is greatly enjoyed these days. Steward George Anderson is in charge and his services are highly satisfactory. Every Saturday afternoon tea is served at the clubhouse and usually women members are in charge.

tional Association for the Study and Education of Exceptional Children, which maintains the school, enlarged upon the scientific significance of Dr. Groszmann's work, and who has for the first time suggested to the medical and educational world a clear classification of exceptional children as a working basis. Dr. Groszmann himself explained the nature and significance of the exercises, as well as the chaarcter of the work to which his life is devoted.

The exercises consisted in the presentation of a fairy drama, "Thornrose, or the Sleeping Beauty," in which most of the pupils and teachers of the school took part. The score of the play, the scenery, the stage, the costumes, etc., were all home made and the presentation itself had grown out of the actual work of the school. The effect was beautiful and striking and there was a general expression of amazement and admiration that such astonishing and unexpected results could have been obtained.

TESTIMONIAL A SUCCESS

been a newspaper reporter for nine years and early lost the sight of one eye. In recent months he was attacked in the other eye with the same disease and is still hoping against hope that he may be cured.

"The doctors are doing the best they can to bring about this result. Tom is happy and keeps up his courage. His friends got this entertainment together to make up a sum for him that it might be used by him in some business.

"He is 29 years old, just the age when he should be doing his best. He will probably be blind the rest of his life. So this testimonial is from his friends who wish to give him a start in some business. There are some cartoons being passed among you which are to be sold to add to the funds. I hope those of you who can will buy one and thus help along the worthy cause.

"This is not a begging speech, but you can buy the cartoons if you want to, and I think you all will. Those who have taken part in the entertainment are all friends of Tommy Muir and we thank you all."

The second part of the program served to introduce "Sir General," a wonderfully trained pony, who could do everything but speak; the "Three Marvelous Mills," comedy gymnasts whose muscular ability was a feature of note, and the "Four Musical Luciers," masters of many instruments and vocalists of no mean ability. Among these is J. R. Lucier, a blind musician equally at home at the piano or with the cornet. He is an accomplished artist and made a decided hit with his playing.

The performance will be repeated tonight and a record-breaking crowd is expected. The whole affair speaks mighty well for Plainfield and its fame will spread abroad. Judge Runyon made a short speech after "Auld Lang Syne" was sung, in which he said he could only repeat what Mayor Fisk had said about Tom Muir and emphasized the seriousness of the whole matter. He also said, "We who enjoy the everyday blessings and look upon sight as such a common blessing that but few appreciate it for its full worth. Tom has had five months of blackness of a certain kind, therefore let us look to it that the rest of his life be made as cheerful and contented as may be. God bless you all."

The chorus consisted of Charles Allen, Thomas Apgar, William Anderson, Wesley Bush, Leonard F. Bennett, R. H. Bellows, George Cose, Thomas Connelly, John A. Connelly, B. K. Davis, C. K. Davis, E. M. Daniel, Jr., James Emery, Howard Firstbrook, Boyd Fullerton, LeRoy Gates, W. T. Glenney, Herbert Guinn, Albert Harris, Edward Harding, C. W. Harrell, Charles Kreger, Harry Kean, H. Klinsman.

Edward Mundy, Edward Mattell, James Moore, E. H. Morrison, J. J. Mutch, D. B. Martin, C. O. Pierson, C. Pittis, Harry H. NEWARK CHURCH MEN DINE AT WINDHAM'S

Under the auspices of the Young Men's League of the South Baptist church, of Newark, the annual outing of that organization, accompanied by other members of the church to the number of about seventy, came to Plainfield, last night in a special trolley car and had a banquet at the Waldorf Hotel. The outing was arranged by a committee of which W. R. Smith was chairman, and assisted by L. D. H. Gilmour, assistant counsel for the Public Srevice Corporation. Rev. Clark Brownell, pastor of the church, accompanied his parishioners.

One of the Public Service Corporation's large open cars was used for the trip, the start being made in Newark at 6:50. It was exactly 8:30, when the party arrived at the Waldorf Hotel. Proprietor Henry Windham had everything in readiness and the visitors were escorted to his handsome new dining-room, where long tables were handsomely decorated with flowers and the dinner was served.

It was a lively good-natured crowd and besides enjoying a fine dinner, the company made lots of fun for itself. Brief informal speeches, in which the committee was complimented for the enjoyable outing. All the handsome flowers which were used by Mr. Windham to decorate the tables, were afterward presented to the women of the party. It was nearly 10 o'clock, when the Newarkers started for home, all delighted with the trip and expressing the desire to return to Plainfield again at some future time.

DR. H. H. OBERLY CABLES NEWS OF SAFETY.

The first definite message from the Rev. Dr. H. H. Oberly, of Elizabeth, who, with Mrs. Oberly, was aboard the Cunarder Slavonia when the boat went on the rocks in the Azores, has been received by cable by Mrs. J. W. Laidley, Mrs. Oberly's mother. Mrs. Laidley is spending the summer with her niece, Mrs. Philip A. H. Brown, in Cooperstown, N. Y.

In his message the Rev. Dr. Oberly says that he and Mrs. Oberly suffered no ill effects as a result of the unfortunate occurrence. Their trunks were all lost, but they managed to save their suitcases.

Dr. Oberly says in the cablegram that he did not stop at Gibralter, but continued to Naples

Counting Up Ferry Passengers.

Seven men appointed by the Board of Tax Assessors for the city of Hoboken entered the vestibule of the Lackawanna Railroad Company yesterday morning at the foot of Newark street, to check off the passenger traffic of the company, in Hoboken, and also to check off the vehicular traffic. They were ejected by the company's officials, but continued their work outside. The data are being obtained to refute the contention made by the Lackawanna Railroad before the State Board for the Equalization of Taxes that the ferry traffic derived from Hoboken was a loss and not a profit to it.

Ford D. Smith Dies Suddenly.

Town Attorney Ford D. Smith, of Dover, was stricken with paralysis shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday at Dover, and died five hours later. He had been apparently in the best of health and expected to visit the exposition in Seattle next month. Mr. Smith was born near Dover April 29, 1845. He served in the Assembly in 1891, and was one of the coterie of Democrats who helped to defeat Leon Abbott when the latter was a candidate for the United States Senate. He subsequently left the Democratic party because of the continued dominance of Bryan in the party.

WARREN CHAPEL'S FESTIVAL AND SALE

Warren chapel's festival and sale had a successful termination last night, the temperature being unable to cool the ardor of those who like ice cream. The rain, although it ruined the decorations the preceding day, failed to dim the brilliance of the illumination of last evening and a larger attendance than was even hoped for was on hand.

Many quarts of cream were disposed of and about $180 was taken in. In other words the affair was a gigantic success, due to the indefatigable work of the various committees under the direction of Theodore J. Martin.

Those who had charge of the various booths were: Candy, Miss Nora B. Schenck; lemonade, Alfred Everett; flowers, Miss Adele Kirby; ice cream, Chas. Windham; cake, Mrs. J. O. McKelvey. Miss Dollie Bostlerli was in charge of the waitresses.

In the receiving booth Mrs. John Schenck graciously attended to the arrivals, and Miss May Bennett made an admirable cashier. Francis Caldwell and Earl Smith who had charge of the electrical illumination did their work nobly. The following who composed a general committee from the Missionary Aid Society were ably assisted by a large corps of workers from the church, Mrs. J. W. Gavett, Mrs. John Snyder, Mrs. Benjamin Moore, Mrs. Gibson Smith, and Miss Hattie Taynor.

Rabbi Wise Praises Japan.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, of New York, jolted the self-esteem of a patriotic audience at the Montclair High School commencement exercises in the First Congregational church Thursday night at Montclair when in his address to the class of seventy-six scholars he said that the British and Japanese were the two greatest peoples of the world. The rabbi's sentiments were received in silence. He said that Japan's genius for self-control made it a great nation, and this quality, displayed in the face of repeated insults, had prevented a bloody war.

DR. ZWEMER TALKS AT A MISSIONARY TEA

Under the auspices of the Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church, a delightful missionary tea was held in the lecture room of the church yesterday afternoon. There was a large attendance of members and others interested. After the opening exercises, in charge of the president, Mrs. Leonard S. Smith, in which Rev. John Y. Broek, the pastor, offered prayer, and Miss Winifred Carroll sang a pleasing solo, there was an address of great interest by Mrs. Zwemer, wife of Rev. Dr. S. M. Zwemer. Both Mrs. Zwemer and her husband were missionaries in Arabia for many years. They are now at home interesting people in foreign missions.

Mrs. Zwemer spoke chiefly of the conditon of the women of Arabia and the great necessity for educating them and teaching them about Christ. She said that the majority of them can neither read nor write, and their husbands do all that is possible to prevent them from doing so. Divorces are possible in five minutes time if desired. A man is permitted to have four wives at one time, but no more.

The speaker laid great stress on the degraded condition of the women and urged the band to consider especially this feature of the mission work. She and her husband have devoted a greater part of their time to reaching the women, and they found the most successful way of doing so through the hospital work. Mrs. Zwemer said that on an average about 20,000 people visit the dispensary every year.

Dr. and Mrs. Zwemer were stationed at the hospital at Bahrein, Arabia. There are four principal mission stations conducted by the Reformed church in Arabia, among a population of about eight million people. It is found very difficult to reach the natives, except through the hospital.

Mrs. Zwemer explained this by saying the people are filled with superstition. They have their lucky days, and they will not do anything unless they think that the sign of luck is with them. However, Mrs. Zwemer presented an encouraging side of the work, showing that the Reformed church missionaries are doing well. Reference was also made to Dr. Paul W. Harrison, who is to be the Trinity Reformed church missionary in Arabia.

Following the address, the entertainment committee of the band, comprising Miss Mabel Wilson, chairman; Mrs. Lorenzo D. Townley, Mrs. Corra Ryno, Mrs. William Olmstead, Miss Etta Raybert, Mrs. F. S. Cutter and Mrs. A. B. Cole, served refreshments during the social hour. The waitresses were Miss Helen Woolley, Miss Madaline Strader, Miss Helen Roberts, Miss Emma Ryno, Miss Gertrude Schleif and Miss Helen Crane.

The Wise Squirrel

It was on a beautiful sunny day in April, of this year, that a cunning gray squirrel with a long bushy tail and large erect ears, came cautiously up to where I sat on the porch, and took from my hand a nice big English Walnut, cracked it and swallowed the meats. Two more nuts he ate in like manner, and the fourth, a butternut, he carried to his burrow natural bank, (a hole in the ground near a tree) and left it as a "Savings Deposit."

One-fourth of his "gettings" the wise squirrel saved. He is promised no interest on his deposit, and yet he is wiser than, the man, woman, boy or girl who is allowed interest but who is not putting away something every week, in the

INDEPENDENCE DAY XMAS EVENT, HE SAYS

Citizens of many lands are crowding the Court of Common Pleas Thursday at Elizabeth where Judge Atwater held Naturalization Court. During the morning's session nearly a dozen men withdrew from the protection of their native lands and swore allegiance to the Stars and Stripes. The examination of applicants is being made by United States District Attorney W. J. Gregg.

The answers to the questions of the attorney in many cases are as humorous as those given at previous sessions of the court. One man said the Declaration of Independence was made on Christmas Day, 1669, and for that reason Christmas was observed in commemoration of the event. Another, when asked into how many houses Congress is divided, said: "Two, Trenton and Washington." The highest court in the United States is called the "High Court," another applicant declared.

In answer to the question "Who is the Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy?" an applicant said, "The Governor."

An Englishman said he wasn't sure, but thought the Declaration of Independence was made sometime in June, 1777.

WANTS SPUTUM FOR EXAMINATION.

Important Circular From State Laboratory Sent to Boards of Health.

In order to inform the citizens of the State that the States Laboratory of Hygiene is endeavoring to carry out the provisions of the 1909 law and encourage the people to have specimens of sputum examined, the State Board of Health yesterday sent out a notice to every health officer in the State informing him that the State Department will be glad to make microscopical examinations without charge.

The circular sent out by the State Board reads as follows:

"Your attention is directed to section 2 of chapter 250 of the laws of 1909, which reads as follows:

"'It shall be the duty of every health officer of the city, borough, town or other municipality in this State, when so requested by any physician, or by the authorities of any hospital or dispensary, to make or cause to be made a microscopical examination of the sputum forwarded to him as that of a person having symptoms of tuberculosis, which shall be forwarded to such officer accompanied by a blank giving name, age, sex, color, occupation, place where last employed, if known, and address of the person whose sputum it is. It shall be the duty of said health officer promptly to make a report of the results of such examination, free of charge, to the physician or person upon whose application the same is made.'

"The State Laboratory of Hygiene is prepared to make examinations of specimens of sputum without charge and provides outfits for the collection and transmissal of such specimens to the laboratory. A supply of these outfits will be sent to you by prepaid express if you will notify the laboratory that you are in need of them. The laboratory is also prepared to examine specimens from suspected cases of diphtheria, typhoid fever, malaria, rabies and anthrax and to make certain other investigations relating to communicable diseases. Requests for such investigations should be addressed to the director of the laboratory."

FIRST GRADUATES FROM NEWARK'S LAW SCHOOL.

Judge James B. Dill, of the New Jersey Court of Errors and Appeals, delivered the principal address Thursday at the commencement exercises of the New Jersey Law School, of Newark, held in Wallace's Hall. The school was organized in October and ten young men were graduated last night, receiving the degree of Bachelor of Laws.

After the address by Judge Dill and members of the faculty, George F. Reeve, president of the Newark Board of Trade, presented diplomas.

Runaway Injures Two Women.

An apprentice accidentally touched a horse with a hot iron in Samuel Peuraro's blacksmith shop in Jersey City, Thursday, and the animal left the place in haste. On its way down the street it knocked down and injured Mrs. William Van Horn and Mrs. Mary Wolfe. Besides all that, the man who caught the runaway, W. J. Burkard, got into a fist fight with the owner of the horse, Piasso Pouraro, over the amount due him for his effort. The injured women were removed to the City Hospital where, it is said, they are not seriously hurt.

Yale Man Dies From Old Injuries.

Asher H. Vreeland, son of Ferdinand H. Vreeland, of Jersey City, died at Long Branch Thursday from internal injuries received a year ago last September while a student at Yale. Young Vreeland was run down by an automobile in New Haven. He was seized with convulsions Monday and died without regaining consciousness.

BOOM GOOD ROADS AT A DINNER IN BERGEN.

"Good roads for Bergen" was the slogan at a dinner given by County Engineer Ralph D. Earle to members of the Board of Freeholders and other Bergen county officials Thursday night. The dinner was held at Cella's Park Hotel, Fort Lee. Thirty-five guests were present, including Judge Milton Demarest.

A number of addresses were made and with but one exception all favored the project of having the roads of the county taken over and improved by State aid.

The one dissenting voice was raised by Freeholder De Witt, of Englewood. He asserted that his municipality had spent nearly a quarter of a million dollars in developing its own good roads system, and that it would be unfair to have the county assume control over all these improved highways.

In reply it was stated that an effort could be made to have the law amended so as to conserve to a municipality all rights as to granting franchise privileges over its own thoroughfares. Some of the speakers were of the opinion that that right is still retained by municipalities, the control of the roads taken over extending only to maintenance and construction.

JUDGE E. A. ARMSTRONG ACQUITTED BY COURT.

Judge E. Ambler Armstrong was acquitted in the Criminal Court at Camden Thursday of the charge of converting to his own use certain stock alleged to have been owned by the defunct State Mutual Building and Loan Association, of which he was president.

This verdict was ordered to be entered by Judge Thomas A. Davis on the ground that the prosecution had not been begun within the two years required by the statute of limitations. Counsel for the defence had argued for this result not only on the ground of the statute of limitations but also that a clear case had not been made out by the prosecution.

Judge Armstrong broke down in the court room yesterday and sobbed as he heard a letter read he had sent to the receivers of the concern in reply to their demand for the return of all moneys and stock of the company in his possession.

WORK THAT TELLS.

Plenty of It Has Been Done Right Here In Plainfield.

Cures that last are cures that tell. To thoroughly know the virtues of a medicine you must investigate the cures and see if they prove permanent. Doan's Kindney Pills stand this test, and plenty of proof exists right here in Plainfield. People who testified years ago to relief from backache and kidney disorders, now declare that relief was permanent and the cure perfect. How can any Plainfield sufferer longer doubt the evidence?

Mrs. John Driscoll, 753 West Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "The statement I gave several years ago concerning my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills was true and still holds good in every particular. I had a dull pain across my back which clung to me incessantly. Hard work increased my misery and at times I also suffered from headaches and dizzy spells. I tried plasters and remedies of various kinds but without finding relief. Doan's Kidney Pills, which I finally purchased at Randolph's Pharmacy relieved me and I heartily recommend them. I know of other persons who have used them with just as good results."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Edwin Stiles, of Glassboro, fell from a cherry tree Wednesday and sprained both arms and both legs.

Mildred Stanger, the six-year-old grandchild of former Surrogate John S. Risley, of May's Landing, was severely bitten by a large hound dog belonging to Charles Cain.

Falling from a cherry tree at Woodstown, William Robinson, sixty years old, sustained a fractured shoulder-blade and was taken to Cooper Hospital, Camden.

Kicked in the head by a mule, Luke Voight, fifty-seven years old, of Gibbstown, is in Cooper Hospital with concussion of the brain and severe scalp lacerations.

Judge Sinnickson, at a special session of court at Salem, Wednesday, sentenced Le Roy Bell, a negro, to three years in State prison, for burglarly. Bell recently entered several homes in Upper Penn's Neck Township and secured clothing and money in various amounts, ranging from $12 to $50.

Mayor Stoy, of Atlantic City, swore in Edward Burke as captain of the life guards, and he also sent nine additional life savers to the beach, making a total of fourteen now on duty. City Physician Beckwith has opened the beach hospital tent. The bathing season is now considered formally opened.

Declaring that a great economic food problem will be solved and a bar placed against advancing meat prices, if plans of the Federal Government to restock the Delaware river with sturgeon and other fish prove successful, river fishermen at Burlington and elsewhere are watching with intense interest the experiments to be made within a few weeks of introducing European fish in this stream.

The members of the Ocean City Council and the ten lifeguards recently elected have been cited by Justice Trenchard to appear in the Supreme Court today to show cause why a certioari should not be issued to certify the proceedings of Council in electing the guard. Complaint is made by Walter McCorkle, a resident of Ocean City, that unless the guards are appointed by the Mayor the health and lives of the inhabitants will not properly be safeguarded.

Three victims of vicious dogs had wounds inflicted by the animals dressed at the General Hospital, Paterson, Wednesday. Joseph Gordon was playing with a dog when the animal bit him on the lip. Gordon lives at 42 Pearl street. William Simpson, a schoolboy living at 129 Vine street, was attacked by a dog. The animal inflicted a wound on the lad's leg. Charles Ruffulo, of Singac, and employed in the Benjamin Eastwood machine shops, had his finger lacerated by a dog which he stopped to pet.

MRS. CLEVELAND TO GO ABROAD WITH FAMILY.

"Westland," the beautiful residence of Mrs. Grover Cleveland, widow of the former President of the United States, which is situated at the foot of Bayard lane, Princeton, will be vacated by the family of the late President for the next year and occupied by Mrs. William Borden, of Chicago. Mrs. Cleveland and her family will travel abroad.

The residence was purchased by President Cleveland just before he retired from the executive chair in 1897. He announced his intention at this time of living in retirement and quietness and selected Princeton as the place to spend the remainder of his days. He moved to Princeton with his family and a year ago he closed his life in this house.

It had been the custom of the family during the life of the President to spend the summer months in New Hampshire and other places in New England, but the death of the father last year made this custom a short and unhappy one and Mrs. Cleveland decided to give the children a change of scenery and atmosphere abroad this year.

The details incident to the renting of the mansion have not been completed yet, and until this is done Mrs. Cleveland will not attempt to make up her itinerary. She will for the next few weeks, however, remain at Tamworth, N. H.

Mrs. Borden, who will make her home in that section for the next year, is a member of one of the wealthy families of Chicago. She has business interests in this section to command her attention.

WANTS A JERSEY BRIDE.

Thirty-four years old, possessing good health, character and some accomplishments, all backed up with a roll of $25,000—thus is described John W. Grant, of Truckee, Cal., who wants to settle down in California with a Jersey wife in Blairstown. He has sent a letter to the editor of the local paper there, his old home town, to help him out.

The girl must be at least eighteen years old, and not over thirty. Besides that, she must be good-looking. John intimates that he won't look at a girl who wouldn't be a credit to him in the line of looks.

The Blairstown girls are all of a flutter over it, and Postmaster Smith says he has sent bushels of sweet-scented mail to Truckee already.

The Man From Home

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

"I do, indeed," returned Horace. "See here! Why not let them marry here in Italy?"

Hawcastle could scarcely conceal his satisfaction, while Mme. de Champigny executed a bit of a pas seul behind Horace's back.

"Ah, the dashing methods of you Americans!" returned the earl smilingly. "You carry things on so! Next you'll be saying, 'Why not here at Sorrento?'"

"Well, and why not, indeed?" asked Horace instantly.

"And then," went on Hawcastle, smiling, "and then it will be, 'Why not within a fortnight?'"

"Right-o!" cried Horace. "And why not within a fortnight?"

Almeric sat up and stared at his noble father and brother-in-law to be, but the earl smiled once more that cheerful smile and waved a deprecating hand.

"Ah, you wonderful people! You are whirlwinds, yet I see no reason why it should not be in a fortnight."

"Oh, here! I say, you know!" interjected Almeric, heaving himself erect in the chair and waving a protesting crop. The earl turned on him instantly.

"As I say, dear boy, why not?" he inquired suavely, and Almeric wilted immediately.

"Just as you say, governor," he answered meekly.

"Enchanting! Brava!" cried the countess, and Hawcastle again turned to the palpitating Horace.

"My son is all impatience," he murmured, fixing the young man with his eye.

"Quite so, quite so!" answered Almeric dazedly, and his father went on:

"Shall we dispose of the necessary little details at once—the various minor arrangements, the—er—er—settlement?" and interrupted himself with a friendly laugh and patted Horace upon the back. "Of course as men of the world—our world—you understand there are formalities in the nature of a settlement."

Horace, who was in the seventh heaven of delight at the approaching alliance between one of the ancient houses of Kokomo, Ind., and the honorable line of Hawcastle, broke in eagerly:

"Quite so, of course! I know! Certainly! Perfectly!"

"Then we'll have no difficulty about that, my boy. I'll wire my solicitor tonight and he'll be here within two days," said the earl carelessly. "If you wish to consult your own solicitor you can cable him, of course."

Suddenly Horace seemed taken with a fit of embarrassment.

"The fact is, Lord Hawcastle," he said, "I've a notion that our solicitor—Ethel's man of business, that is—from Kokomo, Ind., where our governor lived—in fact, a sort of guardian of hers—may be here at any time. I've heard from friends that he is coming in this direction."

The word had caught Hawcastle's attention, and he leaped at it.

"A sort of guardian? What sort, eh?" he inquired, seemingly taken aback.

"I really can't say," replied Horace apologetically. "Never saw him that I know of. You see, we've been on this side so many years, and there's been no occasion for this fellow to look us up, but he's never opposed anything Ethel wrote for. He seems to be an easy going old chap."

"Hum!" said Hawcastle doubtfully. "Would he consent to your sister's marriage—or the matter of a settlement?"

Horace laughed cheerfully.

"I have no doubt of it. If he has the slightest sense of duty toward my sister he'll be the first to welcome the alliance, won't he?"

"Then when he and my solicitor come they can have an evening together over a lot of musty papers, and the thing will be done. Again, my boy, I welcome you to our family. God bless you!"

He wrung Horace's hand again and turned away as if to hide his emotion, but really to wink at the countess.

"I'm overpowered, you know—really overpowered, you know," stammered Horace, fanning himself desperately with his hat.

"Come, Almeric," said the earl, and as the youthful heir to his house arose languidly he sidled close to the countess and whispered in her ear:

"Let him know it's a hundred and fifty thousand."

Then he and Almeric went up the steps into the hotel, leaving Horace and the countess gazing at each other delightedly.

She crossed over to him impulsively and, taking both his hands again, said:

"My friend, I am happy for you."

"Think of it!" said Horace joyously. "In a fortnight at the most dear old Ethel will be the Hon. Mrs. St. Aubyn, future Countess of Hawcastle!"

"Yes," replied the countess, withdrawing her hands and picking up her parasol, "and there is but the little arrangement of the settlement between your advocate and Lord Hawcastle's. But you Americans—you laugh at such things. You are big, so big, like your country!"

Horace followed her across the terrace to the wall.

"Ah, believe me, dear countess," he said, "the great world—your world, countess—has thoroughly alienated me."

The countess turned her shapely head and looked at him admiringly and with a touch of irony at the surprise she was about to give him.

"Ah, you retain one quality. You are careless, you are free," and she laid her right hand upon his arm, and Horace thrilled at the intimate touch.

"Well," he laughed, "perhaps in those things I am American, but in others I fancy I should be thought something else, shouldn't I?"

She laughed openly at him now, but earnestly withal, and said:

"You are a debonair man of the world, and yet you are still American in that you are abominably rich. The settlement—such matter as that, over which a Frenchman, an Italian, might hesitate—you laugh. Such matter as £150,000—you set it aside, you laugh. You say, 'Oh, yes; take it!'"

For a moment she feared that Horace would fall over the low parapet, so white did his face become and then so flushed, but the boy was game all through. The generations of simple Indiana stock came to his rescue, and he steeled himself with an effort and replied quietly:

"A hundred and fifty thousand pounds! Why, that's seven hundred and fifty thous—I say, countess, she couldn't use the money to better advantage!"

There was real admiration in the Frenchwoman's glance this time, for she had lost none of the little byplay, and she admired the courage of the youngster. So she said:

"My friend, how wise you are!"

As she spoke she turned in time to see Ethel come down the steps of the hotel with a book beneath her arm and ran to her, clasping her in her arms and kissing her.

CHAPTER VII.

SNUBBED!

"LARGESSE, sweet Countess of Hawcastle!" the woman cried. "Largesse! And au revoir! Adieu! I leave you with your dear brother!"

She ran quickly up the steps with a flirt of her parasol, and Horace took his sister's hand with tears in his eyes.

"Dear old sis! Dear old pal!" he said, and she turned a radiant look upon him.

"Isn't it glorious, Hoddy?" she said with exalted tone. "Look!" and held up the book she carried. "It's Burke's 'Peerage.' And Froissart's 'Chronicles'—I've been reading it all over again. The St. Aubyns were at Crecy and Agincourt, and St. Aubyn will be my name."

"I had him, you know, I rather think, didn't I?"

"They want it to be your name soon, sis," he answered her.

For a moment she turned away and then looked at him straight in the eyes.

"You're fond of Almeric, aren't you, Hoddy? You admire him, don't you, dear?"

"Certainly. Why, think of all he represents, sis!"

"Ah, yes, Hoddy! Crusader's blood flows in his veins. It is the nobility that must be within him that I have plighted my troth to. I am ready to marry him when they wish!"

Horace sighed.

THINKS BUSINESS MEN BOYCOTT HIS HOTEL.

John J. Fields, the owner of the Hotel Clarendon, in Grand avenue, Hackettstown, was Thursday in conference with members of the Common Council and Board of Trade in an effort to learn the reason for the alleged failure of the business interests of the town to give his hotel the support he thinks it deserves. He alleges that his hotel is boycotted by the business men and town officials and wants to know why.

Mr. Fields declared he had "put it up to" the industrial committee of the Board of Trade, and if fair consideration is not shown him his property interests, in which he has invested heavily to improve the town's facilities, may be taken elsewhere.

Mr. Fields has a country home on the mountain near Hackettstown.

RESIDENTS PROTEST, BUT MERRY-GO-ROUND GOES UP.

Efforts of the residents in the vicinity of the corner of Springfield and Summit avenues, Summit, to prevent the location of a merry-go-round, in which local firemen are interested, on the property near Colonial Hall proved unsuccessful Thursday night. The effort will be continued, and if all other means fail an injunction may be applied for.

Just after nightfall several trucks laden with parts of the merry-go-round were discovered in Summit avenue. When it was found that the merry-go-round was to be set up on the property adjacent to Summit avenue there were loud protests from the residents in the neighborhood.

The police were appealed to, and the drivers of the trucks were ordered not to unload the machinery. Finally several members of Union Hose Company appeared on the scene and made it known that the fire company was to share in the receipts of the merry-go-round. The firemen declared they had the consent of the owners of the property along Summit avenue to locate the merry-go-round there, and the drivers were told to proceed with the unloading of the machinery. They had also secured the necessary permit from the city.

Meanwhile the protesting residents hunted up Health Commissioner James G. Owens, who, with William S. Post, owns the property on which the merry-go-round was to be placed. Mr. Owens, it is said, declared he had not given the firemen permission to use the ground. The firemen asserted, however, that there was no doubt of their having been given the privilege.

During the argument a committee of the firemen visted Norman Schultz, who owns property adjoining that of Messrs. Owens and Post, and the use of the Schultz tract was obtained. The trucks were driven on this property, where the merry-go-round was unloaded.

George D. Muchmore, Dr. John Burling and William D. Porter, representing the residents in the vicinity of the merry-go-round, went yesterday to see Mr. Schultz, in an effort to get him to withdraw his consent to the location of the apparatus on his property.

If Mr. Schultz does not withdraw his permission efforts will be made, it is stated, to have the operation of the machine enjoined on the ground that it is a nuisance.

Mr. Schultz's residence is nowhere near the merry-go-round site. The machine is, however, in a residential section, where its presence is most unwelcome.

REUNITED TO MOTHER AFTER SIXTEEN YEARS.

After being separated from his mother since he was two years old, William Hendra, of Buffalo, now eighteen years old, found her Tuesday living at Sussex, the wife of Dr. John L. McCoy, a veterinary surgeon, on Newton avenue.

She married Richard Hendra, a railroad employe, eighteen years ago, and later was granted a divorce from him and went to live with her parents, taking her son. When the two-year-old boy was at play the father, it is claimed, kidnapped him and disappeared. From that time until Tuesday she never saw nor heard of her son. William says his father lives in Buffalo and has married again. The son learned of his mother's whereabouts through an uncle.

POLICE CHIEFS INDORSE THE "MUGGING" PROCESS.

Buffalo, June 19.—The police policy in New York city of photographing suspected persons for the Rogues' Gallery was indorsed in a set of resolutions presented to the International Police Chiefs' convention by Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions J. P. Haager, of Louisville, Ky., yesterday.

Legal authority was quoted to show the validity of taking of descriptions of crooks. The resolutions conclude:

"It is the clear and firm conviction of this convention, based upon its knowledge of the conditions and circumstances governing their work as protectors of society against the lawlessness, that it is indispensable and should have the support of all good citizens that any person who has been arrested by an officer of the law for a criminal offense of any character committed in his presence; or any person under indictment by a warrant, or any person who is under strong suspicion of crime sufficient to place him in the class of 'suspicious persons' may be photographed, measured and fingerprinted by officers of the law in whose hands he is detained.

"If acquitted, said photographs and measurements may be returned or destroyed."

UNION VILLAGE'S LONG WAIT FOR A WEDDING.

Union Village took a lively interest in the wedding Thursday of Richard I. Rogers, of Berkeley Heights, and Miss Helen Tischbein, of near Gillette. The ceremony took place in the Methodist Episcopal church at Union Village and was the first wedding to occur in the village in forty years. Such, at any rate, is the declaration of William Schwab, who has lived there for fifty-five years and is now seventy-five years old.

The bride's gown was of white satin. Her bouquet was of honeysuckle and daisies. Miss Jackson, of Hoboken, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Sticht, were her attendants. Carl Saulman, of Hoboken, was best man.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Baptiste Tischbein. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Gordon, of North Paterson. The church was crowded, over three hundred guests attending. A reception followed, at the home of the bride's parents. Afterward there was dancing at Schwab's hall. Mr. Rogers has erected a handsome house on Oakview avenue, which he and his bride will occupy on their return from their wedding journey.

GENERAL SPORTS.

They say that Pennsylvania will have the best track team in the intercollegiate games of 1910. Having the meet on Franklin Field will help too.

Harry Gill is coach of the Illinois track team which won the conference meet. He was all round champion of America in 1900. Not unnaturally his Illinois team was an all round aggregation.

It is said Keene Fitzpatrick put Craig into the 100 yard race in the intercollegiate games for a joke. He was supposed to be at his best at the low hurdles. Apparently Craig took the matter seriously.

Berney Wefers says his freshman Babcock can be the broad jump champion if he specializes in that event. He tried five events in each of the dual meets this year.

The Yale Field track seems to be trying on sprinters. More of them have broken down there in the last few years than Johnny Mack likes to think of.

Dawbarn and Foster may meet this summer in some of the open games, it is understood. Competent judges say Dawbarn should win from the Harvard man after he learns a little better how to run his races.

It was a good year for the Illinois track meets. Chicago, Wisconsin and Purdue were cleaned up in the dual meets before the Illini annexed the conference championship.

The A. A. U. suspension of the Stanford and Colorado track men didn't bother these athletes much when it came to competing in the conference games. It probably won't stick anyway.

Cornell spoiled the all Harvard year by winning the boat race. It was the first beating for the Crimson oarsmen in two years. And there's Yale still to be met.

It looks as if Michigan's showing in the I. C. A. A. A. A. meet was a vindication for the Wolverines. They did their share to make the games interesting.

The ten years of Jack Moakley celebration at Cornell next fall is going to be something of an affair. The varsity vs. alumni cross-country race is being whooped up in great style by Barrett Smith, '04.

GOLF.

Secretary Watson of the United States Golf Association decided this week that the entries for the open championship would not be given out until the pairings on Monday. Fred McLeod of Midlothian, the titleholder, sent in his entry yesterday and brought the total up to seventy-two. The most conspicuous absentees are Stewart Cardner, Exmoor Country Club, formerly of the Garden City Golf Club, and Will Smith of Mexico City, who last year at Myopia played off a tie with Fred McLeod for the title. Smith, however, may be a late entrant.

Tom Vardon, should he arrive from England in time, will be paired with W. J. Travis, Findlay Douglass will play with Aleck Smith, R. C. Watson with Fred McLeod and Fred Herreshoff with Gilbert Nichols. Other amateurs entered are Oswald Kirby, Max H. Behr and E. M. Barnes.

There were eighty-three starters in the eighteen hole qualifying round of the State amateur golf championship tournament at the Oakley Country Club, Boston, yesterday. P. W. Whittemore of the Brookline Country Club had the best card of the lot, a 74. The Windler shield offered to the club having the five best scores was won by the Brookline Country Club, of which G. H. Windler, the donor, is a member. Thirty-two golfers qualified for match play.

WATERS AND STOUT GET FOURTH PLACE

By the scant margin of fifteen pins Waters and Stout captured fourth prize in Campbell's two-man tourney in a roll off with Vanderbilt and Eller and Radin and Schaub. The victors totaled 2203 pins for their six games, while Vanderbilt and Eller reached 2188 and win fifth money, while sixth goes to Radin and Schaub whose total was 2160. The prizes will be distributed to the various winners at the alleys on Monday night.

The scores:

Waters	151	189	207
Stout	188	201	179
	339	390	386
Radin	142	194	168
Schaub	193	170	148

BASEBALL.

The Newark Giants, colored, will play the Plainfield team on Crescent oval today and a cracking good game ought to result. Ortlieb will be in the points for Plainfield which guarantees that the Newarks will have to go some to can the game. Boyd will play in the outfield for the home team and the other points will be well covered.

Judging from previous performances the Newarks will play a game worth seeing, their funny coaching being an entertainment in itself.

Following is the Newark lineup: Bland, c. f.; Bowens, 2b; Brown, l.f.; Steward, c.; Foote, 1b.; Anthony, 3b.; Teele, s.s.; Epperson, r.f.; Randolph, Mischaux or Henry, p.

Held For Wrecking Barn.

Wilson Bellis and Michael Mottley, two borough boys, were arrested at their homes last night by the North Plainfield police on a warrant secured by Melvin Smalley, of Lincoln place, who charges them with having broken into a barn belonging to him in Somerset county and destroying much of its contents. Bellis was released on bail, but Mottley is now in jail at New Brunswick. The hearing has been set for next Thursday at New Brunswick.

A Chimney Fire.

A telephone alarm summoned the fire department to the home of Chauncey Hoffmersler, 248 Jackson avenue, at about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon to extinguish a chimney fire. There was no damage.

CELEBRATION MEDALS OUT

C. G. M. Smith, Philip Jahn, and Elmer D. Cutting.

The games will begin promptly at 2:30 o'clock and the finishes will be at East Seventh street and Watchung avenue. The entries are coming in fast, and some first-class out-of-town teams will compete in the four-man mile relay race. Robbins, the Olympic runner, will probably compete with a team from New York city in this event, and his teammates will be Harry Heywood, Wagner and Rosenberger, all medal-winners in metropolitan runs. Runners from the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. are also entered in this event.

The closed relay race for teams of the Sunday-school Athletic League is creating lots of interest, and a handsome trophy tankard has been offered by President Harry W. Marshall, of the Board of Trade, as the prize. Entries in the closed sprints and field events are coming in from some of the best local athletes.

The Charter Day finance committee today announced the following subscriptions, which swell the total fund to $6,570; Alvah A. Clark, $25; R. H. Keenan, $10; John Winzenried, $10.

If anybody has a small safe which is not in use at the present time, E. M. Laing, chairman of the finance committee, asks that it be loaned for use at Charter Day headquarters until after the celebration.

C. E. DELEGATES TO HAVE SPECIAL TRAIN

The Christian Endeavor societies of Union county have chosen Miss Nellie K. Foote, the district secretary, to represent the county at the international convention to be held at St. Paul, Minn., July 7-12. Miss Foote will go with the other State delegates, who have chartered a special train.

It is altogether likely that the next international convention will be held in Atlantic City in 1911. The merchants of that city have guaranteed $15,000 toward the expenses of the convention and the presidents of the New York and Pennsylvania State C. E. Unions have offered to assist President John J. Sproull of of the New Jersey Union in the undertaking.

At a meeting of the State executive committee held recently in Newark, Mr. Sproull was chosen chairman of the State committee to arrange for the convention. He has prepared an elaborate argument to present to the committee of the United Society of C. E. which will meet at St. Paul to select the next convention city.

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press:

I note that it is stated that the Van Ness decision was affirmed. In realty it should have been that the decision was affirmed in behalf of George W. Marsh.

Before Vice Chancellor Emery, Van Ness was allowed two payments. One of $500 and one of $1,000 and his attorney, Winfield A. Angelman appealed the same to the Court of Errors and Appeals and the Court of Errors and Appeals affirmed the same in favor of George W. Marsh and not in favor of "Count" Van Ness, as has been stated.

Van Ness claimed that he had paid in the neighborhood of $3,000 in payments.

LOCAL CHARITY BEQUEST

Netherwood Fresh Air Home to Get Large Part of the $100,000 Legacy.

WILL CONTEST IS SETTLED.

Hewitt Heirs Accept a Compromise —Big Estate to Be Divided. $5,277,00 for Charity, $1,-300,000 for Heirs.

Contest of the will of the late Frederick C. Hewitt, of Oswego, N. Y., was dropped Saturday afternoon after a conference at which the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Post Graduate Hospital, both of New York; the Netherwood Fresh Air Fund and other public institutions agreed to pay $1,000,000 to their relatives of the wealthy recluse who died last fall.

This arrangement leaves the institutions free to go on with their plans and makes thoroughly comfortable the relatives concerned, eight of whom had already been remembered to the extent of $300,000 in the will. They will divide the $1,-300,000 while the balance of the estate once appraised at $5,277,000, is to be apportioned among the various organizations in which Mr. Hewitt was interested.

The greater part of the payment will fall upon the Metropolitan Museum of Art, which under the will was to have received $1,500,000 and the residuary estate; the Post Graduate Hospital, with a $2,000,000 bequest, and Yale University, with another half million. The pro rata payment to the heirs extends to all the institutions which were to have had $100,000 or more, such as the Little Missionary Day Nursey of New York, remembered to the extent of $200,-000, and the Netherwood Fresh Air Fund of this city to which $100,000 had been given. There were bequests from $3,000 to $30,000 to various smaller charities which will not be affected.

MANY EDITORS GUESTS OF JERSEY CENTRAL

Special trains carried newspaper men from many parts of New Jersey to Easton Saturday to attend the eigth annual outing tendered by the Central Railroad to editors along its lines both in this and other States. In the party were Charles H. Frost and M. F. Elderton, of the Courier-News, and Thomas H. Jones, of the North Plainfield Review. The New Jersey contingent arrived at Phillipsburg shortly after 11 o'clock, and was transferred by special trolleys to Paxinosa Inn. Dinner was served at 12:30, and then came the event of the day, the presentation of a silver loving cup to William C. Hope, General Passenger Agent of the Jersey Central, by those who were the guests of the road. This tribute from his newspaper friends came so unexpectedly that Mr. Hope could make only a brief reply of thanks.

B. E. Chapin, editor of the Railway Employee, made a gracious speech of presentation. Others who spoke were Mr. Hope and Vice President Besler. A letter of regret was received from former Passenger Agent C. M. Burt, of the Boston and Maine Railroad. After a pleasant hour spent in conversation and inspection of the country around the Paxinosa Inn and the fine views that are to be had from it the party embarked in trolley cars and enjoyed a ride about town.

Among the prominent railroad men present were District Passenger Agent Whyte, District Passenger Agent Armstrong, Vice President and General Manager W. G. Besler, General Superintendent Huntington, General Freight Agent Hamilton, Assistant Superintendent Merrill, Division Passenger Agent Gummersback and District Passenger Agent Rhue. The New Jersey train was in charge of R. D. Carter, of Newark, the Central's advertising agent.

During the day announcement was made of the selection of the name "The Mermaid" for the new through express to be operated by the Central this summer between Scranton and Point Pleasant. The name was chosen from thousands submitted, and was the idea of Erwin F. Grube, of Bethlehem, Pa., who received the prize of $25 offered. "The Mermaid" will be a through vestibuled train, running from July 1 to September 6 between the two points named without change. It will make close connections at Elizabeth for traffic for and from New York city.

Ten persons were received from probation to full membership at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, yesterday morning.

The following six ribbon girls carried a daisy chain: Mabelle Cubberly, Worcester, N. Y.; Anna Louise Kinsman, Leominster, Mass.; Marjory Hillman, Flushing, L. I.; Martle Aletta Egbert, White Plains, N. Y., and Daisy May Brauard, of this city. They were all dressed in white lingerie frocks with pink sashes and Leghorn hats trimmed with pink roses.

The best man was John Marcus Colton, of Yokohama, Japan, and the ushers Guion Hillman Fountain, Gideon Fountain and Harold Ising, of Brooklyn.

The groom's gift to the bride was a crown brooch of pearls and diamonds and the bride's gift to the groom a gold watch chain. The maid of honor received from the bride a turquoise brooch and the flower girls each a French handkerchief. The groom's gifts to the ushers were gold stick pins.

The house was beautifully decorated with daisies, smilax, roses, palms and oak boughs.

The groom is the son of Robert Brown, of North Plainfield. The couple are now on their wedding trip and will be at hme at No. 6 Verdon street after August 1.

Master Kenneth Pierce Fountain, the page, carried a basket of roses.

SUMMER FESTIVAL AT HEAVENLY REST CHURCH.

A delightful summer festival was held Saturday afternoon and evening on the church grounds and in the Parish house, on Clinton avenue, under the auspices of the Men's Association of the Church of the Heavenly Rest. Mrs. James A. Babcock, president of the Ladies' Guild, was general chairman of a committee of women who assisted the Men's Association in making the affair a success.

The tables were in charge of the following: Fancy table, Mrs. C. Borden, Mrs. J. Campbell, Mrs. J. M. Hall, Mrs. Robert Larmour and Mrs. W. B. Grannatt; cake, Mrs. E. B. Bennett and Mrs. I. De Hart; candy, Misses Alice and Elizabeth Foster, Mrs. C. Calloway and Mrs. W. E. Sutton; lemonade well, Mrs. Stace and Mrs. Tabing; strawberry patch, Mrs. J. Peterson. The waitresses were Misses Helen Sutton, Edna Phillips, Viola Staples, Susan Bennett and Margaret Phillips.

In the afternoon a game of ball between the "Babcock" and "Ochiltree" nines furnisred unlimited fun for the spectators and was won by the Ochiltrees by 20 to 12. Rev. Charles Townsend umpired the game in a fair and impartial manner, none of his decisions being questioned. Mr. Babcock has challenged Mr. Ochiltree to play a return match next Saturday afternoon.

A fine musical program was rendered in the evening in which Bayard Hawthorne, tenor; Mrs. Bayard Hawthorne, contralto, and Albert Walsh, basso, of New York, sang. Professor H. Warren Rankin, presididigitator, mystified the large audience with his sleight of hand tricks.

Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan and Garrett T. Dunham with an orchestra of twelve pieces rendered some very acceptable music.

The committee of arrangements deserve credit for the unique festival they arranged. E. W. Moore had charge of the decorations and the electrical wiring. Following is the committee: J. M. Hall, Juan A. Babcock, J. S. Foster, L. M. Leek, Robert Larmour, Charles Graves, John Kriney and Peter Mauger, Jr.

BLUE RIBBON WINNERS

Plainfield Exhibitors Fortunate at the Kennel Club Bench Show.

MANY CUPS WERE AWARDED.

Messrs. Hooley, Wilmerding, Anderson and Mackenzie Make Great Showings.

Perfect weather, with an unusually big entry list, 886 in all, and a large attendance of prominent society folks from all parts of the country, combined to make the first annual bench show of the Plainfield Kennel Club, on Saturday, a great success. There was not one thing lacking to make the show complete. The horse show grounds of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club, where the affair was held, proved an ideal spot. The stables were used to house the dogs of great value.

The judging began at 11 o'clock and it was not until 6 o'clock in the afternoon when the last class was passed upon. There were eight show rings where the judging was going on continually, except for one hour's intermission at noon for lunch. The club entertained the judges and its guests at that time in a large tent, where Timbo catered for the occasion.

The local exhibitors were generously treated in the way of awards, showing that there are many fine dogs in this city and vicinity. The Watchung Hunt Club, which entered its hounds in various classes, and W. de LaR. Anderson, who entered his Russian wolfhounds, swept every thing; while A. G. Hooley, of the Meadowview Kennels, captured a number of the coveted prizes with his fine exhibit. This was also true of Miss Mabel B. Hooley, A. Clinton Wilmerding, Morgan T. Ashley, Mrs. C. W. McCutchen, George Hooley, Edmund L. Mackenzie, Mrs. Laurens H. VanBuren, Charles H. Lyman, Grover Schuck and Fred S. Moore were among the local exhibitors.

The prizes of $25 for the largest entry made by any one exhibitor and $15 for the second largest entry, offered by the Plainfield Kennel Club, will be decided later. Edmund L. Mackenzie won the cup offered by the president, Mr. Wilmerding for the best team of four of any one breed, with his deerhounds, while the Bleistein Kennels, of Buffalo, captured the vice-president's cup for the best brace of any sporting one breed.

The St. Louis Ladies' Kennel Club offered a challenge cup, value $50 for the best dog in the show and this was won by Ch. Lansdowne Milksham First Choice, George Bleistein.

The Valley Fair Kennel Club, of Brattleboro, Vt., offered a special prize of $25 in cash or equivalent, for the best American-bred in the show and Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Ronalds, through the Erie Kennel Club, offered a silver cup, value $50, for the best dog or bitch bred by exhibitor. Both of these prizes were won by A. G. Hooley's Meadowview Rock, while the Bleistein brace won the prize, value $50, offered by Spratts Patent (America) Limited, for the best brace of any one breed entered and owned by one kennel or exhibitor.

The Columbus Kennel Club Company, of Columbus, Ohio, offered a prize of $25 in cash or cup for the best American-bred dog or bitch in the show and The Valley Fair Kennel Club, of Brattleboro, Vt., offered a similar prize for the best American-bred dog or bitch in the show. Both of these prizes were won by A. G. Hooley's entries.

The cup offered by Archibald B. Dalby for the best brace of Welsh or Airedale Terriers was won by F. B. Lord Jr.'s Landore Boy and Rose of Anglesea. B. F. Lewis, Jr.'s Lansdowne St. Nicholas won the cup offered by Rev. Morgan Ashley for the best Russian Wolfhound, Irish Wolfhound, Scottish Deerhound, Greyhound or Whippet in the show.

In addition there were a number of special prizes offered in each class for the best dogs and bitches, and the competition was unusually keen throughout. One of the exhibitors who has been showing dogs at all the large shows in the country remarked that it was the best competition he had yet witnessed. Three points were awarded the show towadr a championship, ten being necessary for that purpose.

Fred S. Moore's toy poodle, "Snowball," captured a blue ribbon in that class, Ralph L. Morrow's Maltese Terrier, "Snowball," received a red ribbon, standing only second to Mrs. H. Kniffin's "Happy Boy," valued at $500. The cocker spaniel entries by Mrs. L. H. VanBuren also stood high in the estimation of the judges, receiving a first and second.

IRA W. TRAVELL RESIGNS

City High School Principal to Be Superintendent at Morristown.

AFTER SIXTEEN YEARS SERVICE

He Has Done Good Work Here and Higher Office is His Reward.

Principal Ira Winthrop Travell of the Plainfield High School, has tendered his resignation to the Board of Education, in order to accept the superintendency of the Morristown public schools at a considerable increase in salary. Though the Plainfield Board of Education has a lease on Mr. Travell's services that does not expire for a year yet, it is the intention of the board to release him from his contract, recognizing in the new position a signal recognition of wider field and a broader opportunity for him.

Ira W. Travell.
High School principal who resigned today.

The present superintendent of the Morristown schools, Prof. Nicholl, has occupied the position for 40 years. During the past year he has been ill and for this reason found it necessary to resign his position. He has been an intimate friend of Mr. Travell for many years, and has been an admirer of the Plainfield schools, especially the high school.

Mr. Travell was graduated from Williams College, taugh two years and then took a post graduate course in Cornell University. He then devoted his energies to engineering in Chicago for some time after this, but returned to teaching as his life work. He came to Plainfield as assistant high school principal to Mr. Henry M. Maxson in 1893. Two years later he was made principal. In the sixteen years that he has been here the Plainfield High School has forged its way to the front rank in the high schools of the State.

Mr. Travell is a member of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, is assistant superintendent of the Hope Chapel Sunday-school and has been identified with numerous clubs and societies in this city. He has steadfastly fought against the birth of secret societies in the school and other harmful agencies, such for instance as commencement invitations, presentation of flowers to girls at graduation time, where poor families are often put to expense in order to appear well in public with their wealthier neighbors.

As a tangible appreciation of his services the student body presented to him a handsome tri-diamond stick pin and a book rack several years ago. Publicly, he has been thanked in the salutatory address of each graduating class, and the Plainfield High School Idea, embodying the ideals of the school was dedicated to him by the class of 1908. The Oracle, the official school paper, editorialized upon his work when he completed the fifteenth year of his service in the Plainfield schools.

The Board of Education will probably elect his successor tonight.

TOM MUIR TESTIMONIAL RECEIPTS ABOUT $1,700

Judge William N. Runyon, who is in charge of the finances of the "Tom" Muir testimonial minstrel show presented last Friday and Saturday nights, announced today that the net proceeds of the show will amount to about $1,700. There have been several goodly donations and the sale of cartoons of "Tommy" added slightly to the big fund.

Another immense "house" greeted the minstrel men Saturday night, and several "first-nighters" declared that the performance was even better than the first one.

BROTHERS IN A SCRAP, SPECTATORS EXCITED

A rumor that James Frazee, of West Second street, had stabbed his brother, Ludlow, with a paint knife, brought Patrolman Nolan to Second street and Park avenue on the run late Saturday afternoon, and attracted a big crowd of pedestrians. Ludlow Frazee lay in a pool of blood in the street; near him was a bloody paint knife, money was scattered on the blood-covered pavement and James Frazee stood over his brother, who was unconscious.

The injured man was taken to police headquarters in the patrol wagon, and an examination showed that he had a dangerous gash over his left eye and had broken his nose City Physician C. B. Lufburrow took four stitches in the cut, and Ludlow was locked up in the cell next to that occupied by his brother, arrested by the policeman.

At court today, Ludlow smiled painfully under his bandages when he heard the story of attempted "murder," and said there was "nothing to it." James, in telling the story of the case, said that he met his brother, who was intoxicated, and was struck by him for no cause at all. "When I got the blow in the nose, your Honor," said James. "I lost my temper and tapped Lud on the back of the head. It was just the sort of a tap a fourteen-year-old boy would give, but he fell like a log. He cut his forehead on the pavement, when he broke his nose. The paint knife fell out of his pocket."

Ludlow corroborated this story, saying that he had his hands in his pocket when he felt the "tapping," and in pulling them out to save himself as he fell, he scattered the money from his pockets all over the street. Three dollars were collected from the brick pavement, and the court kept this as the injured man's fine. James was fined $10.

PYTHIANS' MEMORIAL DAY OBSERVED HERE.

Crescent Company, No. 13, Uniformed Rank, K. of P., met a delegation of Knights from the Rahway Lodge yesterday afternoon, and proceeded from the railroad station to the North Plainfield cemetery where they decorated the graves of deceased members. In turn they visited the Plainfield avenue and Hillside cemeteries, where similar work was done.

From Hillside the Knights went to Scotch Plains, where they were joined by the Rev. Mathiews, who offered prayer at the Scotch Plains cemetery. Mrs. Mathiews and several ladies of the Baptist church served the Knights with lemonade, which was much appreciated.

The Knights were accompanied by the Independent Fife and Drum Corps and the regular team, which is as follows, conducted the servies: Captain R. H. Loughlin, John R. H. Hall, O. R. Pierson, Jr., Charles McGinley and Fred Douglas. The team from Port Chester which was expected did not put in an appearance.

LEWIS V. F. RANDOLPH DESCRIBED TRIP ABROAD.

L. V. F. Randolph gave a delightful illustrated lecture at the First Baptist church last night on "Joppa, Jerusalem and Jericho," describing his recent visit to those places while abroad. Mr. Randolph first read his lecture, which was prepared with the usual great care, and which contained a wealth of facts concerning Joppa, Jersusalem and Jericho.

Afterwards the views were shown. These were considered among the best yet seen. They were taken by Mr. Randolph and being explained by him made them of double interest. The service was held pnder the auspices of the Young People's Society of the church.

—Michael Redding and William Morris were fined $5 and $3 respectively by Borough Recorder Dolliver this morning for drunkenness. They were arrested Saturday night in the borough.

MARRIED ON THE STAGE

Couple Couldn't Wait and so the Knot was Tied at the Theatre.

AN OBLIGING MAGISTRATE.

"Emmaline" the Wedding March—Judge Runyon Performs the Ceremony.

While the end-men in the "Tom" Muir testimonial minstrel show were getting off their gags about married life on Saturday night at the New Plainfield theatre, a man came up to City Judge Runyon, who, as coach and manager, stood in the wings and said that he wanted to be married, and had his bride-to-be right with him. The man was William Crawford Hirsch, of the Broad Hotel, Newark. He wished to become the husband of Mrs. Mary E. Stapleton, a Rahway widow.

The Judge was getting ready to help "Bill" Counihan out with the words of "Emmaline" and the call to "official duty" came with lightning suddenness. He gravely explained that he was busy, and urged the pair to wait until they heard "Emmaline" before deciding to wed. But Hirsch would have no delay. "Can't we get married right away?" he asked; "Mrs. Stapleton is here and we're both ready."

The red, white and blue costumed minstrel chorus never knew about it, nor did the military-looking interlocutor, but just as "Jack" Todd was explaining that he "hadn't spoken to his wife for three months merely because he didn't want to interrupt her," Judge Runyon, facing the couple, pronounced the words that made them man and wife as they stood behind the wing drops. "Sir General," the spelling horse, wasn't educated enough to be able to tell that the nuptial knot had been tied, but he was nearest to the happy couple and the minstrel-coach Judge.

SOME PROMINENT FOLK AT THE BENCH SHOW

Aside from the highly-prized dogs which were the chief centre of attraction at the first annual bench show of the Plainfield Kennel Club, Saturday, the presence of prominent people from all parts of the country, was a feature. Seldom has there been seen such a gathering of notables and they lent additional interest to what was considered one of the best open-air bench shows in the country.

Many of the prominent patrons of the show not only had entries in the show, but came here as guests of members of the club. Throughout the afternoon the pretty show grounds was crowded with people, dividing their time between the show rings and enjoying the social features.

Among some of the most prominent people noted at the show were these:

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Hyman, of Long Branch; Mr. and Mrs. Amzi Dodd and Miss Nina M. Dodd, of New York; Mrs. E. W. Throckmorton, of Red Bank; Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Offerman, of Elberon; Andrew Albright, Jr., of Eatontown; Monti Fiore G. Kahn, of Long Branch; Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Berendsohn, of Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Vatable, Mrs. John McLean, Mme. Vernona Jarbeau, of New York; Mrs. Adele K. Lewison, H. H. Stanley, of San Francisco; Dr. J. E. DeMund, of Brooklyn; J. R. Williston, of New York; Miss Adele Goodall, of Philadelphia; Miss Ruth Stewart, of Brooklyn; Miss Mary Henderson and H. G. Parlett, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y.; James Mortimer and Carl Bjurman, of New York; G. A. Wertheim, of Amsterdam, Holland, and Dr. G. A. Gobeaud, of Brooklyn.

During the afternoon former Senator James Smith, Jr., of Newark, who is sojourning at Elberon, came to Plainfield in his automobile to attend the show. He was gratified to learn that his son's entry, "Slivers," had taken a blue ribbon.

Another feature of the afternoon was the music by Benjamin LaVere's band. This enlivened the occasion, and the popular selections were greatly enjoyed by the crowd.

To Take Bar Examination.

Dudley H. Barrows, of West Eighth street, and Phillip P. Van Arsdale, of East Front street, attended the Commencement exercises of the New York Law School Thursday night. Both young men will take their bar examinations tomorrow, as will also Abraham Rubenstein of East Seventh street.

A Summing Up of the Public Service Talks

TWENTY weeks ago PUBLIC SERVICE published the first of a series of talks addressed to its patrons. It announced at that time that its intention was to give the people facts concerning the problems the company has to contend with in providing street railway, gas and electric service for approximately, 1,750,000 persons, seven days a week, fifty-two weeks in a year.

PUBLIC SERVICE started these talks in the belief that a clearer understanding between the company and its patrons would be mutually helpful. It [illegible] that much criticism was directed against it which was unfair and [illegible] due to a lack of knowledge, on the part of the public, of the co[illegible]'s affairs, or a want of appreciation of the magnitude and perpe[illegible]ng character of the company's business.

PLAIN FACTS TOLD TO PUBLIC

So PUBLIC SERVICE continued these talks with the people every week for nearly five months. In that time the company has published many facts calculated to give its patrons a better idea of the practical questions which enter into the conduct of its business.

PUBLIC SERVICE told, to start with, that it was serving the residents of as many as 138 municipalities in eleven counties of New Jersey; that its street cars had traveled 108,516 miles a day over eighty-eight lines and had carried nearly 300,000,000 riders last year and that nearly twenty-five per cent. of all those passengers had availed themselves of the company's transfer privileges.

RUSH HOUR AND LONGER RIDES

PUBLIC SERVICE also had something to say about its street railway rush hour troubles and how impossible it is to carry comfortably 105,000 persons an hour when most of them are anxious to travel in the first car.

PUBLIC SERVICE pointed out the increased carrying power of the five cent piece as measured by the length of ride possible for one fare and spoke of the army of employees who are paid $134,615 a week, and how that army is recruited.

Many other facts were set forth freely and frankly in these weekly talks, including something about the function of a street railway in developing communities and enhancing the value of land. Likewise, attention was directed to the highly important part played by PUBLIC SERVICE in helping to swell the revenues of municipalities by paying taxes and cash equivalent to taxes amounting to $7,650,000 in six years.

WANTS THE PEOPLE TONIGHT

PUBLIC SERVICE has told these things because it wants the public to know them. It believes that the average man is inclined to be fair minded and if judgment is to be passed upon the company, or its acts criticised, that judgment and that criticism is more likely to be fair and helpful, if based on facts, than it otherwise would be.

PUBLIC SERVICE welcomes fair criticism as by this means there may be brought to its attention facts which would assist it in carrying out its policy of giving to its patrons the best possible service at the lowest profitable rates.

YOUNG WOMAN, JILTED, DROWNS HERSELF.

Because her lover had been going with another young woman, Miss Mary Vasser, of 18 Williams street, Bayonne, committed suicide Friday afternoon, by leaping into Packard's Canal. Thursday the young woman learned that her lover had been seen with a rival and declared she no longer cared to live. Throughout the evening and Friday morning she scarcely uttered a word.

Shortly after dinner she ran out of the house to the canal, half a mile away and plunged in. Her body was recovered four hours later.

Search for Maurice O'Donnell.

The New Jersey Civil Service Commission continued the investigation of the case of Maurice O'Donnell, who was impersonated in the recent examination for bathhouse attendant, in Jersey City Friday. After examining a number of witnesses the commissioners held a conference with Prosecutor Garven. As a result it is said that the Prosecutor will have his detectives search for O'Donnell who has disappeared.

SENATOR H. V. OSBORNE BUYS LARGE TRACT.

Senator Harry V. Osborne, of Newark, is reported to have purchased from John T. Lovett, of Little Silver, a thirty-acre tract on the southwest corner of the Rumson road and Oakes avenue, near Little Silver and the Rumson County Club.

The property has a frontage of 911 feet on the Rumson road and 1,927 feet on Oakes avenue, which leads to the South Shrewsbury river. On part of the tract are two never-failing springs. Mr. Osborne will use part of the tract for a residence and the balance will be offered for sale for residential purposes.

Gas Explosion Missed Him.

Though an explosion of illuminating gas in the home of J. McK. Hipple at Morristown, Friday turned a flight of stairs upside down, blew out the windows and broke the lock on a pantry door, Mr. Hipple, who was in the house, was not injured, nor was the house set afire. That morning he turned the gas on at the meter, so that he might use his range for the first time. A little later he smelled gas, and, going to the cellar, struck a match. The explosion followed.

Tax Sale of Grain Elevator.

The Jersey City Finance Board at its meeting Friday instructed City Collector Davis to include in the next tax arrearage sale the Erie Railroad grain elevator for an indebtedness of $149,000. This tax arrearage case was settled by the Fagan administration after the city had won its suit on the contention that the elevator was subject to local tax and was not railway property, subject to State tax.

Mayor Mark Pleads Not Guilty.

Joseph Mark, Mayor of South River, and Charles Anderson, clerk of the borough, were arraigned in court Friday and pleaded not guilty to several charges. There were four indictments against Mayor Mark, three charging embezzlement and one for malfeasance in office. The indictment against Anderson is for the alleged embezzlement of $10.50 collected as license fees.

THE RIDDLE OF THE ZAMBESI.

What becomes of the mighty Zambesi after leaping the world-famous falls and disappearing into the forbidding looking gorge beyond? No one knew until F. W. Skyes, late district commissioner of the Victoria Falls, was commissioned by the British government to find out. Mr. Sykes is a born explorer, and as soon as he obtained his orders he plunged boldly into the unknown, penetrating into places where no white man had ever been. On his return to safety Mr. Sykes placed on record the results of his adventurous journey, and now publishes these in the June number of the Wide World Magazine. The article, which is intensely interesting is illustrated with Mr. Sykes' own impressive photographs, which are reproduced by special desire of the British South Africa Company. With regard to the falls themselves Mr. Sykes says: "Although for many years duty or pleasure took me twice a week into the spray zone of the falls, one can never forget the first impression conveyed to the mind by that mighty avalanche of water hurled from the upper river into the seething abyss 300 feet below. It is the sensation of a lifetime."

TO KEEP LIGHT DRESSES CLEAN.

Magnesia may be obtained either in powder or in square cakes, and it is very effective in cleaning laces and delicate fabrics. Sift or rub it on the parts to be cleaned, and lay them away in a box or drawer where they will be undisturbed for a day or so, and then shake them out. It is a very good plan to apply the magnesia in this way when putting away party dresses that have become slightly soiled. The magnesia absorbs the dust, and when you take the dresses out to wear them the next time they will be fresh and dainty. The magnesia is also effective when applied in the same way for removing grease spots.—Woan's Home Companion.

A WARNING TO NOVELISTS.

Professor Lounsbury, of Yale, gives a salient warning in the June Harper's to those novelists or dramatists who endeavor to clothe their work in the language of a past age. Mr. Lounsbury says quite candidly that they do not do it correctly, and, rather than make a muddle of it, had better not attempt it at all. Even Thackeray and Scott are found in linguistic lapses of this sort by Mr. Lounsbury, who adds that most people don't know these things, for only "some wretched pedagogue" like himself is able to recognize them. By "Wardour street English" Mr. Lounsbury means imitation archaic language, just as Wardour street in London came to be known as a famous market for imitation old furniture.

OLD-TIME PUGILISTS' PROFITS.

Just over sixty years ago William Thompson, of Nottingham, best known to fame in the sporting world as Bendigo, fought Ben Caunt at Newport Pagnell, in Buckinghamshire, for two hours, says London Tit-bits. It was for a similar purse that Tom Sayers fought his memorable fight with the Tipton Slasher fifty years ago, while Tom Spring—one of the bravest, most honest and courteous men who ever stepped into a ring—in 1824 fought Jack Langham, who ultimately died worth £30,000, for 500 guineas a side, at Chichester. Tom Spring won, an dhe and Jack afterward became the best of friends.

Probably no boxer ever obtained so much money from the prize ring as George Dixon, the negro, and the greatest feather-weight of his day, who, before his thirty-fifth birthday had earned and won over £50,000. Pedlar Palmer must have earned between £30,000 and £40,000, while Ben Jordan, one of the few men to beat Palmer, has been able to retire from the ring with a comfortable income derived from the invesment of his winnings.

John Gully, who became M. P. for Pontefract in the thirties, might have become a champion, but he retired from the ring after his fight with Bog Gregson in 1808. The fight lasted for thirty-six rounds, and at the finish neither man had strength enough to hold up his hands either to give a blow or to guard from one. But Gully managed to get in a little tap on Gregson's face such as would knock a fly off, and that gave him the victory.

Gully then retired to carry on his business as a publican and made so much money by successful turf speculation that he was able to become the owner of racehorses which thrice won the Derby for him.

From £200 to £500 a side seems to have been the usual stakes in the days of Tom Spring, Sayers and Cribb. It was for the larger amount that Jem Ward fought Tom Cannon, granduncle of Mornington Cannon, the jockey, in 1825. The fight lasted for ten rounds, and at the finish of the ninth both men leaned against one another, too exhausted to move. Ward, however, managed to pull himself together a little in the tenth round and won.

Although the stakes were small in the old days of prizefighting, the bets were large. The Duke of Cumberland is said to have lost £10,000 when Slack beat Jack Broughton in 1750, while, when John Jackson—known as "Gentleman Jack"—beat Perrine in a fight for 250 guineas a side in 1789 he won £20,000 for one of his backers, Bullock by name, £1,000 for himself, as well as over £500 in gate money.

The famous Captain Barclay, the father of scientific training and hero of the great thousand miles in a thousand hours' match, who trained Tom Cribb when he was matched to fight Molineaux, the black, at the beginning of the last century, stood to lose £10,000 in the case of Cribb's defeat. But Cribb won after twenty minutes fighting, ultimately became a coal merchant and publican and died sixty years ago at the age of sixty-seven.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

BUSY MONDAY MORNING IN LOCAL POLICE COURT.

John Casey, Andrew Boyle, Neil Scott and Adam Dunham were arraigned before Judge William N. Runyon in the city court, this morning, on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. The quartet got into a fistic encounter on the Somerset street bridge, late Friday night. Patrolman Saffron broke up the mill and each paid a $5 fine this morning.

Pasquale Pennella, Antony Meerol and Mattai Buontone engaged in a fight on North avenue, in the East End, yesterday afternoon, where a beer party was in progress. The beer was seized as contraband with the arrest of the quartet and all taken to headquarters. The prisoners each paid a $5 fine in preference to spending twenty days in jail.

Barney Tracey was arraigned and sent to Elizabeth for a month's sojourn. He was implicated in a scrap at Park avenue and Second street Saturday night, his fighting partner being John McCormick. It was shown that McCormick was the aggressor, and he was sent to Elizabeth for sixty days, to keep Barney company.

MISS MARGARET WHITLEY PERCY DE LONG'S BRIDE.

Miss Margaret Eleanor Whitley, daughter of Francis Whitley, of Essex street, and Percy G. De Long, of Westfield, were married at 10 o'clock this morning by Rev. C. S. Kemble, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, at the parsonage. The father gave the bride in marriage. Miss Annie Stafford, of this city, was the bridesmaid, while J. Hazard Shiros, of Westfield, was best man.

The couple left immediately afterward for Massachusetts to spend their honeymoon. Upon their return they will reside at Westfield where the groom holds a position as letter-carrier.

Walter Cuming and Theodore Carr were charged by Isaac P. Brown, of Watchung avenue, with stealing cherries. They were let go on their promise to never offend again.

CHIEF KIELY RETURNS FROM CHIEFS' CONFAB.

Chief of Police Kiely returned from the convention at Buffalo Saturday night and reports having had a very interesting time. He was the only chief from New Jersey to make a speech, and he also secured the floor for Miss Williamson, the only woman probation officer who has ever made a speech before such a convention.

Miss Williamson's speech was highly interesting to the assembled chiefs, and was listened to with profound attention, as was also that of Chief Kiely.

THE SMART SHOES.

The high Cuban heel is a feature of all street shoes and ties except th new directoire shoes. These, as a rule, have the Louis XV. heel, with the classic sandal back rising almost to an ordinary shoe height They strap the limb just above the ankle, where a bow finishes the strap. These come principally in champagne suede or in the bronze and grey glace finish. As they have fairly substantial soles and heels, they will meet with general favor for even practical afternoon dress. Four and six strapped slippers in bronze are also among the summer carriage shoes. For dinner and party toilets the low slipper is made up of material matching the dress, often beautifully elaborated with jet or pearl beads or metal embroideries. There is also a new dancing slipper or pump, which is made with a very low vamp and a high Cuban heel. This is finished with a full bow of crinkled silk over the toe portion.

Women who are smartly conservative will continue to wear that practical shoe having a patent leather vamp and dull kid top; but the patent leather portions are usually laid over the kid in scallops or with perforated band effects.—Harper's Bazar.

NOT BEHIND TIME, AFTER ALL.

Mrs. Coburn had decided at the last minute to go to town in the morning with her husband, relates the Chicago News. He fretted while she got ready, and together they rushed for the 8:15, only to find themselves, much to Coburn's unacknowledged discomforture, in plenty of time. His impatience he expressed in a tirade against the slowness of women in dressing, and the unnecessary fuss they made about their clothes.

"My dress suit comes home from the tailor today," he said to his wife as they parted. "I'll get there at 5.30, so we can start for that dinner in plenty of time. And, Bess, do start to dress before the last minute!"

At twenty-five minutes to 6 Coburn rang the bell furiously and long. The maid and Mrs. Coburn arrived at the door simultaneously.

"Thought you'd never come," he said, as he flung himself out of his overcoat and dropped it on the stairs. "I must have lost my latchkey. Did the tailor send by suit—oh, there's the box. Looks all right, but you never can tell. Where on earth are my dress shirts? I haven't one in sight—"

He paused as his wife took his hands out of the bureau drawer, which he was frantically pawing from top to bottom.

"Not in there," she said. "That's the drawer your socks and handkerchiefs are kept in. Here they are!"

"Oh!" he exclaimed, slightly mollified." Aren't you dressed yet, Bess? I wish you'd put in the links and buttons for me. And say, will you hunt up my ties?

"Ask Mary to see if the patent-leather polish is down-stairs, will you, and telephone Bill not to come out this evening. I forgot to tell him we wouldn't be home!"

Mrs. Coburn, in her kimono, and with her hairpins in her hands, flew one way and Mary flew the other. The road of running water and mighty splashings came from the bath-room.

"You've got those buttons in wrong!" he cried, presently. "Still in that kimono? You'll be late, sure as fate!"

He emptied the tailor's box and proceeded to don his new clothes. A groan brought Mrs. Coburn to find him twisting his head round perilously and staring into the mirror with an anguished face.

"Awful!" he moaned. "Give them away—burn them up—they don't fit!"

"Now, Harold," said his wife, restrainingly, "what is the trouble? Of course the coat wrinkles when you twist yourself up like that!"

"Can't you see," he stormed, "the coat's ruined? It's cut too low in the neck! The shoulder hunches! Look at the sag here! And the trousers are too tight! That man a tailor? He ought to be breaking stones!"

"Let me hold the mirror and you stand still and take a look," commanded his wife.

He did so, and then coughed.

"It'll have to do for tonight," he said "Where's my hat? I'll bet it's still packed away in mothballs. Oh, did you get it down? It smells like a drug shop. Aren't you dressed yet? I'll go downstairs, and please hurry up. Wonder where my overcoat is—ugh!"

Coburn fell over the overcoat at the bottom of the stairs, and promptly examined his new suit and shirt front for possible damages. His eye caught the clock.

"Bess," he yelled. "It's quarter of 7! We've just fifteen minutes to drive four miles! You've had the whole afternoon to dress—"

"My dear boy," said his wife, sweetly, "you sit down and be quiet. Now that I've got you dressed, I'm going to finish myself. That clock is half an hour fast. I set it ahead, and the one up here, too, for I knew just how it would be when you started getting ready."

Coburn sat down to wait without a word.

In the absence of Dr. Hedges, president of the club, Howard Fleming presided as toastmaster, and at the same time responding to the toast, "The Past of the Club." VERANDA FURNITURE.

In writing about "Veranda Furniture" in the June Harper's Bazar, Martha Cutler says:

"If one is fitting out a veranda for the children where they may be kept under a watchful eye, a sandbox should not be forgotten. It may be made a never-ending source of amusement. The boxes are raised from the ground just far enough to allow the children to sit in little kindergarten chairs around them. They are from ten to twelve inches deep and may be found in all sizes from two by four feet up. The smallest size costs $6 when bought in the shops."

The Wise Squirrel

It was on a beautiful sunny day in April, of this year, that a cunning gray squirrel with a long bushy tail and large erect ears, came cautiously up to where I sat on the porch, and took from my hand a nice big English Walnut, cracked it and swallowed the meats. Two more nuts he ate in like manner, and the fourth, a butternut, he carried to his burrow natural bank, (a hole in the ground near a tree) and left it as a "Savings Deposit."

One-fourth of his "gettings" the wise squirrel saved. He is promised no interest on his deposit, and yet he is wiser than, the man, woman, boy or girl who is allowed interest but who is not putting away something every week, in the

The Man From Home

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

"It will be as soon as the settlement is made and arranged. It will take about all your share of the estate, sis, but it's worth it—a hundred and fifty thousand pounds."

Ethel lifted the book to the level of her eyes.

"What better use could be made of a fortune, Hoddy, than to maintain the state and high condition of so ancient a house?"

He looked at her affectionately and took her hand.

"It does seem impossible that we were born in Indiana, doesn't it, sister?" And the tones of his voice were those of incredulity.

She smiled at him fondly.

"But isn't it good that the pater 'made his pile,' as the Americans say, and let us come over here while we were young to find the nobler things, Hoddy—the nobler things?"

"The nobler things—the nobler things! Why, sis, when old Hawcastle dies I'll be saying offhand, you know, 'My sister, the Countess of Haw castle'."—

For a moment Ethel remained thoughtful and then turned to her brother.

"You don't imagine that father's friend, this old Mr. Pike, will be—will be queer, do you?"

"Well, the governor himself was rather raw, you know. This is probably a harmless old chap, easy to handle."

"I wish I knew. I shouldn't like Almeric's family to think we had queer connections of any sort, and he might turn out to be quite shockingly American. I—I couldn't bear that, Hoddy!"

There was a note of genuine pathos in her voice, and her brother responded instantly:

"Then keep him out of the way. That's simple enough," he said. "None of them, except the solicitor, need see him."

Almost in a burst like an eruption there came an uproar outside the gates beyond the hotel—wild laughter, riotous cheering and the notes of the tarentella played by mandolins and guitar, then more shouts and cheers and cries of "Bravo, Americano!" and "Yanka Dooda!" Horace ran to the gates, but they were closed, and the uproar continued. Ethel stood by one of the tables, amazement written on her features, and turned to her brother as he came back shaking his head.

"What is that?" she asked tremulously. Lady Creech, all in a flutter, entered from the hotel. At a glance one would set her down for an aristocrat. There was no doubt of it. From the topmost tip of her white hair to the toe of her solid shoe she was an aristocrat.

"One of your fellow countrymen, my dear," she said to Ethel. "Your Americans are really too"—

"Not my Americans, Lady Creech!" said Ethel spiritedly.

"Not our, you know. One could hardly say that, now!" reiterated Horace.

Almeric entered, at once laughing and beating his boot with his crop. Almost exhausted with his mirth, he threw himself into a chair and burst out:

"Oh, I say, what a go! Motor car breaks down on the way here. One of the Johnnies, a German chap, discharges the chauffeur, and the other Johnny—one of your Yankee chaps, Ethel—hires two silly little donkeys, like rabbits, you know, to pull the machine. Then, as they can't make it, you know, he puts himself in the straps with them and proceeds, attended by the populace. Ha, ha!"

He laughed long and loudly.

"I went up to this Yankee chap, I mean to say—he was pulling and tugging along, you see—and I said, 'There you are, three of you in a row, aren't you?' meaning him and the two donkeys, you see, Ethel, and all he coule answer was that he 'picked the best company in sight.' No meaning to it I had him, you know, I rather think didn't I?"

At this moment Lord Hawcastle entered with a bundle of newspapers under his arm and proceeded to settle himself at one of the tables. Almeric approached him.

"English papers, governor? I'll take the pink un. I'm off." And he picked up the tinted sheet as he spoke. Ethel came up to him and touched him on the arm.

"Going for a stroll, Almeric? Would you like me to go with you, dear?"

He looked at her vacantly for an instant and then stammered:

"Well, I rather thought I'd have a quiet bit of reading, you know."

Ethel drew back quickly and said in a very small voice:

"Oh, I beg your pardon."

Then she sat down hurriedly by Lord Hawcastle.

CHAPTER VIII.

THE AMERICAN.

THE clatter without continued unabated, and Ethel and the countess walked back to the terrace rampart to stand looking out over the glorious bay.

Horace, still in the seventh heaven of delighted realization, took the Daily Mail from the table on which the earl had thrown it and seated himself to read beside Lady Creech, who was already deep in the Church Register. The earl had buried himself in the Pall Mall Gazette and was apparently oblivious to such minor details as an Italian peasant row.

But to Horace in his highly strung condition of nerves the uproar was aggravating, and he called to Mariano, who was busily setting the table again:

"Mariano, how long is this noise to continue?"

The maitre d'hotel shrugged his expressive shoulders and replied:

"How can I know, m'sieu? We can do nothing."

Michele, who was assisting his chief, smiled covertly at the young man.

"The populace they will not be depart so long as there shall be the chance once again to observe the North American who pulled the automobile with the donkeys!"

"Merci!" cried Mariano, with vigor. "He have confuse me. He have confuse everybody. He will not be content with the dejeuner until he have the ham and the egg, and he will have the egg cooked upon but one of two sides, and bow in the name of the heaven can we tell which of these two sides?"

Mariano was about to continue his grumbling complaint when from the doorway of the hotel there came an interruption. The courier who had spoken with him earlier in the morning stood there and voiced but one word.

"Garcon!" he said softly. But it was like the command of a cavalry officer in its effect, for instantly the maitre d'hotel and his aid stood at attention like trained veterans. The earl evidently was not too deeply immersed to catch the sudden silence, for he looked up from his paper and observed:

"Upon my soul! Who's this?"

Mariano did not turn his head nor relax his attitude of stiff attention, but answered obsequiously:

"It is the Herr von Grollerhagen, a German gentleman, mlord."

Hawcastle turned with an amused smile to Horace.

"The man who owns the automobile. Probably made a fortune in sausage."

From within the hotel there came the tones of a heavy though cultivated voice declaiming quietly:

"Nein, nein, Ribiere! 'S macht nichts!"

And instantly there came down the steps the German gentleman aforesaid. He was tall and of a commanding presence. He wore a grayish beard and an automobile cap that half concealed the eyes that burned with the authority of generations beneath. Withal it was a kindly face, and, though there was a stern command in the figure, there was genial humor and even tenderness too. By no authority could he have been considered well dressed. His clothes seemed rather to have been thrown on negligently.

The little party at the table regarded him with hostility, and Lady Creech turned up her aristocratic nose.

"What a dreadful person!" she said and turned again to her paper.

The German walked sedately across the terrace to the table where the two servitors still stood at attention and lifted his hand in a curt half military salute in acknowledgment of their bow.

"See to my American friend," he said.

"What a terrible person!" remarked Lady Creech again, and Hawcastle bent toward her.

"Undoubtedly, but he speaks English. So be careful."

"So many objectionable people do," commented the crusty dame.

Herr von Grollerhagen turned smilingly to Mariano.

"My American friend desires his national dish."

Mariano bowed.

"Yes, Herr von Grollerhagen," replied Mariano deferentially. "He will have the eggs on but one of two sides and the ham fried, so he go to cook it himself."

Von Grollerhagen smiled, when from without the gates came a shout of amusement and wild laughter. Mariano instantly bowed and ran toward the hotel.

"Ha!" he said eagerly. "He return from the kitchen with that national dish."

Michele emerged from the hotel walking backward and carrying a covered dish, while Ethel turned with a little shudder of disgust to the countess.

"How horrible!" she said, and the Frenchwoman patted her shoulder reassuringly.

Immediately following the servitor came Pike, the same self possessed Pike, clad in a linen duster and a straw hat that was decorated with a bright ribbon. If there was anything distinctive about him it was his scarf, which was of that type known as Windsor and much affected by artists in the east and every one in the west. He carried a towel with him and dropped it in one hand as he glanced about.

Rt. Rev. Dr. McFaul Declares Colleges Foster Disrespect for Womanhood.

The great colleges' of America were severely condemned by Bishop McFaul, of Trenton, in an address made last night at the fiftieth annual commencement exercises of the College of St. Francis Xavier in New York. "The parents who send their children to the popular colleges," said Bishop McFaul, "like Harvard, Princeton and Yale, where rascality, immorality and disrespect of womankind are fostered, would attempt to tear down the buildings did they know the grave mistake they were making.

"Such colleges as Yale and Princeton are great factors in the undermining of morality. They don't even study the Bible, which is so much spoken of and so seldom read by their advocates.

"Catholic families are sacrificing faith and morality because they wish to get into society. Actuated by that one dominant and fanatic idea they send their sons to the large colleges, where they do not even learn the Ten Commandments, such as 'thou shalt not steal,' 'thou shalt not commit adultry' and 'thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor.'

"The professors in these institutions attempt to prove in a learned manner that there is really no difference between right and wrong, and say that no man may show where right ends and wrong begins. Sophistry is at the bottom of their teachings."

BOROUGH SCHOOLS FOR THE BOROUGH CHILDREN

The subject of the overcrowding in the elementary grades in the North Plainfield school was taken up by the Board of Education at its meeting in the High School last night and a resolution was introduced and carried, that beginning next fall, no non-resident pupils be accepted in those grades exeept such as the law requires the school to take.

It is hoped by this measure to prevent in a large degree the practice that has obtained of pupils being entered that are not entitled to the privileges of this school.

The board engaged Miss Margaret Falkinberg to take charge of a special class of fifth and sixth grade pupils next year. This class has been established because of the increase in the number of pupils in these grades. Miss Falkinberg has been filling the position made vacant by the resignation of Miss Anna Holcomb.

Albert Steiner, who has been district clerk for the past five years, was reappointed for another year.

The first rehearsal of the Citizens Orchestra which is to play on Charter Day, July 5, was held last evening in the Y. M. C. A. hall. The chairman of the citizens' music committee, T. W. T. Maxwell, was agreeably surprised at the large attendance of players on such a warm evening, also at the spirit and enthusiasm with which the music was played.

The pieces rehearsed were patriotic and concert numbers and included Hail Columbia, The Star Spangled Banner, Battle Hymn of the Republic, America and others. The next meeting of the orchestra will be held next Monday, June 28, in the same hall.

The singing of the chorus and the playing of the orchestra are to be distinctive features of the Charter Day celebration in which all the men, women and children of Plainfield are expected to participate. It is earnestly requested that all local players come to the rehearsal next Monday night.

ANOTHER CAVEAT FILED IN MISS HOLTON ESTATE

Mrs. James K. Arnold, a relative of the late Miss Mary G. Holton, has filed a caveat against the admission to probate of Miss Holton's will. This makes the second caveat as Charles H. Hand filed one last week. Each claims a fourth interest in the estate.

It was expected that the will would be offered for probate at Somerville yesterday by Reed & Coddington, counsel for the executors, but it was learned today that this was not done. It is customary to offer a will for probate within eleven days following the death of the testator. The heirs seek to obtain $125,000.

"MRS. BAKER" IS FOUND IN WOODS "DAZED"

Passengers on an eastbound main line trolley car found a woman lying in the woods in Roselle, near the Elizabeth city line, early this morning. The matter was reported to the police and Marshal Kenney, of Roselle, investigated. He saw that the woman, it is said, was apparently sleeping off the effects of a "booze-fest."

When questioned the woman said that her name was "Mrs. Baker," and that she lived on Watchung avenue, Plainfield. She explained that yesterday she went to Newark to visit some friends. Afterwards she wandered into one of the city parks and fell asleep. When she awoke she discovered that her wedding ring and $15 in money had been taken.

Having no money, she started to walk home. Upon reaching Roselle she decided to rest awhile in the woods. She again fell asleep and was just awakened from her slumbers when seen by the passengers on the trolley car. The woman was taken to police headquarters in Roselle and later in the day was put on a car and sent to Plainfield.

Inquiry here fails to reveal the identity of such a person as described. It is believed that the woman may have given a fictitious name, although she may reside in this city.

GET BIDS FOR REPAIRS ON SCHOOL BUILDINGS

Bids for repairs at the Franklin and Bryant schools were opened at the meeting of the Plainfield Board of Education held last night at the Plainfield High School and the estimates submitted by two local contractors were referred to the building committee of the board with power. The low bids are those of John Abbott: Franklyin School, $1,825; Bryant School, $1,415. W. H. Brokaw: Franklin School, $2,077; Bryant School, $2,073.

The plans for toilets at the Irving School have been left with the building committee with power to advertise for bids. Henry L. Keen, of Central avenue, was appointed janitor of the New Washington School at Darrow avenue, and his appointment will be effective August 1.

The formal resignation of Principal Ira W. Travell, urging that he be released from his contract with the Board that he might accept an offer from the Morristown Board, was accepted with regret, and the release granted. A testimonial of the Board's appreciation of Mr. Travell's services as principal was prepared and spread upon the minutes of the Board, and a copy of the resolution will be sent to Mr. Travell.

MISS WHITNEY'S PUPILS GIVE A PIANO RECITAL.

The B Sharp Club and the Mozart Club, comprised of the piano pupils of Miss May Vincent Whitney, gave a joint piano recital at Miss Whitney's studio last night. The affair was largely attended by parents and friends of the pupils, who enjoyed the fine program, comprising solo, duet, quartet and sixtette numbers, all of a classical character. Several encores were given.

After the recital, refreshments were served and a social time was enjoyed by the guests and pupils. This is an annual custom of the Miss Whitney's pupils in closing the work for the season.

Leal's School Closing.

The closing exercises of John Leal's school for boys will be held at the Park Club tonight at 8:30 o'clock. The address of the evening will be made by Prof. James Everett Frame. After the exercises there will be dancing.

FITZSIMMONS RETURNS

"Lanky Bob" Back on His Farm After Four Months Abroad.

TALKS OF PRIZE FIGHTS.

Langford an Over-rated Man—"Jeff" Could Defeat Johnson Probably.

Bob Fitzsimmons, the lanky Cornishman, returned to his country home at Dunellen yesterday afternoon, accompanied by his wife and a new French poodle. The erstwhile champion pugilist was looking bigger and healthier than when he sailed for Europe four months ago, and says that barring the fatigue of the ocean trip he never felt better in his life. Mrs. Fitzsimmons is also looking well and feels so.

When questioned about the recent fight between Langford and Hague, at the London Sporting Club, Mr. Fitzsimmons said that the fight itself resembled a scrap between two old women, that neither man showed any special science and if Hague had been about two inches nearer Langford when he knocked that individual down in the second round it would have been all over but collecting the coin.

He also said that Langford is a much overrated pugilist and is hardly the equal of any of the other colored men now posing as champions. Ketchel could put Langford out in a punch.

For himself Bob said that the country and his farm would claim all of his time for several months to come and that he'd feel a whole lot more comfortable when he got home and into his farming togs.

When the ex-champion's rig drew up to the curb Bob's special pet dog "Jim" was there to greet him and his joyous barking soon caused a crowd to gather which hastened the farmer-pugilist's departure for "Skye Meadows."

MINOR OFFENDERS BEFORE THE BOROUGH RECORDER.

George Ferguson was given the choice of paying three dollars or being the guest of the Borough for three days by Borough Recorder Dolliver this morning, for being drunk and disorderly last night.

Christopher Collis was arrested yesterday for peddling without a license. He was fined two dollars in the Borough court this morning. He promised to take out a license at once.

Reading Brakeman Injured.

Walter Brennan, aged 28 years, of Philadelphia, employed as a brakeman on the Reading railroad, had his right foot crushed while engaged in shifting cars at Cranford at 3 o'clock this morning. He was brought to Muhlenberg Hospital an hour later, where it was found necessary to amputate a portion of the foot. Today the man was reported as doing well.

G. O. P. ANNUAL OUTING ON SATURDAY, AUG. 14

Arrangements for the annual outing of the Union County Republicans were furthered at a meeting of the Union County Republican Executive committee in Elizabeth, last night. This year the destination will be Rocaway, instead of Witzel's Point Grove, and the Steamer Isabel has been chartered for the trip. The date will be Saturday, August 14. Tickets were placed in the hands of the committeemen last night from whom they can be purchased.

It was also decided to hold a dollar dinner at Turn Hall, Elizabethport on September 22, and the committee will arrange the details for the affair.

The term of George Stewart, as a member of the county board of elections, about to expire, the committee unanimously recommended his re-appointment by Governor J. Franklin Fort. The request will undoubtedly be complied with at the proper time.

Planning Postmaster's Convention.

Postmaster Elias H. Bird went to Asbury Park, today, where he will attend a conference of a committee of postmasters for the purpose of arranging the details for the annual convention to be held at Asbury Park in September. AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

John and Mary McFadden, who were arrested on Sunday for selling liquor without a license, have been arrested before for the same offense. On the previous occasion McFadden was let go with a fine of $100, which it was stated yesterday, had never been paid. Neil Splane, who was also locked up and held in $100 bail as a material witness, claimed to be a State detective, had in his hip pocket a pint flask of whiskey which he claimed to have bought in McFadden's place. County Prosecutor Boeraem intends to push the case against the McFaddens to the limit.

The W. L. McCauley place on Greenbrook road was sold yesterday to a New York syndicate. The names of the buyers could not be ascertained.

William Wyckoff, former mayor of Dunellen, returned yesterday from a two-weeks' trip to Chicago and points in the west.

Peter Ratti went to New Brunswick Sunday to visit his sister, Mrs. Martha Tarantula.

The Peerless Baseball Club would like to arrange games with teams averaging 11 to 13 years. Address 156 East Second street.

The Y. M. C. A. team will cross bats with the Orange association nine on Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon. The Orange boys are in the habit of playing fast ball, and the locals will have to go some to win. Peacock will probably pitch for Plainfield.

Clifford Randolph is still waiting for a regular berth and expects to land it within a short time.

The Plainfield Baseball Club will play "Dave" Driscoll's New Brunswick team at the latter place on Saturday. A number of fans will accompany the team.

The Giants were third when they started West, and they come back in fourth place. Yet they gained eight points on the trip.

Well, if none of our Greater New York teams can keep up with the major league procession there is always room in the Night League.

"I think the greatest pitcher baseball ever has known is Walter Johnson," says Kid Elberfield. "I have batted against all the present day cracks except Mathewson and can only judge Mathewson's work from having seen him. Why, Johnson can tell you what's coming up and then you can't hit it."

Newcomers in big league company, or at least recent comers who have been seen in New York this season—now that all the teams have been here—that have made the best impression as to their ability include the following: Downey, Oakes and Egan of Cincinnati, Bush of Detroit, Speaker of the Boston Red Sox, Purtell and Owens of the White Sox, Easterly of the Clevelands, Miller of the Pittsburgs, Lennox of the Brooklyns, O'Hara of the Giants, Cree and Engle of the Highlanders, Shaw of the Cardinals, and Collins of the Athletics. Of course there are others, but they did not happen to show much when in New York.

GOLF.

Jerome Dunstan Travers, the golf player, got back Sunday from Scottish and English links on the Anchor liner Caledonia. Through his absence he has lost the New Jersey and Metropolitan Golf Association championships and he failed at Muirfield of the English title he was after. His father and brother, V. P. and Ambrose Travers, met the returning champion. Jerry looked in the best of health.

"Through the perfect putting greens and the fine lies on the fair greens," said Travers, "the ball has more chance than it gets here. Not that it is easier to play good golf there, but there are many more good players there than here. Anyone will take you out and give you a beating there. They give you a grand time socially and then whack you on the links, where all friendships cease."

This is a week of professional golf at the Englewood Golf Club, the national open championship being played there on Thursday and Friday. There will be curtain-raisers today and Wednesday. The women members of all clubs are asked to participate in a four ball match with professionals there today.

This year the golf committee at the Shinnecock Hills Golf Club is made up of R. H. Robertson, Joseph S. Clark and Chester Griswold. The annual invitation tournament, now the oldest to be held without a lapse in the United States, will be on August 5, 6 and 7. Play is now on for weekly competitions, the donors of individual cups including F. A. Snow, J. B. Lee, A. H. Larkin, G. C. Clark, J. S. Clark, and R. H. Robertson.

BIG GEYSER OF FIRE WHEN THE OIL BURNS

Fire yesterday afternoon destroyed 10,000 barrels of oil in the plant of the Standard Oil Company's Constable Hook, Bayonne, plant. What caused the fire is not known, but it is believed that some sort of an experiment was being made with the oil in tank No. 3, one of the largest in No. 2 yard, and that spontaneous combustion followed.

The entire steel top was blown off the tank and a geyser of burning oil shot high into the air. The muffled report, followed by the roar of the flames, brought every employe in the yards out of the houses at once. The alarm was sounded and in less than two minutes the company's fire department was fighting the flames, while the other employes drained off the oil in the tanks nearest the fire.

The flames were visible for miles up and down the bay, as well as along the Jersey shore, Staten Island and Brooklyn.

Aid of the Bayonne fire department was refused, as the head of the refinery said that using water to fight the conflagration would only make matters worse and spread the fire. They were fully equipped with chemicals for just such an emergency, and declared they could keep the fire confined within one yard. So far no fatalities have been reported, but a number of workmen in the refinery were forced to go to the company's hospital as a result of inhaling the fumes of the burning petroleum.

ENDEAVORER CONVENTION FOR ATLANTIC CITY

Much interest has been aroused in C. E. circles since the announcement was made that great efforts are to be made to have the next international convention held at Atlantic City in 1911.

Atlantic City's geographical position makes it the logical site for the next convention, inasmuch as previous conventions have been held in the middle west and western States. Omaha, Dallas and Kansas City will also present their claims for the convention to the committees.

Among the committee chairmen appointed by Purdy F. Benedict, of the Union county C. E. Union, is Walter I. Firstbrook, of this city. Mr. Firstbrook will have charge of the Christian Citizenship and Sabbath Observance department of the county union. Mr. Benedict is planning to form a fresh-air committee to assist. Miss Sara Curry in her motherhood work.

Rev. Abram Duryee, chairman of the State C. E. convention, announces that Rev. Chas. R. Erdman, D. D., of Princeton Theological Seminary, will address the Thursday evening meeting of the convention and that Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., will speak on Friday evening. The Wednesday evening meeting will be a union prayer meeting in which all the churches of Plainfield will join. It is probable that the speaker on that occasion will be the Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, of Brooklyn.

Wm. Phillips Hall, the business man evangelist, and Dr. W. F. Johnson, superintendent of the Christian Citizenship and Sabbath Observance department of the State C. E. Union, will also speak. Mr. Duryee hopes to announce the full list of convention speakers in a short time.

HISTORICAL RELICS DONATED.

Morristown, June 19.—Several historical relics have been added to the collection at Washington's headquarters, acknowledgments of which have just been made by the Washington Association.

Y., a grea-grandson of Alexander Hamilton; three receipts dated 1752, 1753 and 1767, signed by Frederick Philips, of Philips Manor, N. Y. An antique portrait of George Washington and a quotation from his farewell address in blue on linen, enclosed in a glazed frame, and an old copy of the Declaration of Independence printed on cloth, from Francis Hendrichs, of Belleville; an Indian pestle found on the banks of the Whippany River by Dr. Edwin Betts, and an ancient manuscript by Leland B. PICTURES WILL TELL OF LAW'S VIOLATION.

Newton, June 22.—Announcement is made that a stereopticon entertainment, under the direction of the Anti-Saloon League, represented by E. H. Curtis, State organizer, and J. Frank Burke, State superintendent, would be given in the opera house next Friday night, and about 200 views of alleged liquor violations in Sussex county will be thrown on the canvas. The same entertainment will be given in Branchville on the previous evening, and in both places will be free to all who wish to attend.

This news was received with consternation by the liquor dealers over the county, especially because no inkling was given as to where it was claimed the violations had been made by those who prepared for the invasion by the temperance movement. Large crowds are expected to witness the denouncement of those who are licensed to sell intoxicating beverages. Outside of a certain locality in Sussex county, it was generally supposed that the law was being conformed to in all respects.

Delightfully Cool at Proctor's.

With the temperature fifteen degrees cooler than outdoors, a large audience enjoyed the fine bill of vaudeville and motion pictures at Proctor's theatre last night. The numerous electric fans in all parts of the house, made it a delightfully cool place to be. The specialties offered are first-class and the pictures are selected with great care.

New Carnegie Library.

Plans for the new $10,000 Carnegie Library at Cranford are now under headway. J. T. Tubby, Jr., of Westfield, has been selected to draw the plans and superintend the construction of the building. It will be located on Miln street.

SOUTH RIVER BOROUGH OFFICIALS' TRIAL JULY 7.

New Brunswick, June 22.—Mayor Joseph Mark and Borough Clerk Charles Anderson, who pleaded not guilty to indictments for embezzlement here, will be tried July 7. They are accused of having appropriated funds of the borough to their own use.

There are four indictments against Mark, one of which charges him with nonfeasance in office, in that he failed to keep proper records of fines imposed and collected by him as committing magistrate. The two officials were obliged to furnish bail for their appearance for trial. Mark's bond was $1,000 and that of Anderson $500. Each furnished his own security.

It's a Great Show.

Those who fail to see the Du Ball brothers at the Plainfield theatre will miss one of the finest dancing acts that ever happened this way. They got several curtain calls last night for their unique performance. Pete McCloud, the Irish comedian with his harp and comic songs, made a positive hit with the audience who demanded half a dozen encores. He is good to hear.

VAN ARSDALE—In New York city, on Sunday, June 20, 1909, Joseph S., son of Peter and Elizabeth Van Arsdale, aged 25 years.

Funeral services at the residence of Mrs. Charles W. Harden, 262 Somerset street, North Plainfield, on Wednesday, June 23, at 1 p. m.

POWDER WORKS GO UP, 2 DEAD AND 3 INJURED

Two men were killed and three badly injured in an explosion at the Du Pont powder works at Pompton Lakes yesterday. The victims were:

Dead—William Culler, 35 years old, married, leaves a widow and five children. James Weatherwalks, 32 years old, married, leaves a widow and one child.

Injured—Theodore Weatherwalks brother of the dead man, 30 years old. William Coerer, 40 years old. Theodore Monks, 27 years old.

The works are in a gorge of the Wynockle River, and consist of a series of small frame buildings about 15 by 20 feet each, covered with corrugated iron. They are about fifty feet apart. The explosion took place in what is known as the priming house, at the head of the gorge, and a short distance from the drying house. This house, which contained 150 pounds of powder, went up about seven seconds after the explosion in the priming house. Culler was at work in the priming house. Here the cartridges were charged with the fulminate. Nothing was left of the priming house but splinters. Culler's body was found lying near where the door had been. His head and one arm were blown off, and his clothing stripped from his body.

James Weatherwalks was carrying the primed cartridges from the priming house to the sulphur houses. His body was found a few feet away from Culler's. One arm was blown off and the face and head badly disfigured.

About 500 feet away from the priming house stands a long row of buildings resting on piles above the river edge. The fifth one of these small buildings, known as sulphur houses, was blown up. The concussion jumped four more of the houses and blew up two in a row. The injured men worked in these sulphur houses. Two men are employed in each building, and the wonder is that any of them escaped alive, as the buildings were demolished. The loss will be about $1,000.

A WOMAN'S WAY.

She mocks at me—her coquetry
A merry mask for modesty,
She knows my every nerve will feel
Resistlessly the shy appeal
Wooing in witching raillery.

So delicately maidenly,
With gaily radiant flippancy—
Love's deeps with ripples to conceal—
She mocks at me.

Beneath the moon how frank was she,
Honest, from all disguises free,
And wholly mine for woe or weal;
I felt my soul before her kneel—
How slyly now, in roguish glee,
She mocks at me!

DETAILS OF STREET SUITS.

Harper's Bazar, which "sets the Fashion," gives much practical information in the fashion department of the June number. Among other things Madame Olivier says:

"The plain street dress designed for general city wear is full length—that is, it barely escapes the ground. That which may be reserved solely for traveling is an inch or two shorter. Some tailors insist upn this feature. For the afternoon suit of fine cloth, or French serge, white, cream, black, or silver-gray linings only are considered; and these are given to suits of any of the fashionable greens, blues, and browns. To simpler suits even of any of the fashionable greens, blues and browns. To simpler suits even of striped fabrics, conspcuous colors and fabrics are added."

Boosting Business.

Drummer—You boosted for the school committee to get a pretty school teacher from the town? Why, you haven't any children.

Storekeeper Jason—No, but stranger, I had an eye on business. As soon as the pretty teacher arrived all the big boys began sneaking down here and buying hair oil, clean collars and sweet soap by the wholesale.—Chicago Daily News.

The Man From Home

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

"Law!" he observed, startled, but amused. "I didn't know there were folks here. Reckon you'll have to excuse me. Here, son!" he called, tossing the towel into Michele's hands and walking over to the table. Hawcastle, Lady Creech and Horace stared unbelievingly. Ethel hid her face, with another little shudder, as Pike, without removing his dust coat, sat down opposite the German.

"You are a true patriot," laughed Von Grollerhagen. "You allow no profane hand to cook your national dish. I trust you will be as successful with that wicked motor of mine."

Pike laughed heartily.

"Lord bless your soul, doc, I've put a self binder together after a pony engine had bucked it halfway through a brick depot," said Pike genially, tucking his napkin inside the collar of his shirt and falling to on the ham and eggs. At the table where sat the Hawcastle party there were expressions of pained agony.

"You have studied mechanics at the university, then?" went on Von Grollerhagen. "Is it not so?"

"University!" returned Pike. "Not much! On the old man's farm."

Hawcastle turned at once to Horace.

"Without any disrespect to you, my dear fellow, what terrific bounders most of your fellow countrymen are!"

Horace mentally writhed under the veiled taunt, but turned quickly with an assent in effect.

"Do you wonder that sis and I have emancipated ourselves?" he asked, and the noble earl, with a softened glance as he thought of the dollars, replied blandly, "Not at all, my dear boy," and turned once more to his paper.

Von Grollerhagen glanced at the three with slight amusement and held out the caviare to Pike.

"Can I persuade you to try one of my national dishes," he asked—"caviare?"

"Caviare?" replied Pike. "I've heard of it, but I thought it was Russian."

"It is also German," answered the other, recovering himself from the start he had given. "Will you not?"

Daniel looked him straight in the eye quizzically.

"I'd never get into the legislature again if any of the boys heard of it," he remarked, "but I guess I'm far enough from home to take a few chances."

Quite slowly and hesitatingly he placed some of the caviare in his mouth and then turned a vacant and pained look upon the German. The latter smiled and observed quickly:

"You do not like it? I am sorry. Here! A taste of the vodka will destroy the caviare."

Mariano quickly filled a glass and passed it to Daniel, who seized it eagerly. This time he sat bolt upright in the chair and exhibited real distress. Then he quickly seized another forkful of the caviare and ate it hurriedly.

"But I thought you did not like the caviare?" said the German.

Daniel breathed quickly for an instant, and the flush died from his face.

"That was to take away the taste of the vodka," he said weakly, and Von Grollerhagen lifted his head and laughed heartily.

"I lift my hat to you, my friend," he said, and Pike looked at him genially.

"You never worked on a farm, did you, doc?" he asked, and the German admitted that such a pleasure had been denied him.

"I guess that's right," went on Daniel reflectively. "Talk about things to drink! Harvest time and the women folks coming out from the house with a two gallon jug of ice cold buttermilk."

Horace shuddered convulsively, and Von Grollerhagen asked:

"You still enjoy those delights?"

"Not since I moved up to our county seat and began to practice law, ten years ago," Pike answered. "Things don't taste the same in the city."

"Then you do not like your city?"

"Like it! Why, sir, for public buildings and architecture I wouldn't trade our state insane asylum for the worst ruined ruin in Europe—not for hygiene and real comfort."

"And your people?"

"The best on earth. Why, out my way folks are neighbors!"

Horace rattled his paper sharply and glanced angrily at the disturber of his harmony. The German went on.

"But you have no leisure class," he objected, and Daniel smiled.

"We've got a pretty good sized colored population," he replied.

The German lifted his hand protestingly.

"I mean no aristocracy—no great old families such as we have, that go back to the middle ages."

Pike laughed seriously, if one might imagine such a thing, and returned instantly:

"Well, I expect if they go back that far they might just as well sit down and stay there. No, sir; the poor man in my country don't have to pay any taxes to keep up a lot of useless kings and earls and first grooms of the bedchamber and second ladies in waiting and I don't know what all. If anybody wants our money for nothing, he's got to show energy enough to steal it. Doc, I wonder a man like you doesn't emigrate."

"Bravo!" cried Von Grollerhagen, with keen delight, while Hawcastle turned with an angry gesture to Horace.

"Your countryman does seem to be rather down on us!"

Horace flushed with mortification and returned:

"This fellow is distinctly of the lower orders. We should cut him as completely in the States as here."

CHAPTER IX.

RECOGNIZED.

THE German was frankly enjoying his guest's conversation and quaint mannerisms and went on:

"I wonder you make this long journey, my friend, instead of spending your holiday at home."

Pike looked up in astonishment.

"Holiday! Why, I never even had time to go to Niagara falls. I'm here on business."

Ethel, who was still standing by the countess, looked at her friend with pained entreaty, and Horace, catching Lady Creech's basilisk eye fixed on him, reddened with mortification.

Daniel carefully folded his napkin and sat back.

"I expect it's about time for me to go and find the two young folks I've come to look after," he said.

"You are here for a duty, then?" asked the German quietly.

"I shouldn't be surprised if that was the name for it," answered Pike, rising. "Yes, sir; all the way from Indiana!"

Both Ethel and Horace started in horrified amazement and looked at each other with stricken terror on their faces. If this should—

"I—I can't stand this. I shall go for a stroll," said Horace hysterically and rose from the table, while Hawcastle looked at Pike fixedly.

"By Jove!" he said slowly.

"I expect, doc," went on Pike calmly, "that I won't be able to eat with you this evening. You see—you see I've come a mighty long way to look after her, and she—that is, they—will probably want me to have supper with them."

"Reason! Why, yes. I'm her guardian!"

The horror was closing fast around the other party, and they simply stared.

"Do not trouble for me," observed the German. "Your young people—they have a villa?"

"No," answered Pike, with a smile. "They're right here in this hotel."

Horace, with fear lending wings to his scattered senses, sprang to his feet and began to walk toward the grove. Pike looked up.

"I'd better ask," he said, and then, observing Horace, went on addressing him: "Hey, there! Can you"— He stared as the young man, paying no attention, proceeded on his way. Pike raised his voice.

"Excuse me, son, ain't you an American?" As Horace paid no more attention he turned to Mariano. "Here, waiter! Tell that gentleman I want to speak to him!"

Mariano sprang after the retreating Horace.

FIFTY AUTO TOURISTS STOP HERE ON TRIP

Fifty auto tourists, including eight women, representing the Maxwell-Briscoe Motor Club, of New York, on its annual spring tour, arrived at Morris Bros.' garage at 5:10 yesterday afternoon, enroute for home. Everything was in readiness for the entertainment of the tourists a lunch comprising salads, sandwiches, punch, cigars and cigarettes being served by Timbo, of North avenue. They were much pleased with the reception accorded here.

The autoists, in forty-two cars, left Columbus Circle, New York, Monday morning, June 14, and the trip extended through New York State, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, Sunday being spent at Atlantic City, and yesterday the party enjoyed itself at Asbury Park, where lunch was served. The tourists left the Park shortly after noon, arriving here at 5:10.

There were sixteen cars in line upon arrival here. William Hobbie met the party at Keyport and escorted it to this city. Many of the forty-two starters dropped out the first day of the tour and others at points in Pennsylvania and New York, when their home towns were reached.

Just before leaving, Edward G. Lyrdi, Ph. D., took a group picture of the party on the second floor of the garage. As the tourist left they gave three cheers for Morris Bros. The tour was for the "De Lisser Trophy," donated to The Maxwell-Briscoe Motor Club by Horace De Lisser, to be awarded the through tourist who at the end of the run had experienced no "roadside trouble" and who, in the opinion of the majority, has observed most assiduously the rules of courtesy and promoted most the success of the tour.

After a welcome to Newark by about 150 Maxwell owners, the tourists proceeded to New York, where they arrived about 8:30 o'clock and had dinner at the Hotel Cumberland.

Cranford vs. P. S. C.

The Public Service Corporation and the Cranford Township committee are at odds concerning the street lighting contract and the advisability of establishing a local lighting plant is being considered. The company still holds out for $18 per year for Tungsten lamps, but the committee believe the price too high and that $16 for incandescent light is sufficient. The matter will come up for final action at the July meeting of the committee.

LEAL'S COMMENCEMENT

Prof. Frame Delivers Address on "Education" When Eight are Graduated.

YALE CUP IS AWARDED.

Honor Rule in Several Classes Is Announced—Where Grades Will Matriculate.

The Park Club auditorium was the scene last night of the commencement exercises of the Leal school, from which eight pupils were graduated, and who will take up their studies in some of the colleges.

The Yale Club cup, which is offered each year for the student who excels in scholarship and athletics was won by Murray Rushmore, and was presented to the lad in a neat speech by E. A. Stevenson, president of the club. Master Rushmore responded in a pleasing way and said that he would prove his appreciation of the gift by continuing to earn the approval of his friends.

The hall was tastefully decorated with running roses and oak boughs with the stage set off in pink and green all making a harmonious combination pleasing to the eye. Some very good music was furnished by three pupils of the school, Thos. H. Leggett, piano; C. R. Lawrence, first violin and T. R. Jewett, second violin. The music preceded the address of the evening which was made by Professor James Everett Frame, of the Union Theological Seminary, whose topic was "Education." In part it follows:

"It has been urged from time to time that a college education is a waste of time for young men proposing to go into business. My difficulty with this and similar judgments is not the underlying theory that the value of education lies in usefulness (with that view I have no quarrel), but the unguarded assumption that the main object of education is a business or professional career. Now, of course, food, clothing and shelter are necessities, and the better the training for our particular bread and butter job, the more successful we shall be in making provision for these necessities. But an objection to this judgment comes from the men of imagination, who urge that because a man has his disinctive shop to mind needs to leave all loves behind except what trade can give. A subtler objection is made by those who believe that there is dormant in man an instinct more compelling even than the aesthetic instinct namely, the moral instinct and who are convinced (in the words of a teacher of mine) that the 'the best thing education can do is to make moral character efficient through mental discipline.'

"Sharing this view let me say in my own way that the value of education lies (1) in the help it affords in discovering a life purpose; (2) in the efficiency it creates through mental training; (3) in the happiness it gives in the discovery of a life purpose and in the consciousness of efficiency.

"In the earlier years of school life we are more or less provincial and fettered. We have the path marked out for us and do well if we follow our guides. But the time comes when we leave the beaten paths and roam about at will. In a vague way we are heading for a goal, the purpose of life, and if we are wise, we shall take with us as our guide in this voyage of discovery and freedom, education, and particularly a college education. This education begins by helping us to discover what the world of men and things really is. Our eyes are opened to great civilization, and in these we lose ourselves in wonder and admiration.

"Our eyes are opened to the world of nature and the laws which seem to control its conduct, the conquest of it ever increasingly by mankind. Education must not stop with the acquisition of facts it must furnish us with the significance of facts. Progress is everywhere and back of progress is purpose. To discover this purpose is to be educated.

"To be able to read the trend of men and things, to discover in the fact of progress a purpose—this is the value of education. But education does not rest content with granting us a knowledge of the truth, it sets us free to make the purpose of life our own purpose, free to commit ourselves loyally to its behests.

"Some of you may have noticed lately the statement that a brief preliminary investigation among law and medical students in various sections of the country appears to indicate that something like 65 or 70 per cent of the college graduates now studying law or medicine knew

SENIORS WERE SAILORS

P. H. S. Class Day Program Rendered From Deck of the "Class Ship."

SCHOOL AUDITORIUM CROWDED.

Clever 1909 Pupils Take Part in Unique Class Day Exercises and Dancing Follows.

Class Day exercises of the Plainfield High Schol senior class were held at the school auditorium last night, when an audience of 800, including parents and many alumni received the program with genuine applause. The affair concluded with an informal dance, when there were more than a hundred couples on the floor for the fifteen dances.

Dressed in sailor suits with broad blue collars, and wearing jaunty sailor hats, the members of the class of 1909 were grouped on the auditorium stage during the exercises. The stage was prepared as a shipboard scene, and the '09 "sailors," concluding their cruise through the high school viewed the audience over the rail which bordered the footlights. Above were masts and spars, carrying the sails and strung with signal flags.

The officers of the ship were the officers of the class, and Walter Knowlton, the class president, was master of ceremonies. With him, occupying seats at the rail were the class vice-president, Miss Sarah Brower, the secretary, Miss Louise Nicholl, and the treasurer, Charles E. Prior, Jr. "The Red and Blue," a school song composed by Albert Hardcastle, was sung by the sailor lads and lassies as the curtain was drawn aside and this was followed by the class history, read from the ship's "log book" by Allan Fitz Randolph. It was written by Guion H. Fountain. A song by Miss Louise Nicholl, "The Good Ship '09," was then sung by the class after which Miss Clara Savage read the class poem, composed by Harold Schenck.

The class statistics caused lots of merriment, and the "medals" for the boy or girl superlative in any way were presented by Charles Prior and Walter Knowlton. The "biggest fusser," "biggest eater," "most studious pupil," and "jolliest pupil" were all called up for medals, and Allan Snyder was "decorated" as "the boy who has done most for P. H. S."

Charles E. Prior, Jr., sang the verses to a clever song written by Miss Helen Pope, and the class joined in the chorus. Edward Abbott in an excellent make-up as a sailor man, then boarded the "ship" and read the class prophecy, written by the Class Day committee. The class will, prepared by Miss Ethel Skillman, was reported as missing, but Charles Prior developed into a press agent for the P. H. S. "Oracle," and stated that it was printed in full in the commencement number of the publication. The exercises concluded with the singing of "Good-Bye P. H. S," by the class.

The committee in charge of the affair comprised Charles E. Prior, Jr., Miss Ethel Skillman, and Albert Hardcastle. Music for the dancing was furnished by Suhr's Imperial orchestra.

MISS MARION HARTLEY WEDS JOHN V. M'ADAMS.

Miss Marion Hartley, daughter of Justinian Hartley, of New York, and sister of Mrs. George P. Mellick, was married yesterday afternoon at Mr. and Mrs. Mellick's bungalow to John V. McAdam, of St. Paul, Minn.

OBNOXIOUS AMERICANS

"Lanky Bob" Gives Impressions of Some Yankee Tourists Abroad.

THEY ARE LOUD AND BOASTFUL

"Fitz" Says He Is Still Middleweight Champion of the World and Light Heavy-weight Champion as Well.

"While it is conceded that the vast majority of American citizens who travel abroad are quite willing to behave themselves, there is an element which is not content to become assimilated with existing conditions there, especially in England, but must keep the eagle screaming, wherever and whenever the opportunity offers, in some instances making the opportunity, much to the discomfort and embarrassment of Americans of a gentler kind, whose sole object is not that of twisting the lion's tail, but of enjoying themselves in a legitimate manner."

Thus spoke Robert Fitzsimmons the farmer-pugilist while recounting some of his recent experiences in England to a few friends yesterday morning. To bring out the point more forcibly Mr. Fitzsimmons told this story :"On one occasion while entertaining some friends at a well known restaurant near Piccadilly Circus, where a fine orchestra is one of the features of the affair, I requested the leader of the orchestra, as a personal favor to play a couple of American airs. The request was immediately complied with and during the playing a party of Americans, evidently of the tourist breed, entered and seated themselves at an adjoining table and immediately made themselves conspicuous by their loud talk. When the music ceased these new arrivals demanded more of the same kind, paying no heed to the loud boos of others in the restaurant who evidently preferred music of another class. The party insisted, however, much to the disgust of everyone else in the place. Finally I leaned over and said as pleasantly as possible 'let the English music go on for now and we will have some more American stuff later.' This had no effect as they shouted all the louder 'to h——with English music, lets have some more American.'"

"Now that's what I call being the hog and it don't help to make us any more friendly either. It gives a bad impression and creates the belief that we are all alike and not fit to mix in with decent folks."

Mr. Fitzsimmones also relieved himself of a few terse sentences regarding an alleged interview held with him by a New Yor kreporter, in which he was quoted as saying that he was ready and willing to take on anybody from Jeffries down. He said that as he is still the champion middleweight and owner of the title in the light heavyweight class he stands ready to defend these titles against any man in the world regardless of creed or color.

Fitz also said that he is a trifle fat now, weighing in the neighborhood of 170 pounds, but that he could get into prime condition in a short time as his health is of the best. And his looks bear out the assertion.

POLICE HAPPENINGS.

Negro Booze-Fighter Promises to Take the Pledge.

Edward Washington, colored, was arrested last night by Patrolman Birmingham for raising a disturbance at his boarding house, on East Second street. The complaint was made by Lee Wells, a fellow boarder, who told the court today that Washington had a habit of coming home drunk and making defamatory remarks about his wife. Last night's repetition of the offence, perpetrated with particular calumny as far as vocabulary goes, was "the last straw" for Wells.

The pair are good friends and Wells didn't want to have any punishment inflicted. He only wanted to be sure that it wouldn't happen again. "I was pretty mad, Judge," said Wells, "when I heard him talking to my wife like that. I was sick and weak, or I don't know what would have happened. When Ed is sober, there isn't a better fellow anywhere, but when he's drunk, he's awful."

Washington, who has four entries on his police court card, realized that booze is the cause of his periodic unpopularity when City Judge Runyon reviewed his record. He said that he would quit drinking, and upon this condition, sentence was suspended.

REFUSE INJUNCTION AGAINST THE CITY

United States Court Dismisses Siegel, Cooper & Co's Petition for a Restraining Order.

IMPORTANT EXCISE RULING.

Federal Courts Will Not Interfere—Criminal Action Solely for the State Courts.

Judge Cross, at Trenton, yesterday, gave his decision on the application of Siegel, Cooper & Company, of New York, for a preliminary injunction restraining the State from further prosecution of the charge against Coleman, one of its drivers, for illegally delivering wines and liquors in this State. The motion by the New York concern for an injunction is denied, thereby resulting in a signal victory for the State and especially for Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., who argued the case for the State; also for Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh, who made the argument on behalf of the city.

In handing down his decision, Judge Cross says that in view of the answering affidavits of the defendants and of other affidavits from Coleman, he should hesitate under any circumstances to grant a preliminary injunction restraining the further prosecution of the charge against Coleman, and further says that this court is not empowered to interfere with existing criminal prosecution in a State court; once they are instituted therein they must be prosecuted to a definite conclusion without interference from the Federal courts.

The action against the New York concerns delivering wines and liquors here began when under direction of the prosecutor's office of the county several drivers were arrested in this city. A preliminary hearing was held before City Judge William N. Runyon and then the case was taken to the higher courts by Siegel Cooper & Co., who sought a preliminary injunction restraining the State from further prosecution until the matter could be tried in the upper courts. Winfield S. Angleman represented the complainant company.

The opinion handed down by Judge Cross follows:

The bill of complaint, alleges among other things, that the complainant is incorporated under the laws of the State of New York, is a citizen and resident of the State, and engaged in the business of buying and selling at retail, in the city of New York, goods and merchandise including wines and liquors; that for the purpose of its business it maintains a store in that city for the display and sale of merchandise, from which store all sales and deliveries are made to its customers; that in the conduct of its business it uniformly agrees to make free delivery of merchandise sold at its store, to the place designated by the customer, provided such place is within a certain prescribed distance from the city of New York; that orders for merchandise are given to it over the counter at its store in the city of New York, or are transmitted to it thereby by mail or telephone or they are taken by complainant's drivers in the course of their business of delivering goods and turned into the store by them; that all orders, however received, are accepted or rejected at the New York store, and that all orders accepted, if intended for delivery outside the city of New York, as for instance at Plainfield, are filled at the store by separately wrapping and tagging such parcel, so as to identify it as the purchase of the particular customer for whom intended; that the articles thus wrapped and tagged are shipped from the store in bulk, each consignment, however, in its original package, by complainant's trucks operated by it from the city of New York, to a central distributing depot, from which point the parcels are classified with respect to the particular locality at which, and the purchaser to whom they are to be delivered, and are then loaded upon wagons owned and operated by the complainant, and subsequently delivered to the points designated by its customers; that such merchandise is sometimes sold for cash, sometimes on credit and sometimes C. Demmitt has been hitting at a lively clip for the Highlanders during the past two weeks.

On account of the funeral of Geo. Dovey, of the Boston club, no games were played in the National League yesterday. There will be a double-header today at the Polo Grounds between the Giants and Boston.

There has been some fearful slumping lately by three teams. The St. Louis Browns have lost thirteen out of their last fifteen games, the Brooklyns have lost sixteen out of their last eighteen games and the Boston Nationals have lost twelve out of their last fourteen.

"Christy" Mathewson and George Wiltse are the only dependable pitchers on the Giants' staff at present. "Bugs" Raymond is good occasionally, and the rest of the pitchers are uncertain.

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. will play the Orange association nine at Crescent Oval, Saturday afternoon.

The Plainfield Baseball Club, otherwise known as the Clinton Avenues, play at New Brunswick on Saturday.

Mike Leonard, formerly of the Plainfield team and considered one of the best third baseman in this part of the country in the semi-professional class, played for New Brunswick on Saturday, and was right there with the goods.

"Young America" Causes Fire.

Roselle, June 23.—Fire which Monday afternoon destroyed two outhouses on the property of Jay Rewalt, in Chestnut street, for a time threatened the destruction of part of the borough's business block. One of the buildings destroyed was that formerly used as a firehouse. It was also for several months the home of the Triangle Athletic Club. The damage amounted to about $500. Boys playing with firecrackers caused the blaze. The firemen for a time had difficulty in getting a stream in play on the building. They directed their attention to preventing the flames from reaching a large gasoline tank buried within a few feet of the burning buildings.

Appetizing Breakfast Dish.

A very pretty breakfast dish is this: Toast slices of berad, cutting off the crust so they are square, or cut them round with a cookie cutter. Butter lavishly. Whip up the white of an egg for each slice of toast and cover the toast with it, dropping the yolk in the centre of each white nest. Set in the oven till the white is browned ever so little, and serve at once.

REFUSE INJUNCTION

The particular grievance set forth in the bill of complaints is, that one Coleman, the driver of one of complainant's delivery wagons, was arrested by Patrick J. Kiely, chief of police of the city of Plainfield, charged with selling liquor without a license contrary to the laws of this State; that he was thereupon arraigned before the City Judge of said city, and was held by him under bail to await the action of the Grand Jury upon said complaint; that the Prosecutor of Pleas of Union county is about to present said complaint to the Grand Jury, and bring said Coleman, if indicted, to trial before the court of said county. The bill alleges that the transaction for which Coleman was arrested, was of the following general nature and character. Coleman, as the driver of one of its delivery wagons, for a bottle of whiskey, which order was to be filled by the complainant from its store in the city of New York, if the order should be there accepted by the complainant, and that if said order was so accepted, the article was to be addressed, packed and delivered free to the purchaser according to the business and delivery system of the complainant above set forth, and the price thereof, collected by Coleman of the purchaser at the time of such delivery, and remitted to the complainant in New York.

This transaction, a summary of which only has been given, the bill alleges, was protected by the Commerce clause of the Constitution of the United States. The defendants by their answering affidavits, deny the allegations of the bill, and set forth facts designed to show that the sale in question was not within the clause of the Constitution above referred to, and was not protected thereby; that the driver simply made a sale at Plainfield without any reference to the place from whence, or the person by whom the order was to be filled, in other words, that the transaction was begun, carried on and completed within the boundaries of the city of Plainfield. The defendants in the suit are The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, one Kiely, its chief of police, and C. Addison Swift, prosecutor of the pleas for the county of Union, within which county the city of Plainfield lies, and the bill prays that the defendants may be enjoined from further prosecuting the charge against Coleman, and also from further arresting or interfering with the drivers, employed by the complainant, in making other like deliveries of merchandise, including wines and liquors, which the complainant may sell pursuant to its above described business methods, which arrests it is charged, are threatened by the defendants.

In view of the answering affidavits of the defendants themselves and of other affidavits from Coleman, I should hesitate under any circumstances to grant a preliminary injunction restraining the further prosecution of the charge against Coleman, but aside from the affidavits presented, either for or against the motion, it is sufficient to say that this court is not empowered to interfere with existing criminal prosecutions in a State court; once they are instituted therein they must be prosecuted to a definite conclusion without interference from the federal courts. It must be assumed that Coleman's rights will be fully and amply protected by the State courts and that if the transaction in question shall appear to be within the protection of the Commerce clause of the constitution, it will be so determined by those courts, and he will be discharged. The State courts are as much bound to enforce the provisions of the Federal constitution as are the Federal courts, and a presumption that they will not, cannot be entertained.

If, however, the State courts, through inadvertance or otherwise, should fail to respond to the duty imposed upon them, the finding of its highest court would be subject to review by the United States Supreme Court by writ of error, which would constitute the only proper procedure in the premises. The views which I have thus briefly expressed are those well recognizd and long established by the Supreme Court of the United States. Reference will be made to but a single case, that of Fritts vs. McGhee, 172 U. S. 516, where at page 531 the court said:

"We are of the opinion that the Circuit Court of the United States, sitting in equity, was without jurisdiction to enjoin the institution or prosecuton of these criminal proceedings commenced in the State court. This view is sustained by In re Sawyrer, 124 U. S. 200, 210." It was there said: "Under the Constitution and laws of the United States, the distinction between common law and equity, as existing in England at the time of the separation of the two countries, has been maintained, although both jurisdictions are vested in the same courts. Fenn vs. Holme, 21 How. 431, 484-487; Thompson vs. Railroad Companies, 6 Wall. 134; Heine vs. Levee Commissioners, 19 Wall. 655.

Again: "The office and jurisdiction of a court of equity, unless enlarged by express statute, are limited to the protection of right of property. It has no jurisdiction over the prosecution, the punishment or the pardon of crimes and misdemeanors, or over the appointment and removal of public officers. To assume such a jurisdiction, or to sustain a bill in equity to restrain or relieve against proceedings for the punishment of offences, or for the removal of public officers, is to invade the domain of the courts of common law, or of the executive and administrative departments of the government." At the present term of the court, in Harkrader vs. Wadley, 172 U. S. 148, 169, 170, we said: "In proceeding by indictment to enforce a criminal statute the State can only act by officers or attorneys, and to enjoin the latter is to enjoin the State." Again: "Much more are we of opinion that a Circuit Court of the United States, sitting in equity in the adminstration of civil remedies, has no jurisdiction to stay by injunction proceedings pending in a State court in the name of a State to enforce the criminal laws of such State."

"The plaintiffs state that the toll-gatherers in their service had been indicted in a state court for violating the provisions of the act of 1895 in respect to tolls. Let them appear to the indictment and defend themselves upon the ground that the state statute is repugnant to the Constitution of the United States. The state court is competent to determine the question thus raised, and is under a duty to enforce the mandates of the supreme law of the land. Robb vs. Connolly, 111 U. S. 624. And if the question is determined adversely to the defendants in the highest court of the State in which the decision could be had, the judgment may be re-examined by this court upon writ of error. That the defendants may be frequently indicted constitutes no reason why a Federal Court of equity should assume to interfere with the ordinary course of criminal procedure in a state court.

"Upon the question of the alleged threats of the defendants to arrest and prosecute other of the complainant's drivers for making like deliveries, it is sufficient to say, without passing upon the power of the court to enjoin the defendants in that respect, that not only do the defendants by their affidavits disclaim all intention of interfering with any interstate commerce transactions, but the allegation of the bill to that effect are unsupported by competent evidence. The only affidavit attached to the bill of complaint was made by an assistant secretary of the complainant corporation, and is manifestly, in some respects, based upon hearsay evidence; and particularly is this true of the charge that the defendants, the City of Plainfield and Kiely, its Chief of Police, have threatened to arrest all other drivers, agents and employees of the complainant, who shall engage in delivering wines and liquors anywhere in the City of Plainfield, concerning whom the language of the affidavit is as follows: 'deponent further says that he is now informed * * * that the police and administrative authorities of the City of Plainfield, have threatened to cause the arrest of all drivers, agents and employees of the Company, if they persist in making deliveries of liquor for the company as aforesaid,' and insofar as the affidavit refers to the alleged threats of the Prosecutor of the Pleas of Union County, the following language is ued: 'deponent further says that he is informed by the several drivers for his company, that the said C. Addison Swift, as Prosecutor of the County of Union, threatens to cause the arrest and prosecution of all other drivers, agents and employees of deponent's company, who shall engage in the delivery of wines and liquors anywhere in the County of Union, sold by said company, and delivered from its store in the City of New York, without first having obtained a license therefor." No court would be warranted in issuing a preliminary injunction on an affidavit of the character just referred to.

The motion will therefore be denied."

Werts Quits State Job.

Trenton, June 23.—Former Governor George T. Werts called upon Governor Fort yesterday and tendered his resignation as a member of the commission to revise the statutes of New Jersey. Mr. Werts is in feeble health and gave this as a reason for wishing to retire from active work. Governor Fort expressed regret at the cause which foced this action and accepted the resignation to take effect on July 8, thus enabling Mr. Werts to complete another month of service. The other members of the commission are Alan S. Strong and Joseph L. Munn. The secretary is Francis B. Lee, of this city.

Woman Sues Policeman.

Elizabeth, June 23.—In the Elizabeth District Court here yesterday a suit for $500 damages for assault and battery was begun before Judge Whittemore. The plaintiff is Mrs. Ida Bruggy, a dealer in antique furniture, while the defendant is Policeman William McCracken, of Elizabeth. The latter went to Mrs. Bruggy's house, in September, 1908, with a warrant for the arrest of her son Laurence on a charge of larceny. She refused to let the policeman search the house, and then, she alleges, he clubbed her across the chest and back, inflicting injuries from which she still suffers. City Attorney Connolly is defending the accused patrolman.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Manager Dorflinger, of the Plainfield Baseball team, and Manager Frentz of the locals, are getting together and from present indications a series of five games will be arranged between the two teams. Westfield is organizing a team and it is possible that the three teams may play a series of games. This will be good news to the fans as the rivalry between the three towns is red hot when it comes to a ball game.

The local ball team play the McKirman A. C. team of Newark, Saturday afternoon on the home grounds. This is the team that played the locals a hard game two weeks ago, the home team winning by the score of 3-2.

Thomas M. Paff, Sr., of Park avenue, is making his home for the present with his daughter, Mrs. Charles E. Grant, of Front street, Plainfield.

Mrs. Otto Peterson, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Benjamin Clark, has returned to her home in Newark.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Walpole, of Front street, have been entertaining relatives and friends from Newark.

A strawberry and ice cream festival will be held Saturday night by the women of the Baptist church.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Charles Williams, sixteen years old, was drowned in the "swimming hole" in the Raritan river Monday night, near Dateville. His death followed a seizure of cramps while swimming across the river a second time. He was drowned in sight of his comrades who made futile efforts to save the boy. The body was not recovered until near midnight. Williams had disobeyed his mother in going with his companions to the swimming hole and paid the penalty with his life. The funeral was held today from St. Joseph's church in Dateville.

in college just what their subsequent vocations would be, and I may add that a similar investigation among the theological students now in the Seminary which I represent, shows that 80 per cent. of the students knew in college what their future calling would be.

"These are significant facts, and I should be the last to disparage their significance. Nevertheless it is my conviction that education should do more than help a man choose his career, important as a career certainly is. A life purpose is a bigger thing than a career. One is master, the other, servant. In order to help in the achievement of life's purpose we must be made efficient through mental discipline.

"The third value in an education is the feeling of happiness that constantly attends efficient service in the cause of a life purpose It indicates to yourselves and to others that life is worth living."

Professor Frame concluded his address by congratulating the students on the splendid advantages they had enjoyed in the admirable fellowship of teachers and students in their school life.

The following students were graduated and will pursue their studies at the colleges named: William L. Campbell, Yale; Donald B. Fullerton, Princeton; Henry S. Fullerton, Jr., Columbia; Russell J. Lawrence, Cornell; Murray Rushmore, Yale, and William W. Wilson, Stevens Institute.

These students were the honor men in their different classes: Physics, Russel J. Lawrence; French, 2nd year, Thos. R. Jewett; 4th year, Wm. W. Wilson; German, Thos. W. Foote; Anabasis, Murray Rushmore; Greek composition, Morris Brandegee; English V, Wm. W. Wilson; English IV, Thos. W. Leggett; Caesar, Thos. W. Foote; algebra, Clifford A. Hall and W. W. Wilson; solid geometry, Donald B. Fullerton; plane geometry, Clifford A. Hall and W. W. Wilson; algebra 1, Edmond F. Stevenson.

In the junior department for general standing Allan Haley was first and would have won the cup had he not already done so in a previous year. Seward Lyon was second.

After the exercises dancing was indulged in until an early hour this morning.

New Bill at Proctor's Today.

An exceptionally fine bill is promised at Proctor's theatre today by Mr. Sanderson, including an entire change of vaudeville and life motion pictures. Everyone of the specialties will be the best, of the Proctor standard, and the patrons of this house know what this means. The theatre is one of the coolest places in the city and judging by the large patronage, people are quick to recognize the fact.

BUNGALOW LIFE AT PORT-AU-PECK ON THE SHREWSBURY—Bungalow colonies, originally a California institution, are springing up all over the east. Many persons of means believe this to be the most healthful manner in which to spend a vacation. It takes them away from the irksome forms of conventionality and puts them in close touch with nature. It enables them to roam through the woods or sail over the sparkling waters, getting fresh air, sunlight and exercise, which has built many a rundown body up to the exacting requirements of our rushing twentieth century pace. The cooling breezes of the Atlantic meet and mingle with the ozone from the woods, forming an atmospheric combination which carries health and vigor through every pair of lungs inhaling it. These are the conditions at Port-au-Peck on the Shrewsbury. In addition you have fishing, hunting, sailing, canoeing, motor boating, golfing, tennis, bathing and all other forms of healthful, vigorous sports in this section, no matter in what direction you turn. The out-of-doors man or woman will find no more attractive place on this continent in which to spend two or three months or week ends in search of recreation and health. For indoor sports there is a large club-house available with bowling alleys and billiard rooms and is especially equipped to give those small affairs in case you should want to. Thirty bungalows now under construction, from $2,000 up, including the plot, 50x150 feet deep; driven artesian wells on each. Send for booklet. Yours for the asking. You are invited to visit Port-au-Peck as our guest. For further particulars see Charles Matt, Port-au-Peck Realty Co., 1328 Broadway, corner 34th street. Telephone 1266, Murray Hill, New York City, or Dr. George R. Boston, 1 Madison street, telephone, 282-L, Plainfield, or J. T. S. Hunn, 1218 Prospect avenue, telephone 445-R, Plainfield. UNION COUNTY TRUST TO ERECT MARBLE BLDG.

The Union County Trust Company, of Elizabeth, which has for the past seven years occupied the old First National Bank building, corner of Broad and West Grand streets, in that city, has found its quarters far too small to meet the demands of increasing business, and has decided to put up a new structure of modern style, with all the latest equipments, and one that will be a credit to the city. The new building will be one story in height, fifty feet front by 150 deep, and the banking-room will be about 47x100, with ceiling thirty-two feet high and surmounted by a large skylight.

The material will be of white marble from Congressman Fowler's Vermont quarries. The interior will be furnished to correspond and will have a safe deposit vault with 500 boxes to begin with and capable of being extended to 1,500. The Hedden Construction Company, of Newark has the contract for the building, and the Herring, Hall, Marven Company for the vault. There will be a three-story annex to the West Grand street side of the new building, which the Fidelity Trust Company of Newark will occupy in part as its Union County branch office. The new building will cost about $125,000.

The Union County Trust Company took over the First National Bank of Elizabeth, in 1902, and at that time had a business of about $900,000. At the last meeting of the directors the business reported was not far from $3,500,000. The tearing down of the old bank building will be commenced about September 1, when the trust company will move to temporary quarters in the Edwards & King building, Broad street and Central Railroad. The new building will be completed in about a year.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

His wife unable to appear to press the charge of assault and battery against him because of the injuries she sustained, Anthony Wisniewshi was held for a further hearing Monday by Recorder Stackhouse, in Camden.

"Lige" Wellock, the full-blooded Indian graduate of the Carlisle School, who has been in the employ of Butcher John Thornton, of Sickterville, for nearly a year, left yesterday with his family for his old home in Wisconsin. Wellock came to the Carlisle School when young and has not seen his people for many years.

A citizen whose name is withheld, through the Park Commission, Monday subscribed $500 to the fund being raised for musical concerts in the Camden parks Sunday afternoons during the summer.

Charles Fry arrived home at Vineland Sunday from his trip around the world in the torpedo boat destroyer U. S. Hopkins. Before leaving San Francisco he re-enlisted as a machinist for four years more.

Two Americanized Camden Chinamen were arrested Monday on suspicion of being Leon, the fugitive in the Sigel murder case in New York. Both quickly convinced the authorities that a mistake had been made, and were at once released.

Vice-Chancellor Leaming, in Camden, Monday dismissed the suit against the city of Camden brought by Eli T. Browning to restrain the municipality from dirving wells on a tract of land recently purchased at Delair.

Roofers in the employ of the Commonwealth Roofing Company, in Paterson, left their work Monday, declaring they were on strike, following a conference with Manager Theodore Sloan. The question is one of wages.

The home of Nicholas Freiber, in Dewey avenue, up in the Cherryfield Park section of Totowa Borough, was burned to the ground by a fire which started from an unknown cause Monday afternoon. The loss will be total on the building and practically total on the furniture, as not over $40 worth of household effects could be saved from the flames. The damage will amount to about $2,700.

Wire thieves have forestalled the expected fight between the Pitman Electric Light Company and the Clayton Borough. The franchise expired yesterday and it was expected there would be slashing of wires and cutting down of poles, but Saturday night the lights were turned off and business men using the service were compelled to resort to lamps. Superintendent Buys, of the electric company, investigated yesterday. He found that considerable wire had been taken from the poles between Glassboro and Clayton. It was found coiled up in the woods, where the thieves evidently expected to return and take more with it.

Mrs. Arthur P. Tatum, aged forty-eight years, died at her home in Elmer street, Bridgeton, from lockjaw. A week ago she ran a large splinter in her foot. Little was thought of it until Sunday, when her jaws had become set. A physician was summoned, but his efforts were in vain. Her husband and four children survive her.

CO. K. ON ITS MARCH

ENJOYS A FINE FEED.

Captain Kitchell took Co. K out for a little hike Monday night and put the members through the platoon movement, with right and left squad movements as desert. Lieut. Charles Peterson was in charge of one squad and Sergeant N. H. Hort of the other. Lieut A. I. Littell was detained at the armory with important military matters and could not "enjoy" the walk.

The company went as far as South Plainfield where it met with an agreeable surprise in the shape of a delicious supper prepared by the mothers of members and other women friends of the comapny.

On the return march, owing to the heat the militiamen were allowed to assume the "route" march and being in a musical mood sang and whistled the time away. They said that they enjoyed every minute of the jaunt.

The next march will be to Bound Brook and will be one of a series of marches preparatory to the strenuous exercise expected at camp this summer.

On Friday, December 18, the couple whose combined ages equal thirty-seven years, the bride being but sixteen, went to Long Branch and were married by Rev. F. A. De Maris, pastor of the Simpson M. E. church The couple are now living with the bride's brother, Everett Herbert, on Summerfield avenue.

The Man From Home

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

"Pardon, m'sieu, the gentleman, he wish to speak to you."

Horace whirled in an angry flash.

"What gentleman?" he demanded, and Pike regarded him calmly.

"I thought from your looks," he proceeded quietly, "you might be an American."

Horace planted himself squarely before his interrogator.

"Are you speaking to me?" he demanded haughtily.

"I shouldn't be surprised," said Pike genially. "Ain't you an American?"

"I happen to have been born in the States," replied Horace aggressively, and Pike smiled quizzically.

"Well, that was luck," he commented, and as Horace turned again to go he said: "Hold on a minute! I'm looking for some Americans here, and I expect you know 'em—boy and girl named Simpson!"

Horace flushed deeply to the roots of his hair.

"Is there any possibility you mean Granger-Simpson?" he asked, with elaborate sarcasm, but this was lost on Daniel.

"No, sir; just plain Simpson. Granger's their middle name. That's for old Jed Granger, grandfather on their mother's side. I want to see 'em both, but it's the girl I'm really looking for."

"Will you be good enough to state any possible reason why Miss Granger-Simpson should see you?" and Pike started in genuine astonishment.

"Reason!" he reiterated. "Why, yes. I'm her guardian!"

The effect of this simple statement was terrifying. Ethel reeled dizzily and was supported by Mme. de Champigny. The earl rose to his feet, and Horace staggered back.

"What!" he cried.

"Yes, sir," went on Pike—"Daniel Voorhees Pike, attorney at law, Kokomo, Ind."

Horace fell back from him in horrified amazement.

"I shall ask her," he began weakly and shamefacedly, "if she will consent to an interview."

Pike looked at him in amazement in his turn.

"Interview!" he said. "Why, I want to talk to her!"

Hawcastle, with some of his finer feelings aroused, picked up his sister-in-law with his eyes, much as a clever hostess picks up her feminine guests at dinner, and arose, turning to Ethel.

"This shall make no difference to us, my child," he said and, turning sharply, took Lady Creech by the arm and left the terrace. Pike looked at Horace pityingly.

"Don't you understand?" he said. "I'm her guardian!"

For a fleeting instant Horace stared at him and then dropped his chin and walked away.

"I shall never hold up my head again," he said.

The sudden horror of the revelation that Horace had drawn forth bore down upon Ethel's mind with a crushing weight.

To her artificialized understanding the disgrace was more than she could ever hope to bear, and Horace's expressed thought that he should never be able to hold up his head again was but a vivification of her own.

Surely it would have been bad enough, she told herself, if this fearful thing had come upon them privately, but to have it appear in the full light of day and in the very hearing of the family of the man she was about to marry was too cruel.

And with an inward groan she leaned for a moment against the terrace wall where the countess had left her. When the first astonishment had passed and she had time to realize what had occurred, events that had seemed but fleeting impressions rose up before her in all their vivid nakedness. Mme. de Champigny had looked at her with astute contempt, she was sure, and she dimly remembered seeing the look of horrified amazement upon the patrician features of the Earl of Hawcastle.

Then, with an awakened resentment, the fighting blood of the sturdy plebeian Simpson stock, the stock that had upheld its end in the battle against oppression in several wars, came back to her with a rush, and she decided to see this awful man and give him to understand that he must go away at once and never insult her again by his uncouth and vulgar presence. Such business as had to be transacted could be done through an intermediary.

With a bracing of her spirit she stepped forward resolutely and came up close behind Pike as he stood with drooping jaw gazing in perplexity after the retreating Horace. Ethel cast a look of loathing upon the straight back of the guardian of her peace and ground her little boot heel into the stone flagging. She glanced up and saw that the common German was looking at Pike with grave sympathy and even understanding, and instantly she hated him for it. Then she saw him take his cap from the obsequious Mariano and turn away. When he had gone she said in a low voice:

"I am Miss Granger-Simpson."

Watch the kidney secretions.

The discharges not excessive or infrequent;

Contain no "brick-dust like" sediment.

Doan's Kidney Pills will do this for you.

They watch the kidneys and cure htme when they're sick.

Mrs. M. Snedeher, 244 East Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I have had no occasion to use Doan's Kidney Pills for nearly three years, but I have not forgotten what this remedy did for me in 1905. At that time I was suffering from an attack of kidney complaint. The pains in my back were terrible and were accompanied by a disordered condition of the kidney secretions. I had dizzy spells, was subject to chills and felt weak and depressed in fact, had about every symptom of this dreadful disease. When Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my notice, I procured a supply at Randolph's Pharmacy and had only used two boxes when I was cured. During the time which has elapsed, I have never had a return of kidney trouble and I cheerfully give Doan's Kidney Pills my re-indorsement."

CHAPTER X.

THE HUMILIATION.

INSTANTLY Pike turned with a lithe twist of his lank body and half lifted his hand as if he expected a blow. Then his arm dropped again, and he stood looking at her in calm and interested fashion. As he stared his expression changed to one of mingled tenderness and pride, and when he spoke there was a world of pathos in his voice.

"Why," he said in a low, astonished tone—"why, I knew your pa from the time I was a little boy till he died, and I looked up to him more'n I ever looked up to anybody in my life, but I never thought he'd have a girl like you. He'd be mighty proud if he could see you now."

She turned from him in a smothered rage and then faced him again with cold disapproval in her tone.

"Perhaps it will be as well if we avoid personal allusions," she said resentfully. This man should have no opportunity for bringing up those vulgar, half forgotten family reminiscences if she could help it. He smiled a trifle wanly.

"I don't just see how that's possible," he answered, and she waved her hand indignantly.

"Will you please sit down?" she said, and Pike made an awkward bow.

"Yes, ma'am," he replied meekly, with the faintest accent on the last word, and obediently took the chair that Horace had vacated so precipitously. She shuddered at the word he had used and glanced nervously at the hat he was holding in his hands.

"Are—are you really my guardian?" she asked at last, with a trace of heat-

"We could have been spared this—this mortification."

ed unbelief in her tones. Pike smiled at her.

"Well," he said, "I've got the papers in my grip. I expect that"—

"Oh, I know it!" she interrupted explosively. "It's only that we didn't fancy—we didn't expect"—

She paused, and he went on:

"I expect you thought I'd be considerably older."

"Not only that."

Baseball and General Sports

BASEBALL.

Jack Martin, who plays short-stop for "Dave" Driscoll's New Brunswick team, is likely to fill that position for the team on Sunday. He has made a hit with the New Brunswick fans.

Jim Vaughn, the big left hander who was with the Highlanders last season and now with Macon, was knocked out of the box one day recently and came back the next day and pitched a no hit game against his assailants of the day before.

The fact has just been chronicled for the thousandth time that the squeeze looks foolish when it fails to work. So does the hit and run when it ends up in a double play. Nothing ventured, nothing had.

GOLF.

Eighty-three entries, including thirteen amateurs and seventy professionals, have been received for the annual open championship tournament of the United States Golf Association, to be held at Englewood tomorrow and Friday of this week. The entries, pairings and times of starting were given out at the office of Robert C. Watson, secretary of the association, Monday.

Prominent among the professionals who have sent in their names are Alec Smith, of Wykagyl, recent winner of the Eastern Professional Golfers' Association title; Willie Anderson, of St. Louis, a four-time national champion, and present Western title holder; Fred McLeod, of Midlothian, present open champion; Tom Varden, of Deal, England, and Isaac Mackie, of Fox Hills, who played such a brilliant match against Alex Smith last week.

There is also plenty of class among the amateurs, as Jerome D. Travers, of Montclair, the national champion; Walter J. Travis, of Garden City, recent winner of the Metropolitan championship; Fred Herreshoff, of Westbrook, and Findlay S. Douglas, of Nassau, have all entered. The most prominent professional absentees are Willie Smith, of Mexico City, who played McLeod to a tie at Myopia a year ago, and Stewart Gardner, of Exmoor.

Extra effort has been made this time to have good combinations so far as the pairings go. Undoubtedly Alex Smith and Vraden, who have been bracketed together, will carry a large gallery. They will tee up at 10:46 o'clock for the first day's round on Thursday. Travis and Will Anderson, who are scheduled to start at 10:20 o'clock, will be another popular pair, and so will Findlay S. Douglas and Isaac Mackie. Travers and Robert M. Thomson, the Knollwood "pro," will be the fifth couple away, their time being set for 9:16 o'clock. The far driving Gil Nichols, of Wilmington and Jack Cook, of Kent Country, will start first at 9 'clock.

Hunt Club vs. P. C. C.

The baseball team of the Watchung Hunt Club has arranged to play a game Saturday afternoon with a nine from the Plainfield County Club on the hunt club grounds. The contest will be called at 3 o'clock and judging from the lineup there will be a bushel of fun for all who care to witness it. Morris J. Dumont is captain and catcher of the hunt club aggregation and he announced last night that the country club nine would be given a severe drubbing, one that it will always have occasion to remember. Both clubs will announce the complete lineups tomorrow.

Thornton Gets Off Easy.

Samuel Thornton, of this city, who was indicted on a charge of keeping a disorderly house in this city, was arraigned before Judge Atwater in the Union County Court this morning. Upon the plea of Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., Judge Atwater let the prisoner off with a light sentence, imposing a fine of $50 and placing Thornton in charge of the probation officer for two years. Mr. Hetfield explained that the charge against Thornton was not of a serious character and that his wife is now dying from consumption.

Grammar School Exercises.

The Plainfield Grammar schools' exercises were held this afternoon. A complete account of the exercises will be found in tomorrow's issue of The Daily Press.

Drunken Italian Fined.

Bongio Guiseppe, an Italian who lives on East Fourth street, was arrested on on Front street last night by Patrolman Dunlap, who found him in the throes of a scrappy jag late last night. Bongio was mild enough at court today, but didn't deny that he had tried to "beat up" the officer. Judge Runyon called it five dollars.

—Peaches, apricots and Rockyford muskmelons are among the many good things to be found at Neuman Brothers.

CITY FATHERS DECIDE TONIGHT ON CUT-OFFS

A special meeting of the Common Council will be held tonight chiefly for the purpose of granting a hearing on the proposed ordinance compelling the Public Service Corporation to install gas "cut-offs" through out the city. It is expected that the company's representatives will be present to enter a vigorous protest against the adoption of the ordinance as drafted. If adopted it will mean that other municipalities will seek to compell the company to do the same thing and, it is argued, would make the improvement an expenseive one.

The present ordinance was drafted and introduced at the suggestion of Chief T. O. Doane, who urges its adoption on the ground that it will lessen the danger in case of fire. The mater was taken up by Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh, and he prepared the ordinance, which will be offered for adoption tonight.

Another ordinance to be offered for adoption tnight will be that regulating the display of fireworks, it being proposed to prohibit the discharge of firearms, etc., on the public streets. This will not interfere with celebrations on one's own property or a vacant lot. Last year the police encountered several persons going about the streets of the city discharging firearms and using ball cartridges. Several narrow escapes from serious injury were reported.

MORE MONEY NEEDED FOR "CHARTER DAY"

Chairman Eugene M. Laing, chairman of the finance committee and general manager of the demonstration, makes an appeal today for more contributions for the Charter Day Celebration. As is well known, the published lists show that many prominent Plainfielders are conspicuous for their absence so far as making any donation is concerned. In fact, hundreds, who can well afoard to make a subscription have not contributed one penny. In many instances this is no doubt due to an oversight or to the false impression that a sufficient fund had already been raised. No matter how small it may be, any contribution will be gladly welcomed and the name of the contributor will be published in these columns.

Arrangements have been made by Chairman Milne for six events in the hill climbing automobile contests. These are classified according to the purchase price of the car. The sixth and last event is a free for all. Gold, silver and bronze medals are offered in each of the classes and the entry list is open to individual owners, selling agents and manufacturers.

Borough school pupils are the best artists entered in the Charter Day poster contest, for those who won the prizes and secured honorable mention for posters submitted are all enrolled in the North Plainfield schools. Miss Lavina Hand, of Fairview avenue, has been awarded the first prize, five dollars in gold for her poster, which is now on exhibition at A. E. Force's department store.

Because the poster designs submitted by Miss Edna Stout, of Westervelt avenue, and Miss Rose Andrews, of Grove street, were a nearly equal merit, in the opinion of the judges, a third prize was awarded, and each of the girls will receive a money prize. Honorable mention was merited by the posters submitted by William Giese, of Westervelt avenue, and Miss Marjorie Cooley, of Westervelt avenue, while the lettering on the poster submitted by Miss Edith Bechtel deserves especial mention. There were thirty-five contestants for the prizes and the judges were Harry C. Runyon, Dr. R. S. Stevens, and John H. Doane. The posters will be used in connection with advertising for the Charter Day athletic carnival, to be held the afternoon of Monday, July 5.

Knights of Columbus Initiation.

Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, conferred the first degree on three members in its rooms last evening. Despite the exceedingly warm weather a large number of the members were present. Arrangements have been completed for the K. of C. Charter Day float which promises to be one worthy of its name. The winners of the scholarships in Drake Business College and Mount St. Mary's College will be announced at the next regular meeting to be held Tuesday night, July 6.

Arranging for a Float.

For the purpose of completing arrangements for the float in the Charter Day parade, July 5, and also for the twenty-fifth anniversary exercises of the Union County Union, the local W. C. T. U. will hold a business meeting tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Will Lecture on Italy.

Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph will deliver an illustrated lecture at the Y. M. C. A. Hall, Friday night on "Italy," showing a number of photographs taken by him while abroad recently. The public is invited.

MISS ADA DECKER WEDS

Mrs. W. S. Decker's Daughter Marries Arthur Fritts at Bride's Home.

REV. MR. KEMBLE OFFICIATES.

Miss Annie McCloskey Maid of Honor—John Fritts Best Man—Reception Follows.

Miss Ada Frances Decker, daughter of Mrs. Luella Petit Decker and the late W. S. Decker, and Arthur Fritts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Fritts, of this city, were married at 8 o'clock, last night, at the home of the bride's mother, 823 West Third street. Rev. Charles S. Kemble, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, performed the ceremony. There was a large gathering of relatives and friends from Staten Island, New York, Newark, Elizabeth, Rahway and this city.

The bride was gowned in white silk, trimmed with fringe with guimpe of embroidered fillet net. She wore a veil and carried a sheaf bouquet of roses. She was attended by Miss Annie McCloskey, of this city, as maid-of-honor, who wore a gown of pale blue silk, empire, and carried a sheaf of pink roses. The best man was John Fritts, brother of the groom. Chester Decker, brother of the bride, gave the latter in marriage.

Preceding the ceremony, William Anderson, an intimate friend of the couple, sang "O Promise Me." The bridal chorus from Lohengrin was played as the bridal party entered the parlor, and the Wedding March from Mendelssohn after the ceremony by Mrs. Frank Ernst, of Mariners Harbor, S. I. Mr. Kemble used the Episcopal service, the couple being married with a ring.

Congratulations were showered upon the couple during the reception and refreshments were served. A feature of the reception was a soprano solo by Mrs. James Gilbert. The bride received a large collection of handsome and costly gifts, including one of much value from her former employer, Councilman W. W. Wilson. The collection also comprised cut-glass, solid silver, furniture, etc.

The couple left Plainfield on the 9:20 train for Trenton, where fellow-employes of the groom in a large automobile concern, gave a reception to Mr. and Mrs. Fritts at one of the hotels in Trenton. In a few days they will leave in an automobile for a wedding trip through South Jersey, stopping at Atlantic City. The bride's going away gown was of grey Shantung, with gray hat and plumes. CITY FATHERS' SESSION

Public Hearing on Gas Stop Cocks Develops Little Opposition.

THE FIRE WORKS ORDINANCE.

Sane Fourth of July Measure Passes on Third Reading—Other Matters.

The public hearing granted by the Common Council, last night, on the proposed ordinance compelnig the installation of gas "cut-offs" was a tame affair, contrary to expectations. It was believed that the representatives of the Public Service Corporation would make a vigorous fight against the adoption of the ordinance.

L. D. H. Gilmour, assistant counsel for the company was present and he simply requested the Council to amend the ordinance so as to provide that "cut-offs" be installed on gas pipes of 1½ inch and over, instead of 1¼ inch pipe. He explained that the company is not putting in pipe of the latter size, but is installing "cut-offs" on all pipe of 1½ inch and over.

This suggestion seemed to meet with the approval of the Council and at the next regular meeting the ordinance will doubtless be amended and adopted. By this proposed action the company will be relieved of the duty of installing "cut-offs" all over the city, wherever an 1¼ inch pipe is run into a dwelling.

The ordinance providing for the regulating of the discharge of firearms, fireworks, etc., and prohibiting such display on the public streets, was called up by Mr. Holt and dopted on third and final reading, and ordered engrossed and advertised. This will become effective before July 4.

R. A. Meeker, S. P. T. Wilbur and H. B. MacDonald, sewer commissioners, appointed to assess benefits and damages in connection with work done during the past two years, asked for an extension of time to make a final report. A resolution offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted, extended the time to August 16, 1909. The total estimated cost for this sewer work has been determined to be $74,083.24, and the commissioners are required to assess the cost of same equitably upon the affected property-owners.

CLASS DAY EXERCISES

North Plainfield High School Seniors Have a Merry Time.

AN AMUSING PROGRAM GIVEN.

The Graduates Entertain Their Friends at the Young Men's Christian Association Auditorium.

The class day exercises of the senior class of the North Plainfield High School were held last night in the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A. before an audience which completely filled the hall. The intense heat had no apparent effect upon the graduating class and the program was rendered with vigor, each number being freely applauded.

The class presented a rather sombre appearance in their black gowns and mortar boards but quickly dispelled that dismal feeling when they got fairly started on the class song, "Why We Have Become Seniors." An address of welcome which followed the song, delivered by President George M. Parsons, put every body at ease and prepared them for the reading of the class history by Miss Elvira D. Hoester.

The reading of the class will caused no end of merriment and when Miss La Porte finished the applause was loud and long. The reading of Statistics (voted upon by committee) read by Miss Fowler, and Statistician, Miss Mager, and the presentation of gifts to the various popular members of the class (they all received something) was followed by a song, "The Ancient High School Saying." The prophecies read by Misses Richter and Day foretold many dire things particularly a war of the nations to occur in 1957 in which Mr. Powlison is to take a prominent part as leader of the American forces.

Miss Daly read the class poem and did not fail to include the other members of the class in her arrangement of ditties. President Parsons presented the gift to the school, a framed engraving of Abraham Lincoln, through Headmaster Phelps, who responded with a few well chosen remarks in which he declared that Lincoln's three great attributes were (1) love for his country, (2) love for his fellow-men and (3) the power to overcome obstacles, and he hoped the class would remember them all and endeavor to emulate him.

The advice to undergraduates by Mr. Powlison was delivered at short range but not short enough for those who were affected to get back at him. However there is time enough for that later.

The farewell song, words by Miss Day, and music composed especially for it by Herbert Loyd, was well sung and with the class yell concluded the program.

Following are the names of the nineteen graduates: Misses Ela C. Brose, Ruth A. Day, Anna V. Daly, Florence F. Fowler, Gascoine W. Hartley, Frances M. La Porte, Gertrude E. Mair, Hazel D. Rose, Ernestine Richter, Rae. E. Vorhees, Florence Wyckoff and Marion E. Mager; Messrs. C. W. T. Overton, William Leslie Powlison, besides these officers, President George M. Parsons, Vice-President Elvira D. Hoester, Secretary Melvin Le Roy Vanderbeek, Treasurer Marguerite Lee and Assistant Treasurer Jennie O. Nelson. The class originally consisted of thirty members.

MISS QUEENA M. FORCE BRIDE OF W. B. MUNDY.

Miss Quenna M. Force, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. J. Force, of Lyman place, and William B. Mundy, son of James F. Mundy, of Duer street, were married at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of Hope chapel, at his home on West Fifth street. The only attendant was Miss Myrtle Darling, a cousin of the groom.

Immediately after the ceremony the couple left on a wedding trip up the Hudson River, and before they return will visit Niagara Falls. The groom is the grandson of the late W. V. Mundy and succeeded to the latter's business, that of insurance. The bride is a member of Hope chapel. The couple has a large circle of friends. Upon their return they will reside on Duer street for the present.

BOW-WOWS ROUNDED UP

In Police Court, Their Owners Will Be Fined if They Don't Get Licenses.

FUNNY EXCUSES WERE GIVEN.

Judge Runyon Suspends Five Dollar Fines for Offenders to Get Licenses Before Saturday.

If Councilman Frank L. Holt, who proposed the present dog ordinance, had been at the city court this morning, he would have seen twenty-five canine owners whom the police have found negligent in the matter of securing the required license, lined up before City Judge William N. Runyon and warned that if a license was not secured in each and every case, each owner would be required to pay a fine of five dollars. The round-up represented the first batch of delinquent dog owners, and were all residents of the West End, just south of the railroad. Fourteen of them were colored people, one a West Indian, and the remainder "white folks." The list of licenses issued for this district were turned over to Chief Kiely yesterday and distributed among the various patrolman, each of whom canvassed his "beat" for delinquents.

There were all sorts of excuses. The folks couldn't understand just how, when they didn't want the dog in question, they should have to pay for a license. Judge Runyon said that in each case there had been a violation—it was a "past performance." Rather than impose a penalty for the violation, however, he ruled that the punishment be the cost of a license. The police have the "numbers" of all who were arraigned this morning, and if the licenses are not bought by Saturday, a fine of five dollars will be imposed by the court.

When the big batch of subpoenaed "dog harborers" faced the Judge, there was a roll-call, after which it was said that all who would immediately get licenses were free to go directly to the City Clerk's office and secure them. If there were "mitigating circumstances," the Judge said he was ready to hear them.

"I've got a good excuse, Your Honor," spoke up "Fat" Layton, a colored man, "because my little dog left me about three months ago, along with my wife and children and a lot of furniture. I ain't got a dog now,—nor a wife, either."

"I don't believe I want my dog any more, Judge," said another, "he isn't any good."

"I'm only keeping the dog I've got for another fellow," was the excuse of the third, "he went away for the summer."

"I sold my dog a long time ago, Judge," said another, "but he came back. No, I didn't tell him to go away again, but I really don't want him."

"I was over to get a license," spoke up still another, "but I was told that there weren't any more."

"I've only got my dog on trial," was another's excuse. "A farmer over the mountain wants me to buy him, and he brought him around to see if I'd like him. I don't like him."

Judge Runyon heard these and other similar reasons for not taking licenses, and then gave his ruling of a license fee as a fine. At that there were numerous requets for time, and the hard-luck stories about "slow-walking ghosts." Finally Saturday was decided upon as the last day before the five-dollar fine "string" went into effect, and the dog-haters filed out.

These were those subpoenaed. Frank Daily, William Phillips, Kahman Rottberg, Mrs. Michael Walsh, Joseph Johsip, Mrs. William Goetter, Mrs. Maden, William Kline, Alexander Trent, William Henry, Thomas Wells, Mrs. W. Lutten, Charles Carr, S. Rosenthal, B. Butinsky, B. PRINCIPAL GETS GIFTS

Mr. Travell, Who Goes to Morristown, Receives Many Tokens of Esteem.

TEACHERS REMEMBER HIM.

So Do Faculty and Pupils—Miss Lena Bass Praises Retiring Urincipal.

Gifts from the faculty, from the students and from the class of 1908 of the City High School were presented to Principal Ira Travell at the final assembly exercises of the school year, this morning. A gold signet ring was the gift from the faculty. It was presented by Miss S. Lena Bass, who said:

"Only we who have labored side by side with you can realize what it will mean to no longer have your kindly advice, your loyal sympathy in our perplexities, and your encouragement in our success. Our heartiest good wishes go with you in your new field of work and you may rest assured that you will always have a large share in our thoughts and affections. We hope that you will wear this ring and that it will be a continual reminder to you of our loyalty and devotion."

Immediately after this a party of senior boys brought forth from a store room a handsome mission library table, morris chair and waste basket, all of which were presented on behalf of the student body by Walter Knowlton, president of the senior class. Mr. Travell responded to the presentation speeches in a few well chosen words in which he reiterated the pleasure that he had had in his work here, because of the hearty co-operation and sympathy of the student body and teachers. Just as the exercises came to a close he perceived a large bunch of red and white carnations, the gift of the class of 1908. This was not formally presented but a small card went with it on which was written a message of appreciation and regret from the class of 1908 by Miss Sara Sanderson, the vice-president.

Following this, President Edward Stevenson, of the Yale Club, presented Allen Snyder with a large silver loving cup, the award to the P. H. S. boy who had shown in his course the best record in scholarship and athletics. The exercises were concluded by the presentation of ribbons to the winners in the annual field meet, and by the singing of the school song.

Trying to Elect a President.

At a regular meeting of the Young Men's Hebrew Association, last night, it was shown that Samuel Rothberg, who has been occupying the office of president, was not elected in accordance with parliamentary procedure. Steps were accordingly taken and the election was declared void. A new election was held with Samuel Rothberg and Charles Greenwald as candidates for president. Several ballots were taken, each one resulting in a tie. It was finally decided to postpone the election till Tuesday night, when it is hoped a president will be chosen.

102 RECEIVE DIPLOMAS

Grammar Schools' Graduates Addressed by Rev. Dr. Anderson.

THE YALE CUP IS AWARDED.

Interesting Exercises at High School Auditorium—Dr. H. M. Maxson Speaks.

More than five hundred attended the commencement exercises of the city grammar schools, held at the Plainfield High School auditorium yesterday afternoon, when the graduates, 102 in number, received their diplomas from President Leander N. Lovell, of the Board of Education. Because of the extreme heat, the exercises were short, the brief address of Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church, being followed by remarks to the graduates by Superintendent Henry M. Maxson of the city schools.

In the course of his remarks, which were of an informal nature, Dr. Anderson said that the two great systems most admired in society today are the public school system and the universal church of Jesus Christ. He added that the two go hand in hand, and are the sources of all the benefits and advantages that come to young and old. The part of his address was on the topic "What the school may do for us," and he spoke of the opportunities for character development in the daily school life. "The school life," said the speaker, "teaches us to form the proper kind of habits. If we can form good habits, we are fortunate, for a person must form habits, and if we do not form good habits, we will form bad habits." The address concluded with the citation of various Bible passages which the speaker said would form a guide to right living.

Dr. Maxson's talk, which followed, was on patroitism. "It is just as noble to live for one's country as it used to be considered to die for one's country. Few men are privileged to die for our country, but it is within the range of all of us to live for our own country. We must all live right, for the best interests of our community and our country. To live right does not mean only not to do wrong, but to live positively. We need boys and girls and men and women who shall do right things strongly and efficiently. To live this kind of a life we must train our judgment. To be the best sort of patriots, we must have good judgment of right and wrong, the power to think quickly, and discernment. In other words, we must have education. Thus you see that by going to school, you are performing a patriotic duty, and increasing your efficiency to this land of ours. The boy or girl who neglects this opportunity is little better than a traitor to the United States."

Three of the graduates gave recitations in connection with the graduation exercises. These were Miss Mary Gwendolyn Stanton, Miss Maude Pearl McAfee and Stanley Williams Burke. Their reciting won merited applause. The musical program included choruses by the class, which was seated in tiered seats on the platform, and two soprano solos by Mrs. Guy Bender. The invocation was by Rev. Charles L. Goodrich. The ushers were F. Clyde Doane, G. Stanley Robbins, Charles Prior, Jr., and Guion H. Fountain.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Mrs. Edward Mauer and her son, Edward, Jr., had an encounter with a herd of cows while on the way home from Perth Amboy in an automobile on Tuesday. There were several docile animals in the herd, but there was one which disputed the right of way with the machine and the result was a collision in which the cow was knocked over and the machine damaged to the extent of a twisted guard and a broken lamp.

The Best Kind Of Life Insurance is health insurance. The best way to insure the health of your family when any member gets in a "run-down" condition, is to use a tonic that removes the cause of the ill-health. Such a tonic is

DR. D. JAYNE'S TONIC VERMIFUGE

A "run down" condition is generally due to the failure of the digestive organs to properly digest the food. Dr. D. Jayne's Vermifuge tones up the digestive organs so that they supply the body with proper nourishment, and in this way bring about lasting health. Ordinary tonics simply supply food material in predigested form, and consequently are only effective as long as the tonic is taken.

Sold by all Druggists—two sizes, 50c and 35c.

Dr. D. Jayne's Expectorant has been relieving and curing Coughs, Colds, and similar ailments for nearly four generations.

GOLF.

Mixed foursomes in which women had professionals for partners furnished a novelty on the Englewood Golf Club links Tuesday. Miss Julia R. Mix, the metropolitan champion, and Jack Hobens, both of the home club, won from scratch with an aggregate total of 162. Miss Mix got round in 90 and the M. G. A. open titleholder in 72.

In accordance with the conditions, the "pros" making the two lowest gross scores received money prizes, while the women members of the leading teams were also rewarded. Second place went to Mrs. F. P. Duryea of the home club, who had Will Anderson, of St. Louis, the Western open champion, for a partner. Their net total was 164. Hobens, George Low and Alec Campbell tied at 72 for low scores among the professionals.

Nearly all the entrants for the national open championship which will begin at Englewood today practiced over the course. Isaac Mackie, of Fox Hills, and Tom McNamara, the Boston homebred, got round in 71. In a four ball match Will and young Tom Anderson defeated Fred McLeod, the national open champion, and Gil Nichols, of Wilmington, by 3 up and 1 to play. Young Tom did most of the work, running down puts from all sorts of distances. He had a 72. McLeod got 73 and Will Anderson 75, but the Andersons worked in a great best ball of 65.

H. H. Barker and Herbert Strong managed to finish 1 up on Alec Smith and George Low, all hands going round at about a 75 clip.

SUPERINTENDENT'S PRAISE FOR PRINCIPAL TRAVELL

Appreciation of Principal Travell's service in the Plainfield schools was the keynote of Supterintendent Maxson's annual address to the graduating class of the city high school this morning. He said:

"Sixteen years ago I brought to the P. H. S. a young man full of energy and promise. I have watched him grow from year to year with satisfaction and pleasure, just as I noted you boys and girls grow. I have seen him grow in breadth of outlook, in depth of sympathy, in warmth of devotion to the interests of my boys and girls. I have seen him grow in power to read the individual pupil with his helpful strengthening influence and no one knows as I do how many pupils have got individual help and encouragement, not only in their studies but in other interests of life. I have seen this school grow into the whole some, strong, happy family that it is. I have seen the man grow into the best high school principal that I know.

"As we have worked side by side our lives have grown together; he has helped me, I have tried to help him, our lives have become one in our efforts to serve you.

"I cannot tell you what it means to me to have him go to another field to work. It leaves me bereft indeed, but even while I feel the smart of the personal loss, for the love I bear him I can only rejoice in his broadened horizon. He has power to fill a larger sphere than the one he has filled so well in Plainfield. I rejoice that a larger sphere is open to him where he will grow to still greater usefulness.

"In European countries, when the sceptre falls from the head of the reigning monarch the people cry 'the King is dead, long live the king.'

If Mr. Travell must give up the sceptre it is a special pleasure to me to have right here with us a man so well fitted to take it up, a man who has already made his own place in our confidence and affection. I am sure we have filled the place in the best way we can, and that under the new captain the ship will sail on happily and successfully as heretofore.

In Greece, there never was but one Lent; but the Egyptians had Osiris; the Romans had Jupiter and our Saxon forefathers had Odin. It may be that in the years to come we shall learn to swear by a new name with all the confidence and affection that we now swear by Zeus. I am sure that Mr. Travell will have it so and it is best for us."

WON'T REINSTATE FIREMEN.

Long Branch, June 23.—An unsuccessful attempt was made Monday night to resuscitate in the local department the Atlantic Fire Engine Company No. 2, which was suspended several weeks ago for insubordination. A petition, signed by 100 business men, was read at the meeting of the council. It asked that the hose that was removed from the Atlantic firehouse be replaced. Councilman D. H. Hines offered a resolution reinstating the company. This was lost by a vote of 7 to 5. The resolution to replace the hose in the Atlantic firehouse was also defeated.

The Atlantic Fire Company made a formal reply to the special committee from the City Council which a week ago advised the company to return the hose wagon that it had removed. The company, in its reply made no reference to the hose wagon, but said that it had been wrongfully treated, as none of the charges preferred against it had been proven. It also said that the fire company was made up of good citizens and efficient fire fighters and challenged the City Council to produce proof of its charges that the company had members who were guilty of arson and of turning in false alarms.

Proctor's Playhouse is Popular.

The popularity of Proctor's pleasure playhouse was fully shown last night, when a large audience enjoyed the fine bill. The excessive warm weather did not affect the patrons in the least, for the numerous electric fans, in addition to the many natural means of ventilation made the large auditorium cool and comfortable. Tomorrow and Saturday the best attractions ever will be offered in "Living Pictures," in bronze and marble.

GOVERNOR GETS DEGREE

LL. D. for Fort at 143d Commencement of Rutgers College.

HE SPEAKS AT A BANQUET.

"The College Man Is the Man of the Hour," Says New Jersey's Executive.

Forty-six young men were graduated last night from Rutgers College at New Brunswick at the 143d commencement, held in Ballantine Gymnasium. Governor J. Franklin Fort attended the exercises, and the degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon him. There was a great throng at the exercises. The following were the speakers:

"Industrial Reform," Arthur Douglas Pringle, third scientific honor of Albany, N. Y.; "A Level in College Activities," Herman Vanderwart, Jr., of Hackensack; "Lincoln's Self-development," Carl H. Greenwald, Moorestown, second scientific honor; "The Inconsistency of Right," Samuel A. Devan, of Highland Park, first classical honor; "The Lincoln, Douglas Joint Debate," Luman J. Shafer, Schenectady, N. Y., third classical honor; "The Growth of the United States as a World Power," Samuel A. Devan, Highland Park, rhetorical honor; "The Goal of Our Public Schools," Archibald Taylor, Somerville, second classical honor; "College Education and Success," Maurice J. O'Leary, Brooklyn; "The Healing of the Branch," Allen D. Cloke, Rahway, first scientific honor.

President W. H. S. Demarest announced that the college trustees had conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws upon Governor Fort, in recognition of his ability and success in the law, his service as a justice of the Supreme Court of New Jersey, and his attainment to the office of Chief Eexecutive of the State.

He announced also that the trustees had conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws in absentia upon George William Hill, of New York, on his fiftieth anniversary of his graduation.

The other honorary degrees conferred were: Electrical engineer, Charles E. Pattison, New York, '84; master of arts, Dr. William Carr, New York; the Rev. Charles W. Burroughs, Kinderhook, N. Y.; doctor of divinity, the Rev. James L. Kittell, of Albany, N. Y.; the Rev. George L. Curtis, Bloomfield.

Governor Fort received a great reception at the banquet of the Rutgers College Alumni Association yesterday afternoon, where he was one of the speakers. He followed President W. H. S. Demarest, who had referred to the need of a chemical building and had hinted that the State of New Jersey might build it for the college.

The Governor said in opening that if it were possible for him to vote on the question of the State supplying such a building he would vote affirmatively. "The State of New Jersey owes very much to Rutgers College," he continued. "The history of this State could be written from the memoirs of the men who have gone from this college to take their places in the administration of the affairs of the State. The list of famous men who have gone from Rutgers is a long and wide one. The names we can remember have brought honor not only to the State and college, but to the entire nation.

"The college man is the man of the hour. A man without the advantages of a college education may do much, but the college man tends to make for better government and civic righteousness. If you go on without doing something for the betterment of conditions you have not done your duty. If you do not help to further the cause of better government and better conditions you help defeat the purpose of this republic. The man who does not do all in his power for the betterment of conditions is just as guilty by nonaction as the man who by wrong actions helps to defeat improvements. Failure to do anything is dangerous."

PRINCIPALS HOLD.

Terms Do Not Expire June 30 if Contracts Go Beyond.

In response to a letter from State Superintendent of Public Instruction Charles J. Baxter as to whether the terms of all supervising principals now in office shall end on June 30, in accordance with the provisions of Senate Bill No. 334, which was enacted into law by the last Legislature, Assistant Attorney-General Nelson B. Gaskell yesterday forwarded to him an opinion.

The assistant attorney-general holds that the law is clearly unconstitutional insofar as it effects supervising pirincipals who had a contract for a term not yet expired.

SAYS RAILROADS ARE HAMPERED BY BAD LAWS.

Atlantic City, June 23.—R. F. McKenna, president, in an address to the Master Car Builders' Association, which opened its forty-third national convention here Monday, declared that railroads were hampered by unfair laws passed by legislators who craved favor in the eyes of people who knew nothing of conditions.

From a business viewpoint, said Mr. McKenna, we could meet under circumstances more pleasing. But conditions are improving, and we can assume that better times are ahead. Rigid economy by railroad companies has prevailed in the last year. To a great extent this has been compelled by legislation that caused investors to hesitate in accepting securities offered. Railroad mechanical departments have suffered thereby more than in any period since 1894. At no time in the history of railroading has the management and owners of railroads been subjected to such adverse criticism from those who have no intimate knowledge of that about which they are talking.

With an ill-advised desire to gain popularity, certain men in public life have constituted themselves guardians of the public welfare. They have injured commercial life and the railroad companies.

Until legislative bodies repeal disastrous federal and State laws that they have enacted the public at large, which includes railroad owners, managers, employes and patrons of transportation companies, will continue to be more or less affected. The railroads, in their zeal to economize, to protect themselves and to preserve the interests of all concerned, are husbanding their resources until conditions again become normal. Conditions suggest that there is to be a respite from unfair legislation, and, incidentally, unfair criticism. The railroads, however, have been remarkably successful in surviving the efforts to suppress them.

If the words of the president are heeded the Master Car Builders will refuse to amalgamate with the Railroad Master Mechanics' Association as was suggested last week by President Vaughan, of the later organization.

CALLS RAILROAD MEN CALLOUS TO FATALITY.

Wharton, June 23.—At Monday night's regular monthly meeting of the Borough Council, Councilman Hopler, who is himself a railroad employe, crtitted sharply what he termed the callousness of officials of the Central Railroad.

A Hungarian laborer was struck by a train and mortally injured on the Central's right of way in the borough a week or ten days ago, and the company's officials notified its agent, Mr. Hopler said, to turn the man over to the borough authorities. According to Hopler their only concern was to get the injured man off their right of way. Marshal McDonald took the victim of the accident to a hospital in Morristown, and when he died there the hospital authorities asked Mayor Oram, of this borough, over the telephone, what disposition was to be made of the body. Mayor Oram gave instructions to bury the man at as little expense as possible, saying that if the railorad officials refused to pay the cost the borough would. Hopler added:

"Well, the railroad just wouldn't do anything, and I suppose we will have to pay. I consider it a small piece of business on the part of the company."

Mayor Oram explained that the railroad officials disclaimed all responsibility on the ground that the man was a trespasser, and for the further reason that he was drunk when the accident happened.

Mr. Hopler said in reply to this that he understood that the man was sober. He had a quart bottle of whiskey in his pocket which he was taking home as medicine. The bottle and contents were intact after the accident.

ALL WANT THIRTEENTH BABY.

Proud Parents Get Offers From All Over the United States.

That the Yates famililes scattered all over the United States take kindly to the thirteenth Baby Yates is evinced at Trenton, where Mr. and Mrs. Edward Yates, of 23 Titus avenue, that city, have been receiving leters from the Yateses offering to take the thirteenth baby girl if they will give her up.

This child was born on the thirteenth of the month, and she is the first girl in a family of thirteen children. The story was sent broadcast and the exchange editors have seen to it that the yarn has gone all over the United States.

Mr. and Mrs. Yates do not seem inclined to accept any offer for their thirteenth child, and the offers of homes for her are all politely declined. Among those offering to take the child as their own are John T. Yates and wife at Omaha, Neb., Mr. Yates offering $10,000 as a bonus for this lucky thirteenth, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Yates of Pittsfield, Ill., also ask for the youngster.

WIFE SCORED BY THE COURT.

Mrs. Von Bernuth Blamed for Turning Sons Against Their Father.

On the return of a writ of habeas corpus yesterday in the Court of Chancery, Newark, Mrs. Pauline Schultz von Bernuth, of Murray Hill, was compelled to listen to a severe arraignment by Vice-Chancellor Howell of the lack of affection and bitter dislike shown by her sons, Emile, 15 years, and Fritizi, 11, for their father, Frederick A. von Bernuth, who is living apart from his wife.

"I have seen the two boys privately," said Vice-Chancellor Howell, "and have talked with them. Neither is willing to go with his father, and it strikes me as being the most outrageous thing that has ever come to my notice since I have been on the bench."

Mr. von Bernuth, who alleged yesterday that he had not seen his sons in months, recently made application for leave to take the boys to the summer home of Dr. Julius C. Bierwirth at Bay Shore, L. I., for two or three days around July 4 and also for permission to have them spend the summer vacation at his parents' home in New Hampshire.

At a hearing on this application on June 15 the Vice-Chancellor directed the issuance of a writ of habets corpus requiring the production of the boys in court yesterday.

Vice-Chancellor Howell declared yesterday he believed that Mrs. von Bernuth had influenced her children against their father. Her suit for divorce has been in the New Jersey courts for some time.

AN ORDINANCE

To amend an Ordinance entitled "An Ordinance Concerning Fire Arms and Other Deadly Weapons," approved April 9, 1895.

Whereas, Experience has shown that the discharge of fire arms, fire crackers, rockets, bombs and other explosives known as fire works within the streets of the City of Plainfield is fraught with danger to persons and property; and, in the judgment of the Common Council, a proper regard for the peace, good government, order and well-being of the City requires that the practice referred to should be more strictly regulated. Now, therefore,

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1.—That Section 1 of the ordinance to which this is an amendment be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows: "Section 1. JERSEY CITY TUBE OPENS ON JULY 19

President McAdoo, of the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Company, announced yesterday that the downtown tunnels, extending from the Hudson Terminal buildings, at Church and Cortlandt street, New York, to the Pennsylvania Railroad station in Jersey City, will be opened for operation Monday afternoon, July 19, at 3:00 o'clock.

The official first train carrying the company's guests will leave the Hudson Terminal building some time in the morning of that day. Arriving at the Pennsylvania Railroad station, the party will become the guests of Jersey City and will participate in the exercises arranged by the Jersey City authorities.

The entire tunnel system from the Hudson Terminal buildings to the Pennsylvania, Erie and Lackawanna stations will be completed and ready for operation on July 19. but failure on the part of the car builders to deliver sufficient equipment makes it possible to operate on that day only that portion of the line from the Hudson Terminal buildings to the Pennsylvania Railroad station.

On Monday, August 2, two weeks after the opening, the service will be extended through the Pennsylvania and Erie Railroad stations to the Lackawanna Railroad station in Hoboken.

NEW JERSEY COUNCIL ST. PATRICK'S ALLIANCE.

Asbury Park, June 24.—Delegates from all sections of the State are expected to attend the thirty-third annual convention of the New Jersey Council, St. Patrick's Alliance of America, which will be held here next Monday. The council will convene in Winkler's hall, 715 and 717 Mattison avenue, at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Headquarters of the delegates will be at the Hotel St. James, where a meeting of the State board will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. It is expected that a number of the delegates and their families will go to Asbury Park Saturday, in order to spend the week end there.

Each district president of the Alliance has selected from the delegates of his district, who intend to be present at the convention, one member for each of the committees on rules, credentials and resolutions, and these have already met and prepared their reports to facilitate the work of the convention.

On and after Friday State Secretary Robert McConnell will be at the Hotel St. James to attend to all preliminary matters relative to the convention.

St. Patrick's Alliance consists of a national council, State councils, district councils and branches, and is a fraternal and beneficial order. It has been in existence nearly half a century.

SAY NOW CONGRESS WILL ADJOURN AUG. 1.

Washington, June 23.—In the present state of the tariff bill in the Senate little or no hope is entertained by the leaders of a completion this week of the schedules. If the Senate should complete the schedules by July 1 the Republican leaders will be satisfied.

Then will follow the consideration of the income tax and corporation tax and the administrative features, which will consume several days. The predictions now are that the final vote on the bill in the Senate would be taken between July 10 and 15, and the adjournment of Congress could hardly occur before August 1.

JUDGE ATWATER LETS GO THREE THIEVES

Sentence was suspended on Frank Miller, Frank Anderson and Joseph Dooling, the boys who pleaded guilty to looting the Union News Company's stand at Fanwood, when arraigned yesterday in the Court of Special Sessions. Judge Atwater at Elizabeth disposed of the case in this way because they are wanted in Hudson county on a charge of burglary. Officer Griffin, of that county, was in court waiting to take them back with him so that they might be sentenced on the more serious charge.

While sentence was suspended, the court made it plain that the boys could be brought back to this county and sentenced after the more serious case against them in Hudson county was disposed of.

Prosecutor Swift, who stated the facts in the case to the court said when the boys were first apprehended it was thought they belonged in the west, but that it was afterward learned that ther homes were in Bayonne and that they were wanted there for robbing a tailorshop.

The three boys were arrested at Elizabeth by Detective Rabig, of the Central Railroad, who afterward connected them, through loot which he found on them, with the robbery of the Fanwood station. The boys all gave facitious names.

RURAL MAIL ROUTE IN UNION COUNTY.

Postmaster Palmer H. Charlock, of Elizabeth, is working on a rural mail delivery system and expects to have it in working order shortly. The territory which the innovation is aimed to benefit is practically the entire rural district lying between Elizabeth and Springfield.

There will be one route twenty-two miles in length, which will be covered once daily with the exception of Sundays. Among the towns to receive the service will be Townley, Union, Lyons Farms and Saybrook. In these places the delivery will not interfere with the post-offices now established there, as they will be maintained as in the past, the object of the new departure being to bring mail to the doorstep of householders living in the country and make it unnecessary for them to travel miles for it, as is now the case in some instances.

PRISON FOR AN EMBEZZLER.

Edward B. Towne, Jr., Who Stole $30,000, Gets a Three-Year Sentence.

Edward B. Towne Jr., of East Orange, who pleaded guilty in Newark, N. J., on Tuesday to three charges of embezzlement, was sentenced yesterday to three years' imprisonment in State prison. The punishment was given on only one charge, sentence being suspended on the others.

Towne was cashier for the Mathewson Lead Company, of New York, and opened an account with the People's National Bank in East Orange. There he deposited large sums collected by him for the New York firm, and from this account about a year ago he began to draw money for his own expenses. The embezzlement continued to grow until it reached $30,000, when discovery came.

Seashore Real Estate.

BUNGALOW LIFE AT PORT-AU-PECK ON THE SHREWSBURY—Bungalow colonies, originally a California institution, are springing up all over the east. Many persons of means believe this to be the most healthful manner in which to spend a vacation. It takes them away from the irksome forms of conventionality and puts them in close touch with nature. It enables them to roam through the woods or sail over the sparkling waters, getting fresh air, sunlight and exercise, which has built many a rundown body up to the exacting requirements of our rushing twentieth century pace. The cooling breezes of the Atlantic meet and mingle with the ozone from the woods, forming an atmospheric combination which carries health and vigor through every pair of lungs inhaling it. These are the conditions at Port-au-Peck on the Shrewsbury. In addition you have fishing, hunting, sailing, canoeing, motor boating, golfing, tennis, bathing and all other forms of healthful, vigorous sports in this section, no matter in what direction you turn. The out-of-doors man or woman will find no more attractive place on this continent in which to spend two or three months or week ends in search of recreation and health. For indoor sports there is a large club-house available with bowling alleys and billiard rooms and is especially equipped to give those small affairs in case you should want to. Thirty bungalows now under construction, from $2,000 up, including the plot, 50x150 feet deep; driven artesian wells on each. Send for booklet. Yours for the asking. You are invited to visit Port-au-Peck as our guest. For further particulars see Charles Matt, Port-au-Peck Realty Co., 1328 Broadway, corner 34th street. Telephone 1266, Murray Hill, New York City, or Dr. George R. Boston, 1 Madison street, telephone 282-L, Plainfield, or J. T. S. Hunn, 1218 Prospect avenue, telephone 445-R, Plainfield. SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The Foresters of America will hold a reunion at Riverside on August 7.

Blood poisoning, developing from a slight cut in a finger, is menacing the life of Edward Welsh, of 614 Cedar street, Camden.

The graduates of the Paterson Normal and Training School observed their class day with a trip up the Hudson as far as West Point and return.

Six-year-old Agnes Peters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Peters, of Atlantic City, was scalded by tumbling into a washtub of boiling water.

The last chapter of the long bitter fight for the Millville city marshalship closed Tuesday evening, when Charles Biggs was reappointed by Mayor Smith and sworn in before a special session of the council.

A dozen licenses, including several for beach-front cafes and saloons, were held up by the City Council in Atlantic City, Monday night, after a long session, during which nearly two hundred lisenses were renewed.

Mrs. Ray H. Powell, wife of Benjamin Powell, a fireman on the Amboy division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, dropped dead at her home on Willow street, Bordentown, Tuesday. She was thirty-two years old.

Mrs. William Grove, of Clayton, had a slight wound on her hand which made her feel so uncomfortable that she went to Laurel Springs for a few days for her health. Blood poisoning set in and she died there Tuesday.

An auxiliary branch of the State Law and Order League has been organized at Glassboro with these officers: President, John Timberman; vice-president, Albert Repp; secretary, Harry Proud, and treasurer, Charles B. Repp.

The City Council of Gloucester Tuesday night repealed the ordinance under which the recent $100,000 bond issue was authorized, and at once placed upon first reading an ordinance reducing the issue to $75,000. The bonds are for public improvements.

Because of its delay in satisfying a claim for the care of smallpox victims, the borough of Haddonfield is to be sued by the city of Camden, the Board of Health of the latter place Tuesday instructing Solicitor Curley to begin action to recover $500, the expense incurred.

Another name was added Tuesday to the list of candidates for the Republican nomination for Clerk of Burlington County, when Harry L. Knight, of Medford, announced his candidacy. Other candidates are George N. Wimer, of Palmyra, and William H. Reeves, of New Lisbon.

Aroused from sleep by the barking of his dog, Frederick Haas, of Swedesboro, went to his barn at 3 o'clock Tuesday and found his horse down, with its leg under a beam. He was trying to extricate the animal when it threw its head against Mr. Haas' leg, breaking both bones below the knee. He was taken to a Philadelphia hospital.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning June 27, 1909.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Pocketbooks of missionaries.—II Cor. ix, 6-15.

Giving is an essential Christian grace. The man who does not consecrate his pocketbook to God when he consecrates himself has failed in full consecration and has room to doubt whether he is a Christian. Few if any duties have been more emphasized in the Scriptures than that of giving. The Old Testament gives it a most prominent place, and Malachi goes so far as to declare that the outpouring of spiritual blessings depends upon "the bringing of the tithes into the storehouse." Perhaps the reason why so many Christians do not enjoy to the fullest extent the blessings of their religion is because they are a little shy in opening their pocketbooks or when they open them are too particular in seeking the smallest coin within rather than the largest. We cannot buy salvation by gifts of the largest sums of money, yet at the same time a closed pocketbook is a fairly good sign that our Christianity is rather shallow. If it be genuine it must get down as deep as the pocketbook.

Giving to missions is one of the most important phases of giving. Giving to the support of our own local church, from which we ourselves derive the benefits and blessings, is very important, but giving to missions is even more so. Our great mission as Christians is to send the gospel throughout the world, and this can be done only through liberal giving. Railroads and ocean liners do not carry passengers free. Missionaries are human. They must live by eating and must be provided with clothing and the necessary requirements for the preaching of the gospel. Air castles cannot be used for churches and school buildings. They must be substantial, material structures. "The laborer is (also) worthy of his hire."

All these things demand money. Let us not be afraid to say it out loud—MONEY! Some Christians think that we should talk about money, especially for missions, in whispers. Sympathy and prayers are essential elements to missionary success, but if a man prays for missions and in eloquent words declares his sympathy for missions and then when the plate is passed around looks into his hymn book rather than his pocketbook he is simply a fraud. His prayers and speeches are "as sounding brass and tinkling cymbals."

Paul in the topical reference sets forth several characteristics of giving in general which may be applied to giving to missions. (1) The promise of God should inspire missionary giving. "He which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully." If you believe God do not be stingy when the missionary offering is taken. If we are then under the law, "He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly." (2) Giving to missions should be sincere. "As a man purposeth in his heart, so let him give." Giving for show is despicable; giving from the heart is most commendable. Heart giving should be cultivated. God wants no money that is given grudgingly or of necessity. (3) Giving to missions should be cheerful. "God loveth a cheerful giver." God's love is both an incentive and a reward for cheerful giving. God "loveth" a cheerful giver. This fact should encourage cheerful giving.

Endeavor Seed Sowing.

On a Sunday afternoon I spoke at the Y. M. C. A. tent on the common of Chelsea, Mass., to a very mixed audience.

After the service as I was walking toward the ferry I inquired the way of a man and so fell into conversation with him.

"I heard you this afternoon," he said. "What kind of a meeting was it—Christian Endeavor?"

"No, but I am an Endeavorer."

"Well," said he, "I met an Endeavorer at Coney Island that did me a mighty good turn."

"Tell me about it," said I. And then followed a story which I repeat because it may come to the attention of the particular Endeavorer who is spoken of and may encourage him to believe that seed sown by the wayside sometimes falls into good soil and bears fruit.

It seems that this man, who is a stone and brick mason in good business and who lives in one of the towns near Boston, left his family to go on a debauch. He took the steamer to New York, carrying in his pocket a quart bottle of rum. As a result he became very drunk, and he knew nothing till he awoke on Coney Island beach hungry and penniless.

Feeling sick and not knowing what to do, he wandered into a Christian Endeavor meeting, and at the conclusion of the services he asked the leader for 5 cents in order to buy a sausage with which to stay his hunger.

"Bring a man here with a basket of frankforters and eat one in my presence, and I will pay for it," was the reply.

This was done, and the help did not stop here. Our friend, the Endeavorer, talked with the man so earnestly about his folly and helped him on his way so kindly that he was able to return to his home a sober, thoughtful man, so sober that he has not touched a drop of intoxicants since.

"I attended mass this morning," said he, "and now I have come to your meeting, and you hit me all right.

"Do you know," said he, "that these little meetings scattered about in these places do a lot of good?"—Rev. Horace Dutton in Christian Endeavor World.

The Man From Home

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

"And I guess you thought I'd neglected you a good deal." There was a touch of remorse in his tone, and he looked idly at the hat he held. "And it did look like it—never coming to see you—but I couldn't hardly manage the time to get away. You see, being trustee of your share of the estate I don't hardly have a fair show at my law practice. But when I got your letter eleven days ago I says to myself: 'Here, Daniel Voorhees Pike, you old shellback, you've just got to take time. John Simpson trusted you with his property, and he's done more—he's trusted you to look out for her, and now she's come to a kind of jumping off place in her life—she's thinking of getting married—so you just pack your gripsack and hike out over there and stand by her.'"

During the last half of his speech there was a tone of affectionate regard, at which she bridled resentfully.

"I quite fail to understand your point of view," she said frigidly. "Perhaps I had best make it clear to you that I am no longer thinking of getting married."

"Well, Lord 'a' mercy!" ejaculated Pike, leaning back in his chair and smiling at her, but she affected not to notice the lighter tone and went on.

"I mean I have decided upon it. The ceremony is to take place in a fortnight."

Pike brought the front feet of his chair down with a crash.

"Well, I declare!" he cried.

"We shall dispense with all delays," she went on, and Pike regarded her solemnly for a moment.

"Well, I don't know as I could say anything against that. He must be a mighty nice fellow, and you must think a heap of him." He sighed. "That's the way it should be." He looked at her. "And you're happy?"

"Distinctly!" said Ethel decisively.

Pike looked off over the blue bay, and then his gaze traveled to where Horace had been standing, and with a start he turned to her again, speaking eagerly:

"It ain't that fellow I was talking with, yonder?"

And she voiced an indignant protest.

"That was my brother!"

"Lord 'a' mercy!" ejaculated Daniel and then recovered himself. "But, then, I wouldn't remember him. He couldn't have been more than twelve when you was home last. Of course I'd 'a' known you"—

"How?" demanded Ethel. "You couldn't have seen me since I was a child."

"From your picture, though now I see it ain't so much like you," he answered, and she stepped forward, with astonishment.

"You have a photograph of me?"

"The last time I saw your father alive he gave it to me—to look at."

"And you remembered"—

"Yes, ma'am."

A look of incredulity passed over Ethel's face, and she replied:

"It does not strike me as possible. However, we will dismiss the subject."

"Well, if you'd like to introduce me to your—to your"—

"To my brother?"

"No, ma'am; to your—to the young man."

"To Mr. St. Aubyn?" cried Ethel, recoiling a step. "I think it quite unnecessary."

"I'm afraid I can't see it that way. I'll have to have a couple of talks with him, sort of look him over, so to speak. I won't stay around here spoiling your fun any longer than I can help—only just for that and to get a letter I'm expecting from England."

Ethel bit her lip vexatiously.

"I do not see that you need have come at all. We could have been spared this—this mortification."

"You mean I mortify you? Why, I—I can't see how."

"In a hundred ways," she replied, "every way. That common person who is with you"—

"He isn't common. You only think so because he's with me," returned Daniel sadly, looking down.

"Who is he?" demanded Ethel sharply.

"He told me his name, but I can't remember it. I call him 'doc.'"

"It doesn't matter. What does matter is that you needn't have come. You could have written your consent."

"No, ma'am, not without seeing the young man," answered Pike resolutely.

"And you could have arranged the settlement in the same way," went on Ethel unheedingly.

"Settlement! You seem to have settled it pretty well without me," returned Pike, smiling.

"You don't understand," said Ethel impatiently. "An alliance of this sort always entails a certain settlement." She paused. "Please listen. If you were at all a man of the world I should not have to explain that in marrying into a noble house I bring my dot, my dowry"—

"Money, you mean?" asked Pike, puzzled.

"Yes, if you choose to put it that way."

"You mean you want to put aside something of your own to buy a lot and start housekeeping"—

"No," she flared. "I mean a settlement upon Mr. St. Aubyn directly."

"You mean you want to give it to him?"

"If that's the only way to make you understand—yes!" she flashed.

"How much do you want to give him?" asked Pike thoughtfully.

"A hundred and fifty thousand pounds," said Ethel desperately.

Pike whistled.

"Seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars!"

"Precisely that!" said Ethel.

"Well, he has made you care for him," said Daniel. "I guess he must be the prince of the world! He must be a great man. I expect you're right about me not meeting him. I probably wouldn't stack up very high alongside a man that's big enough for you to think so much of as you do him. Why, I'd have to squeeze every bit of property your pa left you."

"Is it your property?" she flared at him.

"I've worked pretty hard to take care of it for you," he answered gently, and instantly she regretted the sharp speech.

"Forgive me," she pleaded. "It was unworthy of me—unworthy of the higher and nobler things that life calls me to live up to—that I shall live up to. The money means nothing to me. I'm not thinking of that. It is a necessary form."

Pike looked at her keenly.

"Have you talked with Mr. St. Aubyn about this settlement—this present you want to make to him?" he asked.

"Not with him."

"I thought not," he went on amusedly. "You'll see. He wouldn't take it if I'd let you give it to him. A fine man like that wants to make his own way. Mighty few men like to have fun poked at them about living on their wives' money."

"Oh, I can't make you understand!" cried Ethel despairingly. "A settlement isn't a gift."

"Then how'd you happen to decide that just a hundred and fifty thousand pounds was what you wanted to give him?" he demanded.

"It was Mr. St. Aubyn's father who fixed the amount," replied Ethel desperately.

"His father! What's he got to do with it?"

"He is the Earl of Hawcastle, the head of the ancient house."

"And he asks you for your property—asks you for it in so many words?"

"Yes, as a settlement."

"And your young man knows it?"

"I tell you, Mr. Pike, I have not discussed it with Mr. St. Aubyn."

Pike laughed.

"I reckon not," he said amusedly. "Well, sir, do you know what's the first thing Mr. St. Aubyn will do when he hears his father made such a proposition? He'll take the old man out in the back lot and give him a thrashing he won't forget to the day of his death!"

She was about to answer when from a distance came the roll of drums and then the sound of a bugle. The sounds came from afar off, as if below the cliff.

They both stopped to listen. Then the servants came running, with Mariano at their head. They rushed to the wall and leaned over, all excitement. Mariano turned to call to them over his shoulder:

"The bandit of Russia! The soldiers think he is hidden in a grotto under these cliffs!"

As he spoke Almeric ran down the steps with a shotgun in his hand and made for the steps leading down the face of the cliff. Pike turned to Ethel.

"I saw that fellow on the road here. What's he meant for?"

Ethel turned angrily from the lawyer and called sharply to her fiance:

"Almeric!"

St. Aubyn turned and stopped.

"Hello!" he said.

"I wish to present my guardian to you," and turned to Pike as Almeric approached. "This is Mr. St. Aubyn," she said steadily.

Almeric stared at Pike through his monocle and laughed.

"Why, it's the donkey man, isn't it? How very odd! You'll have to see the governor and our solicitor about that settlement, though. I've some important business here. The police are chasing a bally convict chap under the cliff yonder, so you'll have to excuse me. You know there's nothing like a little convict shooting to break the blooming monotony—what?"

He turned and rushed off down the stairway. Pike turned to look after him in mute astonishment and then turned to Ethel. She refused to meet his glance, and the hot blood rose to her face as she felt his scrutiny.

She tapped nervously with her foot, and the astonishment grew in Daniel's face. He looked from her to where Almeric had disappeared and back to her again. Then he took a step forward as if to speak and stopped. Finally the dawning horror in his face took concrete form, and he spoke.

"That?" he groaned. "Seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars for that? Say, how much do they charge for a real man over here anyway?"

But she was unable to meet his eye. Turning quickly, with her cheeks flaming with shame and anger, she rushed into the hotel and left him standing speechless on the spot.

(To be continued.)

"THE CARABINIERI BEG THAT YOU WILL ORDER THE CHAUFFEUR TO STEP FORTH FROM THE MACHINE."

"The police are chasing a bally convict chap under the cliff."

TREMENDOUS SALE OF WASHABLE FABRICS

29c RICH POPLINS 16c

These are without question the handsomest mercerized poplins that have been brought out this season. They are woven with tiny cluster cords and have all the appearance of silk, and we count ourselves immensely fortunate in being able to buy this big lot so cheaply.

The mill required us to take all they had to get it at the price we wanted to pay, so we had to take the slightly imperfect as well as the perfect goods. Those pieces we count imperfect are so only in the selvage where it does not in the least affect the body of the goods, therefore may be counted strictly perfect. Appreciating the excellence of these fabrics as we do, wo do not expect that many buyers will stop at the purchase of one dress but will take several, even tho they are not prepared to make them up at once. They adapt themselves splendidly to coat suits and one-piece dresses.

These goods come in all the choicest of this season's shades—

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Strawberries, red raspberries, blackberries, sweet and sour cherries for canning and preserving at Neuman Brothers.

—George Nichols, a thirteen-year old schoolboy, was taken to his home on Fairview avenue by Superintendent Krebs this morning, having been overcome with the heat in the class room.

—George Ferguson, who has been before the authorities in various towns, always for the same offense, drunk and disorderly, was up again this morning before Borough Recorder Dolliver for the second time this week and was given a sentence of thirty days in the county jail in default of a fifteen dollar fine.

—Decorators are busy in the Borough, especially on Somerset street, preparing the buildings for the Charter Day celebration. The firehouse and Hand's building with Joseph A. Blatz's Chatham hotel present fine appearance. The stringing of electric lights by the P. S. C. from Chatham street to Front is nearly done and bids fair to make the street as bright as day when finished.

DIDN'T FEED THE HORSE; FINED TEN DOLLARS.

Because a horse they sold to Samuel Kline last week was almost starved to death while under their care, Samuel Knopf and Aaron Gusstwith, west Third street bakers, were summonsed to the city court this morning on a S. P. C. A. warrant and fined $10 by City Judge Runyon. Dr. Carpenter, a veterinarian who examined the animal a few days ago, told the court that the animal was sick, half-starved, and driven too hard, and Detective Sergeant John Flynn, who made the arrest, told of the filthy condition of the stable where the horse had been kept.

It developed that the horse, purchased at a New Yor kauction sale for use on the bakers' delivery service, was driven many miles each day, when Kline bought it for $35, was sick and half-starved. The new owner tried to get his money back, but Samuel said he wasn't a millionaire and forced the deal to stand.

LEFT DUUMY IN CELL.

Military Prisoner Escapes from Guardhouse at Fort Hancock.

Arthur Guyette, a military prisoner at Fort Hancock, escaped from the guardhouse Tuesday night. A dummy, with its legs sticking out of the cover, was found on the bed of the missing man's bunk. Guyette was serving a two-year sentence, and was taken to Fort Hancock about two weeks ago from Fort Leavenworth, with several other prisoners.

A reward of $50 has been offered for the capture of the fugitive. He is 5 feet 6½ inches tall and has light brown hair. He is twenty-four years old.

Italian Gored by Bull.

Painters in the employ of ex-Attorney General McCarter at his country estate at Long Branch, saved Joseph Carpello, an Italian, from being gored to death by a bull yesterday. Carpello was repairing a fence, when one of three bulls attacked him. The Italian's cries brought the painters to his assistance and they beat the animal off. The injured man was hurried to the Monmouth Memorial Hospital in an automobile and his wounds were dressed. His left thigh was badly gored.

Endeavorers to Hold Lawn Party.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church will hold a lawn festival Saturday afternoon and evening on the lawn at Watchung avenue and East Second street, which has been kindly donated for the occasion by Mrs. A. E. Lorton. There will be offered for sale ice cream, strawberries, homemade cake, lemonade, etc. The proceeds will go for the benefit of the Endeacorer Society.

Orphans' Home Outing.

The inmates of the Orphans' Home of New Brunswick, Perth Amboy and Metuchen, are being given an outing today. About forty automobiles were engaged for the occasion. The children, accompanied by chaperones, passed through the city about 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Each auto was decorated with American flags, while each child carried a small American flag.

Sworn in as Counsellor.

Reuben Knox, of this city, and Paul Q. Oliver, of Westfield, were among those who were sworn in as counsellors-at-law at Trenton yesterday, Chief Justice Gummere presiding. After the ceremonies all adjourned to Hilderbrect's restaurant, where a dinner was enjoyed.

A. D. Cook, of East Seventh street, is registered at the Antlers, Swiftwater, Pa.

ELIZABETH FIRE FIGHTERS WILL GET MORE MONEY.

Elizabeth firemen may get more pay, after all. The Fire Commissioners will hold a conference with the finance committee of Elizabeth Council today to recommend that provision be made in fixing the department's appropriation so the commissioners may grant the increase in wages petitioned for by members of the Fire Department three months ago.

The commissioners, after careful consideration of the various needs of the department for the ensuing year, have reached the conclusion that the department can expediently grant the firemen more pay.

When the petition was received by the commissioners and members of the finance committee no action was taken because the end of the fiscal year was approaching and the department did not have sufficient funds left in its treasury to grant the men the desired raise.

The commissioners will meet this evening to close up considerable incidental business incidental to the winding up the fiscal year.

The commissioners will take the matter of increasing wages of the firemen over at considerable length with the finance committee, and they are confident that the committee will recommend enough money so a raise of pay for the firemen can be put in effect July 1.

Sprinkling Clothes.

If clothes are to be ironed soon after being sprinkled it is well to use warm water for sprinkling. Warm water spreads more quickly than sold, and so the moisture becomes evenly distributed in a shorter time than if cold water were used.

"I dunno. I've tried that unsuccessfully on my wife."—Kansas City Journal.

Separate Skirt Tops.

Many of the new petticoats come with the jersey tops. The tops may be bought separately,too. Then flounces, as simple or elaborate as one wishes, may be fastened on at will.

Cherry and Nut Salad.

A delicious salad is made from canned cherries and peach nuts tossed up with a well-mixed French dressing. Served on leaves of lettuce hearts it is as pretty as it is tasty.

TWO HUNDRED ATTEND P. H. S. ALUMNI DANCE

Regardless of the intense heat, about 200 alumni and friends of the graduates of the Plainfield High School attended the graduation dance held at the high school auditorium last night after the exercises at the First Baptist church. The affair was declared the most successful social in the histor yof the school dances, and it is now a practical certainity that in years to come the dance will be held at the school.

The decorations brought enthusiastic praise from the dancers, for the auditorium was strung with college flags, and the few red-shaded electric lights gave a cool and pleasing effect. Suhr's Imperial orchestra of ten pieces furnished the dance music, and the musicians were on the auditorium platform, which was banked with wild ferns and palms. Upstairs the library had been transformed into a delightful cosy corner, lighted with red shaded lights and furnished with easy chairs and rugs.

The card included twenty dances, and supper, furnished by B. W. Evans, was served at midnight. C. Bertram Leggett was at the head of the general committee in charge of the dance, and was assisted by Miss Florence Emily Prior, Miss Sara Bernhardt Sanderson. Miss Elsa Mae Cook, Arthur Titsworth, F. Rollin Williams, William C. Douglass, Chauncey R. Murphey, Frederick M. Smith and Orlando H. Lounsbury.

PRISONER SUGGESTS A SENTENCE AT COURT

Freed from the Union county jail at Elizabeth yesterday morning, after forty days imprisonment for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, Mrs. Helen Finneran, of Prescott place, was arrested last night at her home by Roundsman Maurice Higgins, with her husband, Thomas Finneran. The pair had celebrated the woman's release with a large booze party for two, and gave the speeches from their front porch, where their remarks were so personal as to bring half a dozen telephone complaints from neighbors to police headquarters last night.

After the story of the rumpus had been told by the officer and a neighbor at the hearing before City Judge Runyon today, Finneran spoke up and said: "I'll tell you what you'd better do, Judge. Make me sign the pledge. That'll be the best way, see." "Forty days for each of you," replied Judge Runyon. "No!" shouted Finneran, "Don't you do it, Judge. I told you to make it light." But the Judge was already busy making out the committment warrant.

MISS DOROTHY SMALLEY NOW MRS. CHAS. POTTER

The bride is a trained nurse, and it was while nursing Mr. Potter through a severe attack of rheumatism, that the acquaintance ripened into love and led to the marriage of the couple. The bride had resided in Norwich about three years prior to meeting Mr. Potter. She is now visiting elatives in this city for a couple of weeks.

Mr. Potter is superintendent of construction work for the State of Connecticut, a responsible position, and is highly esteemed by a large circle of friends and acquaintances. The couple will continue to live at Norwich.

Mr. Bush has had charge of their plant for some time, and during his management the plant has been brought up to a high standard of efficiency, being second to none in the State. He is a practical cement man, having spent 12 years in the manufacture of cement, having had charge of two of the large mills in the Lehigh district. It is Mr. Bush's intention to shortly go into monolithic and ornamental concrete work, for which there is a growing demand. ***

PLANS FOR CHARTER DAY

All Committees are Hard at Work Despite the Intense Heat.

DECORATING ALREADY BEGUN.

The P. S. C. Strings Electric Lights —Souvenirs Numerous— Autos to Be Decorated.

Hot weather hasn't any effect on the workers of the various Charter Day committees, and arrangements are being completed for the big celebration with unflagging steadiness despite the quivering heat. Things are being started and are kept moving by the various committees which are holding frequent meetings, and the great mass of work will be started next week.

Already city and borough are assuming a gala appearance with the decorations, and the Public Service gang has completed the work of stringing the electric light wires for the illumination of Somerset street during the celebration. Sixteen candle power lights have been strung a foot apart between the trolley poles on Somerset street, both along each curb and above the feed-wire guys, and the trolley people will soon commence similar work on the city streets. The work of erecting the street arches will be commenced on Monday, when workmen will also begin the construction of the arches and piers for the Court of Honor at Park avenue and West Eighth street.

Mayor C. J. Fisk and Mayor Townsend, joint chairmen of the citizens' committee, have appointed a committee of thirty residents of city and borough to act as a reception committee for the entertainment of the prominent men from all parts of the State who will be the city's guests on Monday, July 5. Arrangements are being completed for the luncheon to be given these visitors at the Council chambers, and for their accommodation upon the reviewing stand, to be constructed next week at the court of honor.

Fire Chiefs Doane and Woolston, as joint chairman of the committee in charge of the firemen's parade and festivities, which will mark the second day of the celebration, have reported that many acceptances are coming into the invitations to participate in the parade, sent out to fire companies all over the State. It is now expected that there will be more than a thousand visiting firemen in line. Following the parade, a dinner will be tendered the firemen at the Hotel Waldorf, where the fire chiefs and local fire fighters will act as the hosts. Badges of special design will be provided for all the paraders.

Alexander Milne, chairman of the automobile parade, has announced that all automobiles in line for that parade must be decorated. It is planned to have some elaborate float-automobiles in the line, and prizes will be awarded for the best decorated machines.

The Charter Day souvenir booklets, which have not come up to the expectation of many people, are out and will be placed on sale at ten cents a copy. Fifteen hundred of the Charter Day anniversary badges have been sold, and another more elaborate souvenir badge made its appearance on the streets today. Scores of enterprising merchants have already secured licenses for vending during the three days or the celebration, and various novelties and souvenirs are even now for sale on the streets.

These contributons, acknowledged today, bring the total up to $6,800, which is within $1,200 of the amount needed:

FORTY-FOUR GIVEN DIPLOMAS AT PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT

Former Governor George H. Utter, of Rhode Island, Delivers Address; Leander N. Lovell, President of Board, Presents Diplomas and Charles F. Abbott Awards the Prizes.

Receiving their diplomas from Leander N. Lovell, president of the Board of Education, at the commencement exercises held at the First Baptist church last night, forty-four pupils were graduated and a large audience heard the address of the occasion by Former Governor George H. Utter, of Rhode Island. Twenty-six of the graduates were boys, and this predominance over the girls is unusual, never having been the case in the local schools before. The occasion marked the last appearance at a commencement of Principal Ira W. Travell, who has resigned to become superintendent of the public schools at Morristown. Lindsey Best, head of the science department, will enter upon the duties of the principalship next fall.

The intense heat had but little effect on the attendance, and special interest was felt in the address of the evening and in the prize awards. At shortly afetr 8 o'clock, the members of the graduating class filed up the church aisles and took seats on the platform. Seated there were Superintendent of Schools Henry M. Maxson, former Governor Utter, of Rhode Island, Principal Ira W. Travell, Rev. John Y. Breok, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, who delivered the invocation, and Vice-president Charles F. Abbott, who presented the prizes to various pupils of the school.

Suhr's Imperail orchestra of ten pieces was placed in the gallery, and after the redition of the march by which the graduates entered, the invocation was pronounced by Rev. John Y. Broek. After an orchestral selection came the salutatory address, by Miss Agnes Marguerite Van Norden.

Miss Van Norden's salutatory in part follows:

"We who love so dearly our Alma Mater, and the joys and opportunities that it has brought to us, feel most grateful toward all of you, our friends, who have labored to make our school life both profitable and happy. To the Board of Education, who have worked so hard that our schools might give the best advantages; to Dr. Maxson, who has watched over us from the time we first entered school with almost a father's care and devotion; to Mr. Travell, who has been our friend and adviser throughout the four years of our High School life; and, finally, to the citizens of Plainfield, who have helped us by their support;—to you all we would express our sincere gratitude and welcome you most heartily to our commencement exercises.

"Tonight as we look forward to the new experiences that we are about to begin, I want to tell you about a man, the story of whose happy, self-sacrificing life has been to me a source of help and inspiration.

"Few people have heard of Bishop Patterson, an English missionary, who gave all of his energy, and his full manhood, and finally his life itself to uplifting the poor, ignorant savages of the islands around Australia."

The speech of former Governor Utter, of Rhode Island, was listened to with the keenest interest, and was interrupted by frequent applause. Mr. Utter's speech follows:

"I feel tempted to address this graduating class as 'fellow-alumni,' because I feel that I might well have been one of the graduates of the Plainfield High School. You see, I am not a stranger here, because I was born in the city of Plainfield—over here on Second street. I have come back feeling in a measure as though I've come home.

"Every life has its anniversaries—events by which one can mark time, climaxes in life from which one can look forward and back. Such a time is a graduation time. It is a time when you realize that you have completed a course of study that will tend to develop you in this community.

"The system of education has been made over since I left the little Massachusetts college where I had your superintendent of schools, Dr. Maxson here, as my room-mate. In my time, 'going to college' used to be a solemn event, accompanied by prayers and almost fasting at the time of the farewell, when the son was sent to an institution to be fitted for the ministry, or to get 'general culture.' Nowadays it's all different. There's no fasting when the boy goes away, and there's feasting for the boy when he gets to his college.

"The original aim of a college was to impart a broad culture, but in these days there are many so-called optional courses, and the student may specialize in one phase of learning more and more. If I had my way all college courses would be 'required courses.' My idea of a college is rather as a place for culture and general training than as a place for specializing and training for a definite end. The tendency in our colleges today is to seek for efficiency, and the fact that our college presidents are no longer chosen universally from the ministry is a proof that this idea is broad in its scope. Now when a principle begins to show itself in the college, it also shows itself in the high school and in the grammar school. The trend in college is following the trend in business life. It is no longer the individual today, it is the corporation. All are seeking for efficiency in some one thing.

"You graduates are products of our public schools, and you sit here tonight in testimonial of what the Plainfield public has done for you in giving you an excellent education in the city's schools. You have been given something of inspiration toward efficiency in your school training here, and it is that which you will carry with you through life—not the book-learning you have acquired. To be really efficient there are some things that you must do. First, it is necessary for you to protect your physique, young fellows, if you know that there is anything that is creeping into your lives and habits which tends to mar your physique, cut it out, tonight.

"Then there is another thing. Americans, I feel, have come to consider the dollar as the grade of success in life. The real standard of success in character consists in doing the best you can. Every man or woman knows whether the best use has been made of opportunity. This sort of success you owe to the community which has educated you. Sometimes no one knows that you have attained it except the individual.

"Then to you all there is the danger of admiration for the idle. So many people take educational training solely so that they may have an easier time. I tell you a high school education will never enable you to remain idle; it will only fit you for harder work. The spirit of the times should not be toward idleness, it should be toward labor, inspiring a desire to work hard.

"Now I hope none of you think that because his course of study is completed, he is complete. No one is more to be pitied than the 'finished' man or woman. 'Look at me,' they say, 'I'm done.' And they generally are. Don't be that way. Keep at it. Read good literature, read Shakespeare, Dickens, Tennyson and Eugene Field, and remember what you read.

"And so finally, members of the graduating class, when you finish your study and get out in the world, whether it be in the home, the college or the office, do your best. If you've done your best, you can face your conscience."

The presentation of rewards, which followed, was by Charles F. Abbott. These are the awards.

Following the presentation of prizes, came the valedictory essay and address, "Joan of Arc," by Miss Sarah Anne Brower.

Miss Brouwer's valedictory in part follows:

"Classmates, I have touched but feebly on the life of this nearly perfect woman, but I have touched lovingly. To me she is an example of a beautiful life, made beautiful not so much by what she did, though she did greatly, as by what she meant to do—the purpose which she took and held and which she never let herself forget. It was her devotion to purpose that made her victorious even in death, a conqueror in death.

"Now, as we meet for the last time as Seniors of Plainfield High School, stirred by the example of a true and noble life, let us resolve to see our purpose clearly as she did, and in a radiant light. Let us never falter on the steep, bright path—up hill and up, to be sidetracked by nothing, though tempting voices may call, as perhaps they called Joan in the remembered sheep bells of Domremy, and the peasant lispings of her home.

"But—'vestigia nulla retrorsum'—our own motto—'no footsteps backward.' And—there is nothing more. When our feelings are the strongest it is most hard to speak. This is our last night together. Before us throng our hopes and behind us our precious memories; and there is only one thing to say—a simple, hard good-by."

The diplomas were presented by President Leander N. Lovell, of the Board of Education. There were fifteen ushers at the church, in charge of Charles B. Morse. These are the graduates:

THE ASBURY-PARK CAR.

Will be at the North Avenue Station Tomorrow from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

The railroad exhibition car sent out last month by Asbury Park, and which is now attracting the attention of thousands of people is probably the most enterprising method of publicity ever adopted by a resort for the purpose of exploiting its attractions. While Asbury Park for years has enjoyed a national reputation as one of America's great seaside resorts, a place catering more especially to families and those seeking high class attractions, its prestige the past two or three years has been greatly enhanced by a complete rebuilding of the ocean front under municipal ownership and the introduction of more liberal methods.

It was for the purpose of acquainting the people of Plainfield and other cities alng the main line of the Jersey Central Railroad with this new condition, and to impress upon them by means of a splendid collection of magnificently colored views a correct idea of the "new" Asbury Park as it exists today, that the municipal bureau of publicity nearly a year ago decided to send out for a six weeks' tour the railroad exhibition car now open free to the people of Plainfield at the North Avenue station.

The expense of this car is paid for by general taxation and the idea is but one of the methods employed by the bureau of publicity to create for Asbury Park a successful season. Co-operating with the bureau the Jersey Central Railroad furnished the car and transportation, while the city supplied the pictures, attendants and literature and financed the general expenses of the campaign. The car was first opened to the public at Scranton on May 15, and has since exhibited in all the principal cities on the main line of the Central, after the car leaves here it will then be sent back to Asbury Park.

In charge of the car is H. E. Denegar, Director of Asbury Park's bureau of publicity, who planned the innovation and carried it to complete success. Associated with him in this work is Miss Ethelyn Cooke, of the bureau, the only woman in this country who has made a study of advanced ideas in publicity as applied to summer resort work. The exhibition car will be open from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

What do you know about Brooklyn defeating Philadelphia twice in one day—2 to 0 and 5 to 1. That actually happened on Wednesday.

The Giants incidentally increased their lead the same day by taking two games from Boston, the second contest by an unusually large score of 11 to 1.

The Plainfield Baseball Club has received its new white uniforms, considered the most attractive yet seen here. They will be worn tomorrow for the first time when the team crosses bats with New Brunswick at the latter place.

The Orange Y. M. C. A. team will play the local association nine at Crescent Oval, tomorrow afternoon at the usual hour. Orange is going fast now and should make the locals play hard to win.

Lajoie, whose wrist ligaments were torn in Wednesday's game, may be out of the game for several weeks.

Now Fred Clarke of the Pittsburgs makes a statement that this will be his last year in baseball. He has served the club faithfully.

GOLF.

Among the several interesting events at golf planned at the Plainfield Country Club, will be a mixed foursome tournament to be played on Wednesday, June 30. There are sixteen entries.

There is a revival of interest among the women members of the Plainfield Country Club in golf. On July 5, a clock golf tournament will be among the attractions for the day.

A match golf tournament for the women members of the Plainfield Country Club will be held on Friday, July 9, and there promises to be a large entry list.

A four ball medal play competition for pairs made up of an amateur and a professional was the attraction at the Englewood Golf Club Wednesday, in preparation for the open championship play, yesterday. The club gave three prizes for the successful professionals of $100, $60 and $40, with trophies for their partners. W. C. Shoup, of the home club, and Gilbert Nicholls won with a 68. E. M. Barnes and Jack Hobens took second prize with a 79, and several teams were tied for third money.

The unusual feat of a hole being made in 1 was recorded at the Forest Hill Field Club on Sunday. Frank Shultz, of Newark, playing with William Nichol, former Sheriff of Essex county, accomplished the stunt at the new home hole, which calls for a drive over Second River and the railroad tracks. The hole is only 140 yards, and Shultz, using a jigger, dropped the ball within a foot of the pin. The ball took one bound and dove straight into the cup.

Fred Fitzjohn recently established a new record of 72 for the links of the Mohawk Golf Club, in Schenectady. The professional went out in 38 and back in 34.

Mrs. L. P. Bullock, of this city, is being entertained at the Lebanon Hotel, Lebanon, Hunterdon county.

INTERESTING FACTS OF P. H. S. CLASS OF 1909.

For the second time within three years the valedictory address of the city high school has been on the same topic, Joan of Arc. It was first given by Miss Gertrude Hunter in 1906. Another peculiar feature of the graduation last evening, is the fact that the boys outnumber the girl graduates—and this by 7. Further, for the first time in many years a boy, Harold Schenck, has completed the college preparatory course in three years, and has been awarded a diploma. Two girls did this last last year. Though there were more boys than girls in the class, girls carried off both the valedictory and salutatory honors for the first time since 1906. 1909 was the first class to be graduated from the Baptist church since 1907, and the last class to have Principal Ira Travell.

Of the girls of the class of 1909, 12 will pursue a higher education. Five will go to Smith college. Of the boys, 15 will pursue a higher education, five will go into business and five are "undecided." So far as is known no member of the class of 1909 is engaged, but two announcements are expected soon.

GAINS IN ATTENDANCE AT BOROUGH'S SCHOOLS

Superintendent Henry C. Krebs speaks with pardonable elation of the fine showing of the borough schools for the past year. It shows how much the actual enforcement of the compulsory education law can be made to accomplish. Next year this law will receive an even more rigid enforcement and the results are expected to exceed the figures shown below.

The statistics for the school year just closing in the Borough schools show an increase over last year of 16,530 days' attendance, a decrease of 1,053 in the days' absence, an increase of 58 (from 1,175 to 1,233) in the total enrollment, and an increase of 94 (from 871 to 965) in average daily attendance.

As the various school districts receive about 7½ cents for each day's attedance per pupil, there should be from this source an increase in State school moneys of $1,200 over last year.

It is believed that a more rigorous enforcement of the compulsory education law accounts for the increase in daily attendance.

Coachman Struck Station Cabman.

William Willis, a colored cabman, and William Grobes, a colored coachman, faced City Judge Runyon at the session of court today as the result of a scrap on the railroad station platform yesterday afternoon, when Willis knocked the older man down. The fight started because Willis recommended an interrogating passenger to his cab-driving son. Willis told him that was soliciting, and it developed that the coachman lost his temper and made some crisp remarks. Willis said Grobes looked so belligerent when he jumped out of his rig that he struck him in self-defence. Judge Runyon suspended sentence.

Heads of C. E. Committees.

The executive committee of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, at a meeting at the home of the president Wednesday night, made the following appointments for chairmen of the several committees: Lookout, Miss Ida L. Spicer; prayer meeting, Charles F. Neagle; social, Miss Eva Rogers; music, Miss Helen Rogers; flower, Miss Isabel Randolph; missionary, Nathan Wardner; temperance and good literature, Roy E. Titsworth; press, Miss Ethel Titsworth; County Union, Mrs. Frank Langworthy; Union, Mrs. R. C. Burdick.

Seventh-Day Baptist Services.

Rev. Edward Shaw, pastor, will preach at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, tomorrow morning, the theme being "Yoke Fellowship." The Sabbath-school will meet at 11:45 o'clock in the morning. The Junior Society of Christian Endeavor will not meet during the summer. There will be no vesper service this week, because of other appointments. The young people will join in a union meeting with the society at New Market at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Dr. Moldenke Going Abroad.

Dr. Richard Moldenke, of Watchung, an authority and expert assayist, will leave durig July for Denmark, to represent the Government at an important congress. While away he will also make several addresses, giving an expert treatise on metallurgy. This is not the first time that Dr. Moldenke has been sent away on important missions of this character for the Government. He is considered one of the foremost authorities in matters of assay work.

Damage Suit in October.

The $5,000 damage suit instituted by Mrs. Margaret Totten against Harry Dreier, will be called to trial in October. W. S. Angleman represents the complainant. Mrs. Totten claims that she was prevented from obtaining her goods in a house purchased by Harry Dreier, and that she was ejected from the premises.

J. Henry Crane has been retained as counsel in the case of John Speranzi, who lost his leg in the accident on the D. L. and W. at Berkeley Heights on June 2.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The Middlesex Water Company, which controls the mill pond here, will let the water out of the pond next week and dredge the same, after which the pond will be allowed to fill up again.

The game of baseball which was scheduled between the Scotch Plains Juniors and the Stillman School, yesterday afternoon, was cancelled on account of commencement exercises.

A fence has been built between the old mill property and Brookside avenue, on the site of the fire which destroyed the mill last January.

John Geary attended Leal's school commencement in Plainfield Tuesday night.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Frederick N. Richards, the five-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Richards, died yesterday. The funeral, which will be private, will be held tomorrow afternoon from the parents' home at 3 o'clock.

"ITALY AND ITALIANS" SUBJECT OF FREE LECTURE.

This evening in Y. M. C. A. hall, former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph will give an illustrated lecture on "Italy and the Italians" for the benefit of the Plainfield Italian Mission.

The material for this lecture was gathered by Mr. Randolph druing his recent travels in Italy, following the Messina earthquake disaster, and he presents a most vivid picture of present-day conditions in that country. Over seventy-five views of Italian scenes and types will be shown. A short musical program will be furnished by members of the Mission classes.

Everybody is invited to attend this lecture, admission to which will be free. A free-will offering will be received for the Mission.

Good Mining Scheme.

A. S. Runyon, of West Front street, returned home yesterday afternoon for a few days from Neabsco, Va., where he has been for some time superintending a mine which is being worked for the Plainfield Mining Co. for sulphur pyrites from which sulphuric acid is made. This company consists of some of the best business men of the city. Since Mr. Runyon has been at Neabsco he has sunk a shaft which is turning out a very good specimen of ores of which he has shipped several samples and which can be seen at M. F. Gano's office. Mr. Runyon expects to return to Virginia in a few days.

Living Pictures at Proctors.

Mons. DeWitt's famous French models, a big spectacular act, presenting notable paintings and statuary in bronze and marble, will be the headliner at Proctor's theatre today and tomorrow. The Keelers will also appear in a big laughing success entitled, "The Matrimonial Agent," while The Hatches, a colored team, and Charles Raymond, novelty hoop roller, will complete the vaudeville. There will also be five reels of motion pictures.

Mrs. J. Brognard Betts.

Mrs. Elizabeth Balantine Betts, wife of J. Brognard Betts, of 29 Washington avenue, North Plainfield, died yesterday afternoon. Funeral services will be held at Holy Cross church, North Plainfield, Saturday afternoon at 2:30, Rev. Geo. A. Warner officiating. The interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

COCK-FIGHT PARTICIPANTS ENTER PLEAS OF NON-VULT.

Twelve men indicted on a charge of being implicated in a cock-fight at Scotch Plains in March last, were arraigned in the Union County Court this morning. William G. De Meza, appearing as counsel for the accused, changed the plea from that of not guilty to that of non-vult, and it was announced that sentence will be imposed on Wednesday, July 7.

These men were arraigned: Harry Gottschalk, Andrew Dickson, Edward Lawrence, James Carson, James Frazee, Timothy Kelly, Michael Kelly, Edward Wahl, James Rawson, Warren Cokefair, Dud. Clark, William Clark, William Watt.

Returned from a Western Jaunt.

Joseph Gjettlesen and Hervey Vroom returned home yesterday from a pleasure trip in the west. They have been absent a month. They went from here to Buffalo, then Detroit and Chicago, where they spent most of their time. On the way home they visited Cleveland. They report much cooler weather in the west. The trip was taken chiefly for the benefit of Mr. Vroom's health, and he has improved wonderfully. He is a son of the late Theodore Vroom, and like his father has unusual talent as a sign artist. He made good use of this while away, which helped to keep the treasury supplied.

Gave Luncheon and Whist Party.

Mrs. George Vreeland Van Alstyne, of West Front street, gave a luncheon and bridge whist party at her home this afternoon in honor of Miss Elsie Brown, of New York. The home was attractively decorated with flowers. Covers were laid for eight, those present being Mrs. George Vreeland Van Alstyne, Mrs. William Van Alstyne, Mrs. Percy Van Alystyne, Miss Emma Van Alstyne, of this city; Miss Elsie Brown, of New York; Mrs. Fred Deyo, of Brooklyn; Clayson Brown and Austin Felt, of Westfield, and Irving Van Alstyne.

J. W. Murray Gives $10.

John W. Murray, Sr., who is at Wolfboro, N. H., for the summer and will not be able to attend the Charter Day celebration, sent $10 to The Daily Press today to be placed in the fund being raised for the demonstration. Prompt acknowledgment will be made by this paper of donations made by Plainfielders away at this time who may send contributions to The Daily Press for the fund.

BUNGALOW LIFE AT PORT-AU-PECK ON THE SHREWSBURY—Bungalow colonies, originally a California institution, are springing up all over the east. Many persons of means believe this to be the most healthful manner in which to spend a vacation. It takes them away from the irksome forms of conventionality and puts them in close touch with nature. It enables them to roam through the woods or sail over the sparkling waters, getting fresh air, sunlight and exercise, which has built many a rundown body up to the exacting requirements of our rushing twentieth century pace. The cooling breezes of the Atlantic meet and mingle with the ozone from the woods, forming an atmospheric combination which carries health and vigor through every pair of lungs inhaling it. These are the conditions at Port-au-Peck on the Shrewsbury. WON DAILY PRESS PRIZE

Essay of George Stanley Robins on "Municipal Playgrounds."

MRS. TIFFANY WAS JUDGE.

Washington McIntyre's Paper on the Subject Accorded Honorable Mention.

George Stanley Robins won the gold prize offered by The Daily Press to the senior of the Plainfield High School, submitting the best essay on "Municipal Playgrounds." Mrs. Dexter Tiffany was the judge, she having kindly consented to decide which of the papers submitted showed the highest degree of merit. Honorable mention was awarded by her to Washington McIntyre.

Mr. Robins' paper follows:

The guardianship of a muncipality over its population—may be properly compared with that which is exercised by the head of a household. Each has responsibilities, moral and economic, and these are allied, one with the other, as closely in the conduct of a city government as in the provision for and care of a family.

Considering the municipality as a large family, it must be seen that the forces, working on the one hand toward moral development, and on the other toward the administration of economy, should be co-operative.

A city's activities toward the betterment of morals, the preservation of peace, and the enforcement of measures conducive to right living, may well be considered as a worthy end in themselves rather than as a means to economy; yet it is evident that the former is a cause and the latter an effect.

As a city protects itself from lawlessness, it protects itself from poverty.

In preventing its citizens from becoming criminals, it keeps them from being a tax upon the community; in shielding them from pestilence and disease, it economizes in its health department appropriation; in providing for the children, residing withi its borders, insuring them of a healthful and upright environment in which to grow, it establishes a generation of men and women, strong morally and physically, capable to take their place in the building-up of the community, and to administer its affairs with integrity.

And this is the function of the municipal playground.

The most effective sociological reforms of recent years have dealt with the youth of the community. The old theory that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," has proved a valuable axiom in the study of criminology. People are beginning to realize that education is cheaper than reformation.

It is upon this principle that Judge Ben Lindsey's Juvenile Court was organized in Denver, and the spirit, which has actuated this man's remarkable work, has spread into many departments of justice in many quarters of the globe.

To save the child from becoming contaminated by the evil influences and unsavory environments is to build aright the foundation of his life, and to fit him for his place in the community. This is the part which Judge Lindsey assigns to the public playground, when he says.

"We cannot overdraw the picture of the increase in weakness and crime among the youth in the cities of this republic. It is not their fault; it is ours. It is largely due to that environment, to that condition that we have created. Cities and states are false to their duty to this child unless they furnish the best remedies for relief against the monsters that attack it. It is not pretended that any one remedy will suffice, but no one remedy proposed can be more serviceable than the public playground.

"We do an injury to these little ones; just so far as by lack of interest we compel our school boards to put fifty children in a room where there shouldn't be over twenty, deny a trade school to equip for industrial efficiency and a playground to equip the child for the advantages of the school and the life beyond. It is no longer questioned that such agencies do more to prevent crime than jails, courts, and policeman.

"In Colorado the parent who shirks may be punished. Justice demands that this responsibility be extended to all persons who might properly share it. We might become guilty just so far as we fail to strengthen those whom we have burdened with this responsibility. That strength depends upon our support of these agencies, such as school boards, park boards, etc., to provide the equipment necessary to give the child a square deal through the public playground and the school.

"One obstacle to the public playground has been the cost. If the average citizen, if the average business man, if you please, would only wake to the fact that the most economic scheme for handling the problem of crime is that which prevents rather than that which at a fearful expense is merely the engine to convict and punish after crime has become an established fact, we would make progress faster."

So much for the subject from a general standpoint.

In the city of Plainfield we have to be thankful for an unusually clean atmosphere, free from many of the bad influences, existing in larger cities, where congestion, unsanitary quarters, and lack of educational facilities, present problems difficult to solve. Plainfield is under going, however, a rapid industrial as well as residential growth, and, as the years advance, we must be prepared to cope with the conditions which in larger communities are the breeding places of crime and lawlessness. Already we have within the city many children, who, by circumstances of birth, are deprived of those advantages which stimulate healthful moral character.

And it is not only for this class that the municipal playground would be of value, but many wise and prudent parents, in good circumstances, capable of providing their children with every necessity, appreciate the need of a suitable place where their boys and girls may reap the benefits of mingling with others of their age under proper supervision. It may be from a physical standpoint that these children need the healthful activity of the systematically conducted playground; it may be that discipline, outside of that administered in the home, is an essential requirement in the development of the child; or it may be that the youngster would profit by the broadening of character, absorbed from such democratic surroundings—there are countless reasons which would profit the Plainfield parent to cordially support a municipal playground.

As the school season nears its close and every praent realizes what the lack of the customary school playground will mean, the question becomes timely as to whether a public playground would not amply justify its existence at such a period.

We have strived to treat the subject from the civic standpoint rather than from a consideration of the individual effect of the public playground, as it must be realized that any action, tending toward the establishment of such an institution in this city, would involve municipal jurisdiction. Volumes could be written, tracing the child's development in character under the influence of the public playground, but we will leave this for future advocates of the project in the Halls of Council. It has been our purpos merely to point out, from a social and economic standpoint, the paramount advantage of the municipal playground.

It Was a Fierce Game.

The Plainfield Avenue A. C. beat the Second Street Stars this morning by a score of 10 to 5, according to one of the members of the former club the Stars got their five runs by "cheeten.'

OH, YOU BASEBALL FANS! JUST LOOK WHO'S HERE

Arrangements have been completed for the "great" baseball contest tomorrow between the Watchung Hunt Club and Plainfield Country Club teams. If the present high temperature continues, the game will be the hottest one of the season in one respect at least. Several persons have been requested to umpire, but as yet all efforts to secure an official have been unsuccessful. It is possible according to one member that the clubs will be compelled to go to the national baseball commission for a league umpire.

The contest will be started at 3 o'clock or as near to that hour as possible and the lineup will be like this:

Watchung Hunt Club—A. L. Otterson, 1b; W. L. Righter, 2b; Stuart Johnston, ss; Wylie Brown, 3b; Gilbert Fletcher, cf; Henry E. Butler, rf; Duncan Bulkley, p; Morris J. Dumont, c; Ford Johnston, W.. B. Tyler and J. Hartley Mellick, lf.

Plainfield Country Club—W. R. Rushmore, 1b; T. W. Wallace, 2b; H. L. Eaton, lf; Henry Cochran, ss; Robert Abbott, p; Henry DeForest, c; Arthur Lovell, 3b; Ames Brooks, rf; F. D. Warren, cf.

WOMEN GOLFERS ON COUNTRY CLUB COURSE

The women members of the Plainfield Country Club are taking more than usual interest in golf this season. Several events have been held and others have been planned. On Monday there was an approaching and putting contest for a cup offered by Mrs. Arthur Wellington Opp. This was won by Miss Margaret Goddard with practically a perfect score of nine, after being tied twice with Miss Martha Robert. The contest was at ten, twenty and thirty yards over the bunker to the eleventh hole, and Miss Goddard's performance was quite remarkable.

Miss Goddard first tied with Miss Martha Robert with a score of 13, then the two players tied again with a score of 12 and in the playoff Miss Goddard won with a nine, while Miss Robert made a 13. Other scores returned were as follows:

Miss Daisy Elsberg, 14; Mrs. H. Reeve Stockton, 14; Miss Maud Van Boskerck, 15; Mis Louise Cragin, 18; Miss Alice Titus, 20, and Miss Adele Cragin, 24.

The women engaged in handicap tournament Wednesday for a cup offered by the club. This was won by Mrs. Arthur Wellington Opp with a score of 102, 8-94. The other leading scores were as follows:

Mrs. H. Reeve Stockton, 96, 0-96; Miss Margaret Goddard, 98, 0-98; Miss Daisy Elsberg, 110, 10-100; Miss Martha Robert, 116, 16-100.

Won "First Bay" Cup.

A handsome two-handled silver loving cup has been presented to Erwin Briant Leland, of this city, by the members of the class of 1906 of Williams College, for being the proud father of the first boy born to a member of the class. The cup was presented to Mr. Leland early this week when he attended a reunion of the class. Mr. Leland was valedictorian of the class of 1902 of the city high school, and received the honorary Phi Beta Kappa key for high scholarship at Williams College. "Erwin, Jr.," his son, is a bouncing baby boy of seven months.

Franklin Council Elects.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., at a regular meeting last night elected these officers for the ensuing term: Councilor, J. J. Kliner; vice-councilor, Walter G. Firstbrook; recording secretary, Forester Hartpence; assistant recording secretary, LeRoy DeCamp; financial secretary, Ephraim Compton, treasurer, Thomas E. Currin, Jr.; warden, Percy Ross; conductor, Harry Nolte; inside sentinel, Harry Southard; outside sentinel, Louis Hall; representatives to State Council, two years, LeRoy DeCamp and Thomas E. Currin, Jr.

Furniture Team Runs Away.

A team of horses attached to the delivery wagon of Shirley and Johnson and driven by James Harvin, became frightened by a passing trolley car at the corner of Front street and Watchung avenue about 8 o'clock last night and ran away down Front street. The horses were caught by the motorman of the car before any damage was done. Harvin, the driver, had descended from his seat to repair a broken bridle when the team started to run and he was unable to check them.

Editor Thomson to Lecture.

It is anounced that P. E. Thomson, editor of The People's Pulpit, of the Brooklyn Tabernacle, will give a free lecture in Jr. O. U. A. M. Hall, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The subject will be "1,200,000,000 Heathen Today. Has God the Power of Salvation?"

HALL CAINE AND THE PUBLISHER.

When Hall Caine went up to London to become Rossetti's housemate, he brought with his the MS. of a collection of lecturers which he had written while living in Liverpool, says Appleton's Magazine. Shortly after the poet's death, when ways and means had begun to present serious problems, somebody recommended that he should submit this MS. to a certain great publishing-house. He gives the following account of his first experience with a publisher:

At the door of the office I was told to write my own name, and the name of the person I wished to see, and to state my business. I did so, and the boy who took my mesage brought back word that I might leave my manuscript for consideration.

After waiting three torturing weks for the decision of the publishers, I made bold to call again. At the same little box at the door of the office I had once more to fill up the same little document. The boy took it in, and I was left to sit on his table, to look at the desk which he had been whittling away with his penknife, to wait, and to tremble. After a while I heard a footstep returning. I thought it might be the publisher or the editor of the house. It was the boy back again. He had a pile of loose sheets of white paper in his hands. They were the sheets of my book.

"The editor's compliments, sir, and—thank you," said the boy, and my manuscript went sprawling over the table. I gathered it up, tucked it as deep as possible into the darkness, under the wings of my Inverness cape, and went down-stairs, ashamed, humiliated, crushed and broken-spirited.

I dare say it was right and proper and in good order. The book was afterward published, and I think it sold well I hardly know whether I ought to say that the editor should have shown me more courtesy. But the sequel is worth telling. That editor became my personal friend. He is dead, and he was a good and able man. Of course he remerbered nothing of this incident, and I never poisoned one hour of our intercourse by telling him how, when I was young, and a word of cheer would have buoyed me up, he made me drink the waters of Marah.

And three times since that day the publishing firm I speak of has come to me with the request that I would write a book for them. I have never been able to do so, but I have outgrown my bitterness, and, of course, I show no malice. Indeed, I have now the best reasons for wishing the great enterprise well. But if literary confessions are worth anything, this one may perhaps be a seed that will somewhere find grateful soil. Keep a good heart, even if you have to knock in vain on many doors and kick about the back stairs of the house of letters. There is room enough inside.

MANLY TRAINING OF GIRLS.

Our training of girls approaches close to the idiotic, claims Katharine Eggleston in Woman's Home Companion for June. The average girl, from the minute she leaves her dolls to go to kindergarten, till she matriculates at college, is told about men and men's work—never about women. The kindergarten song and tales are about Lincoln and Washington—and even the pictures of animals show the lion and forget the lioness. In older childhood she is taught to build sand forts instead of good old-fashioned mud pies, and even the sums in arithmetic dwell on "Billy's" marbles and "John's" apples, to the total neglect of his sister.

Later still she goes to high school and learns history with all its ideals of brave men—and here again the woman's share of quiet courage is completely overshadowed. She learns carpentering, although she cannot cook an egg or sew a seam. And finally, her education finished, she knows all about the higher mathematics and is short-changed by the butcher. She learns political economy, but doesn't know who are the members of her own school board. Miss Eggleston's bright article concludes:

"If your boy wanted to be a lawyer, and your neighbor told you to put him to work in a carpenter's shop by way of preparation, you would think your daughter, who is to be a wife and mother (and nothing can get away from the grim statistics that women do marry, despite economic independence, the higher education and all other arguments in favor of coeducation), precisely as you trai your son, who will enter some profession or trade, there to first earn his own living, and then to provide for a family yet unborn. The one to bear the family and to rear it, the other to provide shelter and comfort for the mother of that family, and yet both trained precisely in the same way."

A Blooming Chicken.

Little Mary went into the country on a visit to her grandmother. Walking in the garden, she chanced to spy a peacock, a bird she had never seen. She ran quickly into the house and cried out, "Oh! grandma, come out and see. There's an old chicken in full bloom."—Argonaut.

OF THOSE WHO WALK ALONE.

Women there are on earth, most sweet and high,
Who lose their own, and walk bereft and lonely,
Loving that one lost heart until they die,
Loving it only.

And so they never see beside them grow
Children, whose coming is like breath of flowers;
Consoled by subtler loves the angels know
Through childless hours.

Good deeds they do; they comfort and they bless
In duties others put off till the morrow;
Their look is balm, their touch is tenderness
To all in sorrow.

Betimes the world smiles at them, as 'twere shame,
This maiden guise, long after youth's departed;
But in God's book they bear another name—
"The faithful-hearted."

Faithful in life, and faithful unto death,
Such souls, in sooth, illume with luster splendid
That glimpsed, glad land wherein, the vision saith,
Earth's wrongs are ended.
—Richard Burton in the May Century.

Decorated Dishes.

Ices and creams look most attractive when put into individual glasses, with perhaps a cherry or a bit of candied mint or a strawberry on top; but a home-made cream which is turned directly from the cylindrical freezer on to the dish may have a few split ladyfingers pressed around the edge and a handful of cherries and citron leaves arranged on top, when at once it becomes quite an elaborate dessert. Fresh strawberries arranged with their leaves around a plain brick of cream also transform it at once into a festival dish.—Harper's Bazar.

ADELINA PATTI'S JOKE ON KING EDWARD.

In London one year, when the season was unusually long, says Adelina Patti in the June Strand Magazine, I well remember an amusing incident connected with the then Prince of Wales, now King Edward VII.

His royal highness having been persuaded that jealous feeling would be aroused in the breasts of rival prima donne if they sang the wrangling trio from "Il Matrimonio Segreta," thought of having a joke at their expense, and so caused Lucca, Nilsson and myself to receive an invitation to sing that piece. I, however, believed I could guess the Prince's intention, and arranged a counter-plot with my colleagues which succeeded perfectly.

At the matinee at Marlborough House we three conspirators drawled out the trio with such mournful, stolid faces that the whole audience, with their humorous an royal host at their head, stared dumfounded at the automatic trio.

MADAM EAMES' FAREWELL.

Before I go, I wish to say goodby and thank you to the public that has loved and encouraged me so long, and which has made my career possible. From the moment when, on the occasion of my debut at the Grand Opera House in Paris, the public frantically applauded me, until today, I have always been obliged to drive myself onto the stage. As I went on as Juliet for the first time I did so filled with illusion and forgetting even my own personality. When the public burst into applause I was filled with horror that it was I they were applauding; instead of elating, it terrified me. I fought my way out of that, of course, even on the first occasion; but for years to sing in concert was not only a torture but an impossibility. I could only face the public in some one else's personality. I say that the American public has made my career a possibility by sending me the wave of affectionate encouragement and pride in my achievements without which I should have been paralized.

My great loves in life are nature in all her moods, animals, and beauty, and above all to lead a normal life. Ther is nothing of the gypsy in me, and my life has been nomadic in the extreme. The result of all this driving has been frequent physical and nervous breakdowns, which I concealed and overcame in silence. And yet until now I could not give up my active work. Although in the future I may sing an occasional operatic performance, I shall never again imprison myself in bricks and motar for a season of opera, or for months of work at a time.

I have been kindly reproached for not having announced my intention of leaving opera sooner, instead of waiting until my last operatic performance before doing so. My public has only to consult the files of the newspapers at the very beginning of the season, to see that I spoke of my intention then without my statement being believed. On that last evening I felt that the public did not realize it was my farewell, and before I knew it I was speaking—no one more surprised that I should be doing so than I. I could ask for no greater "testimonial" than the wave of feeling that came to me from my public after I had done.—Putnam's Magazine for June.

THE PARISIAN ACTRESS.

A very prevalent idea about the Parisian actress, says M. Raphael in the June Strand, is that she is in the main a lay figure on which to hang pretty clothes. But this is anything but true. An American or Englishman in speaking of the Paris stage and of the actresses upon it, will mention Sarah Bernhardt, Rejane, Bartet and then stop. "And, of course, there are lots of charming little actresses," he probably will add. Now, this is all wrong. The great fault of the average visitor to Paris is that eleven times out of seventeen, his French may be enough for him to order dinner in a restaurant where the head waiter learned some English in Margate, but is entirely insufficiently to enable him to appreciate the French play. In consequence he does not try to. He has his dinner and spends his first evening in Paris at the Folies Bergere, where he admires Mlle. Marville as Queen Victoria; his second at the Olympia, his third at Barrasford's Alhambra, his fourth at the Moulin Rouge, and so on. In all these places the chief attraction is not the acting. There is acting in all of them, of course, and good acting, too; but the shows are arranged to suit the taste of foreigners as much as, or more than, that of Parisians.

Too Much Blueing.

If an article is blued too deeply, soak it for a while in a pan of boiling water in which is dissolved sufficient cream of tartar to make it sour to the taste. Soak for ten or fifteen minutes and then hang out to bleach.

A Trifle Acid.

"In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love."

"Yes," said the sarcastic damsel, "after the time for Christmas presents, valentines and Easter flowers has passed."—Washington Herald.

That Brutish Man

Mrs. Bangsmith Talks About Her Neighbors.

"Well, it's my opinion that men who live in glass houses should pull down their vests," snappily observed Mrs. Bangsmith to her caller the other day. "Yesterday, going down in the elevator, I heard that sneaky Giddap man sneering to the man with him about some acquaintance of theirs who beats his wife. Giddap didn't know, of course, that I know that he is a perfect brute beast to his own wife.

"The Giddaps' washwoman told me about it. She's a good Christian woman, this washwoman, and the goings on that she sees and hears in these apartments where she washes hurt her terribly. She tells me about 'em, because she says it's such a relief to her to get the load off her poor mind.

"But the very idea of that Giddap man talking about another man beating his wife—after the way he acts in his own home! The washwoman was finishing up the ironing in her apartment the other evening when something dreadful happened, and I should think that Giddap would be ashamed to meet his neighbors in the halls.

"It was this way: Giddap brought home a couple of theater tickets for that evening. He showed them to Mrs. Giddap at dinner. She inadvertently told him that she didn't care to see the performance again and asked him if he wouldn't change the tickets and go to some other theater.

"He told her that he didn't know that she had seen the show for which he had bought the tickets; that she hadn't said anything to him about having seen it—just as if, hoity-toity, a married woman should be obliged to make a father confessor of her husband and tell him every single, solitary thing she knows! I suppose married men tell their wives everything they do—O yes!

"You see, Mrs. Giddap had gone to the matinee performance of that show only a couple of days before, though, of course, she hadn't considered it necessary to say anything to her husband about it, and, of course, she didn't care to see the same show twice. But, would you believe it, Giddap got as grouchy as could be over it! He said that he wanted to see the show himself anyhow—the selfish brute! He never stopped to think for a moment that there were other shows in town that his wife wanted to see.

"Yes, and he told her that he was going to see that show, for which he had the tickets, too, and that if she didn't want to see it a second time, why, he'd go alone and she could stay at home. He flatly refused to run downtown ahead of her and change the seats for some other show—the miserable, callousy inconsideration of these men, isn't it dreadful!

"Then he started to change into his evening clothes right after dinner and he repeated that he meant to see the show for which he had the tickets or no show at all, and then in her excitement, the pair of scissors that Mrs. Giddap had in her hand flew out of her grasp and they accidentally traveled toward Giddap's head, only missing him by an inch or so, and it's too bad they missed him at that, the stubborn brute.

"Well, when she saw that Giddap believed that she had thrown the scissors at him a-purpose, Mrs. Giddap became still more excited, and she started toward him, sort of screaming like, and what do you think the monster did then? Why he grabbed a-hold of her from behind and held her arms tight to her sides, holding them there just as if she'd been tied with ropes, and then he went on torturing the poor, abused creature with a lot of fool-man talk about how she ought to be ashamed of herself for getting into such a tantrum, and all that humbug that married men get off when they just know they're dead in the wrong.

"And he just held her arms to her sides that way for a quarter of an hour, and he had the nerve to tell her that she should have told him about having seen that show before so that he wouldn't have bought the tickets for it—just like all these men, crazy to make slaves of their wives!

"Well, when she was so tired of being held that way that she couldn't stand up, he let her into a chair, and then he went on and finished his dressing, and instead of staying home and comforting the poor, dear thing after the brutal way he had treated her, didn't he put on his coat and hat and go right down to the theater and take in the show that he had bought the tickets for! Yes, indeedy, he did, and he left her alone in the apartment to weep out her poor bruised heart. And he's a great one to talk about another man beating his wife, isn't he, the fiend!"

Not a Flower.

Physician—I'm afraid you don't take enough outdoor exercise, madam.

Lady Patient—Nonsense! I catch cold every time I go out. I'm sick of this airbath foolishness.

Physician—But, my dear madam, you know a flower can't get along without air and sunshine.

Lady Patient—Oh, that's different. A flower can't get along without wet feet, either.

Bettering a Community.

To better a community is to lift its individuals to a higher ideals and more intelligent living. In final analysis, all work for the betterment of social conditions is the betterment of the individual. This individual may be oppressed by external conditions or he may be without a vision of duty, or a conception of high ideal.

USE OF SODA IN THE KITCHEN.

One of the Least Expensive and Most Indispensable Articles.

Acid fruits such as cranberries, gooseberries, plums and rhubarb require almost an unlimited amount of sugar, much of which can be saved by stirring in before sweetening a little soda (as a general rule a half-teaspoonful to a quart of fruit). A little soda put into the water in which vegetables or tough meats are boiled will make them tender and sweet, besides hastening the cooking. Ham should be parboiled in soda water, taken out, washed and scraped well, then finished by boiling in clear water. This method makes it sweeter and more tender than the ordinary way. In warm weather meat may be freshened by washing in cold soda water before cooking. If slightly tainted this treatment will cure it. If in warm weather the bread dough raised too much and soured a little soda worked well into it will sweeten it again. A teasponful of soda stirred into beans after they are parboiled will make them far more wholesome. After the soda is stirred in well the beans must be drained and washed in a colander. Soda added to the dish water is far superior to soap; it imparts that polish to the dishes so pleasing to dainty housekeepers. Soda will keep tinware bright and will clean table and shelf oilcloth better than anything else.

A teaspoonful of soda is a valuable addition to the bath, especially in warm weather. Prickly heat or insect bites should be washed with soda water to relieve the itching. A teaspoonful of soda stirred in a tumblerful of cold water and taken internally will often relieve a sour stomach when nothing else will.

SIMPLE REMEDY FOR DIRT.

Preparation That Cleanses Delicate Fabrics Without Injury.

The Paris Art institute offered $10,000 for a preparation which would clean delicate fabrics and not fade or injure the finest of colors. The following simple remedy for dirt won the prize: Grate raw potatoes to a fine pulp; add one pint of water to a pound of potatoes; pass this liquid through a coarse sieve into a vessel and allow it to remain till the fine white starch settles to the bottom; then pour off the clear liquor, which is to be used for cleaning. For white silks use thin liquor with a little borax dissolved in it. I use my patent ironing board to sponge the dresses and waists on, using a clean sheet folded thick over the board and spreading one on the floor to protect the skirts. Dip a sponge in the liquor and apply it until the dirt is removed. Rinse in tepid water and press on the wrong side. I have cleaned opera and party dresses beautifully with this preparation. I have cleaned cashmeres, too, with it. I have done better work at home with this method than I have had done at the French cleaner's.—Exchange.

A Few Helps.

Put a pint of cream of tartar in frosting or fudge to prevent "going to sugar." It will make it nice and creamy.

To poach eggs and prevent their sticking to the vessel, grease the vessel before pouring in water.

To scald or boil milk, first rinse out the dish with cold water and immediately put in the milk, and it will not adhere to dish and burn, but will wash easily afterward.

When eggs are poaching or frying, cover the pan with a lid just the last moment of their cooking. This will give the pretty pink glazed overlook so desirable.

To make ferns luxuriant, moisten the earth around ferns at least once a week with cold tea instead of water. They will immediately give out new shoots and become a dark rich green.

For a Polished Floor.

Where a floor is inlaid or polished and the polish has worn off a good preparation for restoring is one-half pound of yellow wax, four ounces of oil of turpentine, one pint of linseed oil; cut the wax into bits and melt in something it can remain in (an old lard pail); add the oil (linseed); remove from the fire when hot and when almost cool stir in the oil of turpentine. When used put a little on a woolen cloth and rub in, then rub with a dry cloth.

Useful Trifles.

A pinch of cream of tartar added to sugar before boiling makes boiled frosting for cakes delicious and creamy. A pinch of salt and a little baking powder makes pie crust light and flaky and more digestible. One teaspoonful baking powder in one-half cup granulated sugar added to the white of one egg stiffly beaten makes a fluffy meringue for lemon pie.

What to Do with Drippings.

After frying bacon or meat of any kind take the drippings that are left and put them in a pan and cut a raw potato up fine and put it in, and let it cook for half an hour, and the potato will absorb all the odor and taste and the lard will come out as clear as fresh lard.

English Hoe Cakes.

Scald a quart of Indian meal, using just enough water to make a stiff batter. Stir in two teaspoonfuls of salt and two tablespoonfuls of butter. Turn into a buttered baking pan and bake for half an hour.

Sardines (Hot).

Pour the oil from box of sardines into a frying pan; when warm lay in sardines and brown a little. Serve on hot dry toast. Add a squeeze of lemon juice and a sprinkle of cayenne pepper.

MR. JONES IN AN EMERGENCY.

Except for Single Unfortunate Incident He Was Just the Man to Deal with It.

When Jones reached home the other night he found Mrs. Jones huddled up in a corner of the sofa weeping, and about four inches of water on the kitchen floor.

The Joneses hadn't been married very long, so he contented himself with a general remark concerning the nonresourcefulness of women and asked how it happened.

"The water pipe under the sink burst," Mrs. Jones told him.

Jones smiled pityingly, walked deliberately to the kitchen closet and produced a wrench. Opening the cellar door with a confident air he descended to the region below.

After bumping at least seven obstacles he finally reached the wall and reached out for the cock which he had noticed in a pipe which traversed the wall. He applied his wrench and shut it off.

Patting himself on the back for being able to cope with an emergency, he started back upstairs. Just half way up the steps he bumped into his wife.

Mrs. Jones was the first to speak.

"O, dear," she said, "what in the world did you turn off the gas for?"—Philadelphia Times.

NOT THE SPEAKER'S PROVINCE

Orator to Follow Was Proper Person to Comply with Request of Enthusiast.

Preachers of all denominations occupied chairs upon the platform. They were giving their voices and influence to the overthrow of a political boss. The Presbyterian clergyman had the floor and most vigorously attacked the enemy. He delivered some fierce, telling thrusts, and the audience was with him. The boss received some cruel jabs.

"That's right, soak him!" encouraged a man with a stentorian voice who had standing room in the rear.

As the clergyman warmed up to his subject the interrupting "soak him!" came from the rear with greater power and frequency.

The speaker paused. He was not irritated, but gently threw the audience into a good-natured hysteria by saying:

"The intentions of the gentleman in the rear are good, but wholly inopportune and ill advised. If he'll kindly reserve his comments for the next speaker, Brother Herrick of the Baptist church, he'll be accommodated, no doubt."

Moving on Short Notice.

I was lying on the floor of an old country loghouse one summer day, near a big, open fireplace, when I heard a peculiar, frightened squeak. I got up to see what looked like a huge mouse moving at a very rapid walk across the room. When I got closer look I saw that it was a mother mouse moving her whole family. At least, I hope there was none left behind, for very soon a small snake, but large enough to put into a panic the mother of four less than half-grown children, came through the empty fireplace, and after the little fugitive. The mother mouse had two in her mouth, and fastened to either side of her, apparently holding on with their mouths and for "dear life" were the other two. I killed the snake, and watched the moving family disappear through a hole in the corner.—St. Nicholas.

This Mixed-Up World.

If things would not run into each other so, it would be a thousand times easier, and a million times pleasanter to get on in the world. Let the sheepiness be set on one side and the goatiness on the other, and immediately you know where you are. It is not necessary to ask that there be any increase of the one, or any diminution of the other, but only that each shall pre-empt its own territory, and stay there. Milk is good, and water is good, but don't set the milk-pail under the pump. Pleasure softens pain, but pain embitters pleasure; and who would not rather have his happiness concentrate into one memorable day, that shall gleam and glow through a lifetime, than have it spread out over a dozen comfortable commonplace, humdrum forenoons and afternoons, each one as like the other as two peas in a pod?—Gail Hamilton.

Salt Seasoned Timber.

A workman was packing salt about a pile of timber. "Seasoning timber with salt, eh? It sounds like a joke, doesn't it?" he said. "It is often done, though, especially in ship timber. Ships built of salt-seasoned timber get a better insurance rate. Some very rich woods are seasoned in boiling oil. That's an ancient and costly process. A new dodge is electrical seasoning. With strong electric shocks the sap is driven out of the wood and replaced by a solution of borax and resin. The scheme is cheap; not half as good as salt."

Spanish Executioner's Remorse.

A curious story comes from Seville. On Sunday night the local executioner died, his death being due to remorse. For several years he had not carried out any executions, but recently he was summoned to Cordova to inflict the final penalty on some criminals. The impression made upon him was so painful that he was unable to face the ordeal when summoned to execute the last criminal condemned in Seville and the sentence will have to be carried out by the Madrid executioner.

CHAPTER XI.

A CLASH OF WILLS.

IT required some minutes for Daniel Voorhees Pike to get over the amazement that possessed him when Ethel fled from him in such evident confusion.

His usually alert mind seemed incapable of concerted effort in the proper direction, and the dazed look on his face remained there until Mariano came to tell him that his rooms were ready and that Herr von Grollerhagen was awaiting him. Then for the first time he awoke, and, with a sigh of resignation as he realized the battle he had before him, he gave a curt order that the automobile, which had broken down on the road to the hotel, should be placed in the entrance garden, for he proposed to do some tinkering upon it.

"If that don't beat"— he muttered to himself and then allowed the remark to remain unfinished, for he could not imagine one thing that the incident could be supposed to have beaten. It stood alone in a little hollow square by itself and positively refused to surrender to any comparison whatsoever.

"And that—that—nine cent imitation of a man," he growled at last—"that vilification upon the—the—genus homo!" he finished, with a flash of pride. Then he went off to his rooms and tried to adjust himself to the matter as he saw it and incidentally to bring some of that astute legal training gleaned from contact with farmers, promoters and other citizens to bear upon the case.

Horace in the meanwhile had walked along the cliff, wrestling with the situation as it appeared to him. There was not the faintest doubt in his mind that the noble earl would break off the match because of the humiliation his equally noble family had been subjected to by the incursion of this vulgar guardian.

Hot and tired, he returned to the hotel with some of his anguish worked off and sought his sister. She, however, was locked up in her own room and would only insist that he go away. So it was from Lady Creech at last that he gleaned some inkling of what had occurred.

It was nearly 6 o'clock when he made up his mind to search out Pike and "have it out with the beggar," as he put it, and he found the obstacle in the entrance garden. As Horace came upon the scene Pike was pounding cheerfully with a hammer upon a bolthead of the motor car.

He was in his shirt sleeves and wore a long workman's smock close buttoned at the neck. From between his teeth came the unfamiliar strains of "The Blue and the Gray." With a revulsion of feeling Horace approached him.

"Mr. Pike!" he said politely.

"One lies down at Appomattox," went on the song, and Horace stamped impatiently upon the turf.

"Mr. Pike! Mr. Pike! I wish a word with you!" Horace went on, quite angrily. Pike looked up mildly and regarded Horace with interest.

"Eh?" he said and moved to the other side of the machine, rubbing his lean chin with the handle of a monkey wrench.

"I wished to say that the surprise of this morning so upset me that I went for a long walk. I have just returned," said Horace.

He waited expectantly, but Mr. Pike went on abstractedly, "One wore clothes of gray," and seemed to be absorbed in his work, so that Horace was forced to go on.

"I have been even more upset by what I have just learned."

"Why, that's too bad," answered Pike, fishing for a nut in the bottom of the tonneau.

"It is too bad—absurdly—monstrously bad! Lady Creech tells me that my sister did you the honor to present you to the family with which we are forming an alliance—at least to a portion of it"—

"Yes, sir," answered Pike, "and promised to present me to the whole possetucky of 'em"—

"I'll not listen to you!" cried Horace in a rage. "And I warn you that we shall act without paying the slightest attention to you!"

Pike straightened up a trifle.

"Your sister kind of hinted in her letter that you think a good deal of this French lady—the widow. I suppose you have made up your mind to take her for richer or poorer, eh? Now, what's she going to give you?"

Horace stopped short in horrified amazement.

"Why, I thought you'd charge her something—just a little. Ain't that the way over here?"

"It seems impossible for you to understand our motives in trying to lift ourselves above the common herd. You are trying to interfere between us and the fine flower of Europe," went on Horace excitedly.

Pike straightened up and looked him in the eye quizzically.

"I never heard none of the folks around Kokomo speak of your pa as a 'fine flower,' but we thought a heap of him, and when he married your ma he was glad to get her, and I never heard that he asked for any settlement. When she took him he was a poor man, but if he'd had $750,000 I'll bet he'd 'a' given it for her."

Horace turned short about and retired from the scene. It was evidently impossible to argue with this plebeian. As he went toward the gates he met Almeric and Lady Creech and informed them eloquently of the ill success of his attempt to reason with the lawyer. Then he went out again to the cliff.

Almeric accompanied him a few steps and then turned off to the village, for he said he simply must take another look at that pup. And Lady Creech announced that she intended to have "forty winks" in her own room. Five minutes later Daniel, looking up from a superb rendition of "Dolly Gray," saw her glaring at him from her window.

Then came the Herr von Grollerhagen from the hotel. He was the same calm, imperturbable individual as ever, and he smoked with the languid abandon of a man born to ease. He approached Daniel with a smile.

"You make progress, my friend?" he asked, and Daniel smiled at him.

"Your machine's like a good many people, doc. It's got sand in its gear box."

At that moment Mariano hastened out and fumbled nervously with the lock on the big gates. Von Grollerhagen turned instantly.

"You are locking us in," he said.

"No, herr," replied the servant; "I lock some one out—that bandit who have not been captured. The carabinieri warn all to lock the gates for an hour. Soon they will capture that wicked one. M'sieu, this convict is a Russian."

With a keen glance, Von Grollerhagen waved the man aside. Daniel smiled.

"They've got two companies of the tin soldiers. Out my way the town marshal would have had him yesterday."

"My friend, you are teaching me to respect your country, not by what you brag, but by what you do."

"How's that?" asked Pike.

"I see how a son of that great democracy can apply himself to a dirty machine while his eyes are full of visions of one of its beautiful daughters."

"Doc, there's sand in your gear box!" Then he looked up. "Now, you go down to the kitchen and make signs for some of the help to give you a bunch of nice clean rags."

For an instant the German drew himself up haughtily.

"What is it you ask me to do?"

"Get me some more rags," said Daniel quietly, and Von Grollerhagen bowed low.

"I'd go myself, but it wouldn't be safe to leave the machine."

"You fear this famous bandit would steal it?" laughed the German.

"No; there's parties around here might think it was a settlement."

"My friend," Von Grollerhagen said gravely, "I do not understand."

"That's where we are in the same fix, doc," said Pike, with a chuckle, and bent over the machine again, while Von Grollerhagen departed on his mission.

While Pike worked he thought, and the thoughts finally arrived at the point where he saw that all he had to do to save the girl he had come so far to see was to sit tight on his refusal. He had accurately gauged the noble earl and his interesting son and sister-in-law, and he knew that it was a thousand to one that they would not agree to a marriage if there was no money in sight.

"They'll make more'n one bid for old Simpson's money," he assured himself and then looked up quickly, for the leaves on the pergola were rustling in a way that no wind should have caused.

As he looked the figure of a man appeared over the top of the vines and a pale face looked into his with imploring eyes. Pike looked at him calmly and knew at once that this was the man the carabinieri were pursuing.

"Est ce que vous etes un homme de bon coeur? Je ne suis pas coupable!" ("Are you a kind hearted man? I am not guilty!") he began, when Pike cut him off with a shake of the head.

"There ain't any use in the world your talking to me like that," he said mournfully, and the refugee's eyes gleamed with hope.

"You are an American?" he said, making preparations to descend.

"They haven't made anything else out of me," answered Daniel, and the refugee climbed down and leaned weakly against the car.

"If you give me up I shall not be taken alive! I have no weapon, but I shall find a way to cut my throat!"

"Are you the bandit they're looking for?" asked Daniel, with interest.

"They call me that? How close are they?" asked the other, with sudden fright. Pike looked at the gates and heard a clank of sabers off on the road.

"There!" he said and stripped off his blouse. "Did they see you climb that wall?"

"I think not," murmured the man.

"Do you know anything about automobiles?" asked Daniel, holding out the coat.

"Not a thing in the world," replied the other despairingly.

"Then you're a chauffeur, all right," returned the lawyer, forcing the rough garment on the man. "Here; climb in under that machine, and don't you dare unscrew anything. Pretend you are fixing."

He pushed the refugee toward the machine and saw him wriggle beneath it, then heard Mariano's agitated voice calling in the hotel. An instant later the maitre d'hotel rushed out to the entrance gates and threw them wide open, revealing two carabinieri without, who immediately entered. Then ensued a conversation in Italian that was pure Sanskrit to Pike, who looked on with calm interest. The commandant of the file addressed the lawyer in a long speech, to which Pike smiled and waved a cigar.

"Wishing you many happy returns, colonel," he said genially, and Mariano hastened forward.

"It is the robber of Russia. They think he climb the wall, the assassin. The others, they surround all yonder. These two, they search here. They ask you please, signore, have you seen him climb the wall."

"No," replied Daniel shortly, turning away.

"They ask, then, has any one crossed the lawn?" went on the servant.

"No," replied Daniel, and as he spoke one of the men pointed his gun beneath the car at the figure in the long blouse.

"He ask who that is, signore," said Mariano excitedly, also pointing.

"The new chauffeur for the machine from Paris," answered Pike casually, and, with a bow, the two went off, one to the right and the other to the left. As they disappeared Von Grollerhagen came walking across the grass with some white rags in his hands and an amused smile upon his face.

"Is there a new eruption of Vesuvius?" he asked, waving the cloths.

Daniel met him and took the rags.

"No," he said dryly. "It's an eruption of colonels trying to arrest a high school professor. I've got him under your car there, yonder."

"You are an American?"

The start the German gave would have been ludicrous in any other situation.

"My friend," he said, "do you realize the penalty for protecting a criminal from arrest?"

"I told them he was your chauffeur. We'll be proud of the risk, doc." He turned to the refugee under the machine. "This man owns the car," he went on. "You can trust him the same as your own father." And the German shrugged his shoulders in protest. There was a clatter of arms, and Pike looked up.

"Look out!" he said. "The governor's staff is coming back." And as the carabinieri returned he said casually to Von Grollerhagen:

"You'll have to get a new front tire, doc. That one is pretty near gone. Better have J.m here put on the spare one when he gets through."

The German looked at him.

"Do you know what you are asking me to do?"

"To have a new front tire put on," answered the lawyer. The police were looking on with interest, and finally Mariano approached.

"The carabinieri, with all excuses, beg that you will order the chauffeur to step forth from the machine."

Pike made an exclamation.

"No, sir! I worked on that machine myself for three hours. He's got his hands full of nuts and bolts and screws half fastened. We want to get the job finished. Tell them to go on up Main street with their Knights of Pythias parade and come around some day when we're not busy."

Mariano held a hurried consultation with the carabinieri and turned back.

"Because the chauffeur have been engage today the carabinieri ask ten thousand pardons, but inquire how long he have been known to his employer."

"How long! Why, he was raised on doc's father's farm!"

"If that is so"— began Mariano.

"So? Of course it's so. Tell 'em, doc!"

The German looked at Mariano gravely.

"You have heard my friend say it."

"I have your permission, Herr von Grollerhagen, to reveal your incognito to the carabinieri?"

"Is it necessary?"

"Otherwise they will not depart."

"Very well; tell them. But I rely upon them to preserve my incognito from all others."

Mariano smiled.

"Monseigneur, they depart," and turned to the uniformed men. An instant later these swung through the gate and went their way. Pike looked after them in astonishment.

"He must have mesmerized the militia, eh, doc?" and signed to the refugee to come out from the car. He was a pathetic figure as he emerged and held out his hands.

"To you both I give thanks"— But Von Grollerhagen cut in:

"My American friend has placed himself—and myself—in danger of the penal code of Italy for protecting you. Perhaps you will be good enough to let us know for what we have incriminated ourselves."

CHAPTER XII.

THE NIHILIST.

WITH a hasty glance about the garden to make sure he was not observed, the refugee approached Von Grollerhagen and Daniel and spread out his hands. As he stepped forward there was a movement of the window curtains in the casement above the doorway to the hotel, and he turned; but, whatever had caused it, the movement had ceased and there was nothing apparent.

"The Italian journals call me a brigand," said the Russian, "and in this they are inspired by the Russian legation at Rome. I am known as Ivanoff Ivanovitch, and I have spent nine years in Siberia, nine years of hell. It is ten years ago since I was condemned in St. Petersburg, and you, who know nothing of the horrors of Russian prisons, cannot understand what I have suffered, my friends. I was a professor of languages, a translator in the bureau of the minister of finance, and I was trusted."

For a moment he paused and pressed his scarred hands to his lined forehead, then sighed and went on:

"I was also a member of the Blue Fifty, a Constitutionalist, and as such was able to do a little for the cause, the cause, the same, my friend"—he turned to Pike—"for which your forbears suffered and fought—the cause of liberty. I could do but little, though I tried. At last I transferred the funds of the government to the Society of the Blue Fifty. It was a small thing. It was for the cause—not one ruble for myself. I swear it!"

Von Grollerhagen started back, with a gesture of repulsion, and Ivanovitch held out his hands.

"Not one ruble for myself!" he repeated. "It was for Russia's sake, not mine!"

He paused and went on wearily:

"But I committed the great Russian crime. I was caught, and through treachery. There was an Englishman who lived in Petersburg. He had contracts with the government. I thought he was my friend—my best friend. I had married in my student days in Paris. Ah, it is the old story!" he cried bitterly. "I knew the Englishman admired my wife, but I trusted her, and I trusted him, and he made my house his home. So many have done that thing. I had 50,000 rubles in my desk—the funds I had transferred—to be delivered to my society. One day the police came to search, and they found only me—not my wife, not my English friend, not the 50,000 rubles. I went to Siberia. Now I search for those two."

He leaned against the automobile and pressed his hands over his face, while Pike and Von Grollerhagen glanced at each other sorrowfully. Finally the latter asked:

"It was they who sent the police?" And Ivanovitch replied vigorously:

"After they had taken the money and were beyond the frontier themselves. That is all I have against them."

For a moment the hunted look left his eyes, and into them came the ravenous gleam of the hunting, starving wolf. His fingers clasped and unclasped themselves spasmodically, and there was a set look about his jaws that spoke ill for the guilty pair should they ever meet this man with the manacles off his hands.

The lawyer shuddered slightly as he gazed at him, and he laughed a short, hard laugh.

"Looks to me as if that would be about enough to have against them," he said. Von Grollerhagen stood combing his wiry beard with strong fingers and evidently studying the case. At last he spoke.

"Then by your own confession you are an embezzler and a revolutionist," he said, and at Ivanovitch's start of

"Not one ruble for myself. I swear it!"

abject misery and contrition Pike stepped forward and laid his hand on the German's arm.

"The man's down," he said gently. "You wouldn't go back on him now?" He waited an instant and then chuckled grimly in a thin, humorous way. "Besides, you've made yourself one of his confederates, doc," he finished.

As he spoke Von Grollerhagen glanced at him quickly, and his eyes took on a tinge of surprise.

"Upon my soul, but I have, my friend!" Then he laughed outright. "Ah, from the first sight of you in the hotel at Napoli I saw that you were a great man."

Daniel looked at him and grinned in his face.

"What you doing, doc—running for congress?" he asked, and the German joined him in the humor of the situation and then turned gravely to the Russian.

"I fear the carabinieri did not depart without suspicion."

LAWS EFFECTIVE JULY 4

Anti-Saloon Sign Measure One of Many to Become Operative Then.

"JOY" RIDES ARE CRIMINAL.

All Vehicles to Carry Lights—Inheritance Tax and Primary Law Changes—Other New Laws.

Besides the law requiring brewery and other liquor signs to be taken from saloons, there are several important statutes enacted by the 1909 Legislature that will become effective on July 4. Where the ast itself fixes no date upon which it shall become effective, the Constitution provides that Independence Day shall mark the beginning of its operation. While the New Jersey State Brewers' Association is in favor of the Eppinger anti-liquor law, Philadelphia brewers have taken steps to contest it, and will make some move in the courts before July 4. Violation of this constitutes a misdemeanor.

One of the laws to become operative on the nation's birthday was put through by Colonel Austen Colgate, Essex Assemblyman. It requires that every horse-drawn vehicle shall carry a light or lights from one hour after sunset to one hour before sunrise, the light to be visible fom front and rear for a distance of at least 250 feet. Penalty for failure to live up to this law is $1 fine. It does not in any way affect motor vehicle legislation.

The anti-"joy-ride" law is another that will go into effect next month. This act makes it a misdemeanor to drive a motor vehicle for any wager for the purpose of breaking any speed record, or for anw person to drive such vehicle while in an intoxicated condition, or without the positive consent of the owner thereof, on after his license shall willfully fail to display proper registration marks.

On the date mentioned the act amending the primary election law will become operative. This act provides a more definite record for the voting at the primary elections to prevent the voters of one party from voting in the ballot box of the opposite party, thereby "packing" the primary in the interest of certain nominations. In the new act the prohibition against voting in the primary box instead of putting opposite the name of each voter on the registry list the initial of his party, such as "R" for Republican or "D" for Democrat, the new law provides that there shall be, in addition to the registry lists, two books, or lists, one for each political party, "which shall be called and labeled Republican primary book and Democratic primary book, or as the case may be."

The Board of Registry and Election is required to write the name of each voter in ink in the primary book of the party in whose box he deposits his ballot. These books must be signed by the members of the election board and preserved until the next primary election for reference then as to how each voter cast his ballot the year previous.

The new 5 per cent. inheritance tax is another one which takes effect July 4. Religious bequests and transfers and bequests to immediate relatives are exempted. The tax is to be imposed upon the transfer of property, real or personal, of the value of $500 or over, and is made a lien upon the property until paid.

The other new laws in this class are the following: Providing for competitive examinations the first Friday and Saturday in June, each year, for the free scholarships at the State Agricultural College at New Brunswick; amending the Monmouth county act for the purchase of armories in third class counties in this State by making it apply to all the counties in the State; to the playground act, providing that playground commissions may provide for outdoor exhibitions, games and contests and charge a reasonable admission thereto, provided that the commission shall not employ any playground for any such purpose for more than eight hours in any week, and no admission shall be charged children under 12 years of age.

The Ackerman employers' liability act and the teachers' tenure of office act both take effect September 1 next. The new act relating to the certification of births and deaths takes effect October 1, 1909. The act incorporating the First Judicial District of Hudson county takes effect January 1, 1910.

The last section of the laws for this year will be delivered by the printer in a few days and then the completed volume will be distributed. The State law requires that the statutes shall be ready for distribution by July 4.

The volume will contain the complete code giving the State standard for the purity of food.

Others Will Be.

When Crazy Snake is captured,
And they fix the tariff bill,
There'll be other freaks, I reckon,
That the pages front will fill.

MARRIAGE AS A BUSINESS PROPOSITION.

A unique plan for putting married life on a business basis is out-lined in the Woman's Home Companion for June. Says this magazine:

"The first matter to consider is the amount of assets available. This, of course, amounts to exactly what the outside world considers the services of the producing partner to be worth. This income must be divided to meet the various expenses of the business under a general classification as follows:

"First: General Operating Expense—This is the most important department of all, and includes food, servants, fuel, light, rent (or interest and taxes).

"Second: Sinking Fund—This is also a most important account, and should not for any reason be overlooked. Upon it depends absolutely the prsperity of the firm through periods of financial depression. It includes savings-bank deposits and life-insurance premiums.

"Third: Repairs and Deprecation—This is often considered a part of the operating expense, but it is better kept separate. It includes depreciation of the plant, and on equipment, such as dishes, cooking utensile, furniture, bed and table linen.

"Fourth: The Contingent Fund—This includes church dues, charities, theatre tickets, telephone and books and magazines.

"Fifth: Emergency Fund—this includes doctor, druggist and dentist.

"In order to transact business on a sound basis, all of these funds must be considered. What remains of the capital may be divided between the partners as a salary. From their salaries the partners must pay their personal expenses of clothing and incidentals. The size of the salaries, therefore, depends entirely upon the economical management of the affairs of the firm. It is unwise to raise salaries at the expense of the sinking fund, though this is often a temptation! In case the partners feel that their salaries are not large enough, it is better to appoint an investigating committee to eliminate petty graft and extravagance. They should examine carefully the operating expense. It is sometimes economical for a domestic firm to build its own plant, instead of hiring one, and it is often possible, by engaging in outside industry, such as kitchen gardening or poultry raising, to reduce the food expense, and save money in the emergency fund."

THE OLD CLASS.

"Why, Father, is it really you?
I ain't saw you since '82—
Or was it June of '83?
Eh? Surely you remember me!"
The Bishop questioningly scans
With kindly eyes teh ragged man's
Rude aspect, and assays to trace
Some look familiar in his face.
"No?" says the man, and his bleared eyes
Wear something of a pained surprise;
"We went to school together then—
Eh? Yes, you've got me now! I'm Ben.
How things have changed since them old days,
The old boys scattered different ways—
Who? Me? Oh, yes, I'm doin' fine;
Though things is quiet in my line,
I've got a little scheme in sight
That's certain sure to pan out right
The other boys? They—tell the truth—
Ain't filled the promises o' their youth.
Most of the fellows in our class
Has pretty nearly gone to grass.
Bill had h isfather's store, but failed,
And Johnny Brown's in Texas—jailed;
Jack White was workin' in a store,
But I don't see him much no more—
And so it goes with all the rest,
Good fellows, chances of the best,
And yet they couldn't stand the test,
In fact, when all is said and done,
Not one of our old class, not one
Of all them boys that once we knew Amounts to much but me and you!"
—T. A. Daly, The Catholic Standard and Times.

THE HELPLESS ONES.

I have to weep o'er stories that they print in magazines,
So full am I of sympathy with all those woeful scenes
In which the authors mix the folks—poor souls!—that they put through Such dreadful complications full of misery and rue.

In real life you can help a man, no matter what his pain,
'Tis possible to lift him up onto his feet again,
If he does wrong there's hope ahead, if someone points the way,
Or if he's plunged in darkness, you can lead him to the day.

But in the magazines, alas! there's no escape at all,
Once printed, bound and published and spread out upon a stall,
Their doom is sealed forevermore, and of their bitter cup
They drink, and drink, and drink, and drink, till someone burns them up.

NINETEEN ARE GRADUATED

Rev. Dr. Noble, President of Women's College, Makes the Address.

THE YALE CUP WAS AWARDED.

William D. Murray Anwers Bishop McFaul at N. P. H. S. Commencement.

In contra-distinction to the City High School graduating class, the class of 1909 of the North Plainfield High School was composed of thirteen young women and six of the opposite sex and they made a picture good to look upon as they sat in a semi-circle on the stage of the New Plainfield theatre last night. The stage itself was a picture in its handsome floral decorations, giving a distinctive tone to the proceedings. The house was full and comparatively cool.

The exercises opened with an invocation by Rev. J. O. McKelvey and was followed by the Salutatory, read by Miss Mary Frances La Porte, the text of which will be found on another page of this paper. Two songs from Gaul's "Joan of Arc" were sung by the High School chorus under the direction of Herbert Lloyd and they were very well rendered. The valedictory which followed, and which is printed on another page, written by Miss Hazel De Forest Rose, was repeated from memory by Miss Jennie Olive Nelson, who received long continued applause for her effort.

After the address by Rev. Eugene Allen Noble, D. D., LL. D., a synopsis of which is below, the chorus rendered two more songs and were heatrily applauded.

President Eugene A. Noble, of the Women's College of Baltimore, conveyed the greetings of his institution to the high school at Plainfield, and then delivered an address on "The Higest Form of Greatness." He stated that it was not possible to define the word "great," or the word "greatness" in any exact way. When either word is correctly used, people commonly recognize its appropriateness. A recognition of real greatness comes close to being one of the universals of human judgment. He then stated that it would be impossible to make up a complete list of those whom the world honored as great. He referred to various attempts to do this in such publications as the "Dictionary of National Biography" in Great Britain, "The American Cyclopedia of Biography" in this country, and the various volumes of "Who's Who." Greatness, as related to human personality, is too extensive to be confined within the bindings of books in a library. The next point he made was that it was easily possible to classify the persons who have been considered as really great.

Attention was called to certain books that classify greatness as related to personality. Plutarch's "Lives of Illustrious Men," Emerson's "Representative Men," Carlyle's "Heroes and Hero-Worship" undertake to classify great persons along very simple lines. President Noble declared that if correct definition were given to the terms of classification, all human greatness would fall into three classes. Men and women are great, he said, in only three ways, provided that the terms used are rightly defined. They are great as poets, as statesmen, and as prophets. His definition of the word "poet" was derived from the Greek, and meant a person who did an original thing that was of advantage to other people. A new conception of poetry is made possible by thinking in the terms of the Greek verb, instead of in the terms of the abused English word. Poets, rightly conceived, are pioneers. They stake out the new ground to be occupied by humanity. All brave souls that repudiate traditions, conventionalities, and prudential limitations, and go forward in new ways, have the gift of poetry.

Dr. Noble defined statesmen as those who determined the regulations and laws, which obtain in society. He defined prophets as those who give meaning in terms of morals to the efforts which affect human life. The poets are the world's pioneers, the statesmen are the world's adjusters, the prophets are the world's interpreters. On the basis of these definitions, greatness is recognized and acknowledged. He then called attention to a surprising statement made in the New Testament concerning John the Baptist, where it is said that he is the greatest man born of woman, but as if that statement were not surprising enough, it is followed up by another one that says, "He that is least in the Kingdom of God is greater than he."

President Noble then undertook to show what was meant by being least

COMMERCIAL EDUCATION

The Subject of Miss Hazel DeForest Rose's Valedictory Address.

"The Need of a Commercial Education" was the subject of Miss Hazel De Forest Rose as valedicatorian at the North Plainfield High School commencement exercises last night at the New Plainfield theatre. Miss Rose's address follows:

At the present time the question as to whether we are in need of greater facilities for a good commercial education is being given more attention than ever before. Our country is expanding, the struggle for control of new markets is becoming sharp, and there is great need of a thorough understanding of the laws of trade and the manner of doing business. This need has for half a century been recognized in European countries which found themselves outdistanced in commercial pursuits, called upon by the conditions of their national life to enter upon new methods. It has resulted in the founding of several schools for commercial education of different grades, which have already become distinguished in the establishing of some phases of commercial education which are new and important.

In this country the movement has attracted sufficient attention for the universities of Pennsylvania, California and Chicago, as well as Columbia, to announce special courses of instruction in commercial subjects, but it seems to have gained little genuine recognition, for even these courses seem to have been established more for the benefit of the local institutions than from any conviction that the need is a permanent one. This is shown by an article in the "Independent" by President Irving, of the Western Reserve University, in which he writes deprecatingly of the movement, implying that a good education in law or in the counting house is all that is necessary for the special training of a merchant and that the ordinary business college is sufficient for all other needs.

This opinion, however, is founded on a complete misunderstanding of the situation and a lack of knowledge as to the actual demands of our present business world. It is not a question of what constitutes the quickest way for those who have to support themselves to enter into a successful business career, for this question is answered by the ordinary business college. It is a larger question and one which the answer, "something just as good," will not serve. The rapid development of the business life of our country and the wide diffusion of wealth have given us a number of young men, successors of fathers who have developed large and successful enterprises in the business world. Now, the question is how can these young men best fit themselves not only to carry on their business successfully but to be able to compete in the world's markets and take charge of some of the largest trusts that have ever been known?

This is the larger side of the question and one which does not appeal to all. But it does in the end mean a good, practical, commercial education. Many graduates from high schools know a great deal of history and can answer all sorts of abstract questions, but these are not practical for their business career. They cannot figure compound interest or keep a good set of books and they cannot do many of the things necessary in the ordinary business routine. From this it may be plainly seen that the business world needs practical all round commercial graduates who can fill more than office boy positions and will be a pride to the school that graduated them.

This may not be true in cases in which a living needs not be earned; but how many of those who have to earn their own livelihood go out into the world poorly equipped for the difficulties they will encounter! They must spend all their lives try-

NEW DOG CATCHER NAMED

William Bryant, Sworn in Today, Will Also Be Canine Undertaker.

MORE DOG OWNERS AT COURT.

Howard Hankerson, Whose Friends Will "Chip In" to Buy a Dog License, Gets Time Extension.

"If I've got to wear this thing while I'm workin', I can see where I'm going to be hot," were the first words of Dog Catcher and Canine Undertaker William Bryant, of West Third street, after Mayor C. J. Fisk had administered the oath of office and Chief Kiely had pinned the large "special officer" badge on his shirt. Bryant got his job by chance this morning, for he was selected as likely-looking material for a dog catcher by the Mayor, after a consultation with City Judge Runyon, as he sat in the court room.

Dog-Catcher Keiderling has transferred his canine pursuits to the borough, 'tis said, and as the "dog days" are upon us, and some cerberean vagrants are still around town, the Mayor took the opportunity to appoint a new man. Introduced to His Honor by Chief Kiely, Bryant took occasion to speak at length of his pleasure at meeting Mr. Fisk. "I've been a residenter here for thirteen years," he said, "but I've never met you, Mr. Fisk."

In addition to gathering in vagrant dogs from the highways, Dog-Catcher Bryant will be canine undertaker, and will bury the brutes dispatched by the police for not wearing licenses. He will collect money for this last service from the dog owners.

Howard Hankerson, colored, was at court to petition for an extension of time about a license for a dog at his home. "It ain't my dog, Judge," he said, "but me and some other fellows think we'd like to keep it and we're goin' to get a license. Only thing is that we ain't goin' to have any money until next Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock. You see, we're goin' to chip in and get the license, and everybody's strapped except one of us. He gave me a quarter toward the license, but I guess we'll have to wait 'til Tuesday for the rest." Judge Runyon granted this special dispensation.

Mrs. Mary McPherson said she didn't want her dog any more, and told Undertaker Martin to stop around Monday morning and get the body from her home. William Spring, the eight-year-old son of Mrs. Emma Spring, colored, also reported that their dog was too expensive a luxury. According to Williiam, the dog is "half fox terrier and half bull-dog," but when the court questioned him, he couldn't tell which half was which. The interment will be on Monday.

LINES GROO FINED $4; HAD NO DOG LICENSES

Lines Groo, of East Second street, the owner of the family of biting dogs, was fined $4 for not having proper licenses for them at the city court today, when Judge William N. Runyon announced his decision in the case, heard in the city court several days ago. "This court has no jurisdiction in the biting complaints," said the Judge, "and those complaints must be settled by civil suits, if the principals deem it advisable. I have found out that no license was secured for Mr. Groo's dogs until the action was begun. Mr. Groo, I learned, gave directions for the securing of licenses some time ago, but it was 'forgotten' by the person secured by Mr. Groo to get them. When the licenses were secured, they were not the right kind. Mr. Groo is therefore guilty of harboring four dogs without securing a license for them, and I fine him a dollar for each violation."

Francis J. Blatz represents Mr. Groo. It is probable that the three bitten persons will bring legal action against the dog owner.

GAVE A TALK ON ITALY

Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph Illustrated His Remarks at Y.M.C.A.

PICTURES OF EARTHQUAKE.

Lecture For Benefit of the Local Protestant Italian Mission.

Under the auspices of the religious work department of the Y. M. C. A. having charge of the Italian Missiop work here, L. V. F. Randolph gave an interesting illusrtated lecture at the association hall, last night. He displayed a large number of views taken by himself in Italy, following the great earthquake, and related numerous interesting incidents in connection with his recent travels through that country.

Mr. Randolph spoke in praise of the Italian and of the prominent position that people occupy today in the world's affairs. His views showed in part the awful results of the earthquake in Italy, but explained that the natives are struggling bravely against great odds in their efforts to rebuild and recover from their fearful loss.

The views were shown first and then Mr. Randolph gave his lecture. Rev. Lewis Bond, who is chairman of the committee in charge of the Italian work here, presided and introduced Mr. Randolph. Afterward Theodore Borretti, the Italian who is in charge of the work among Italians here, made a few remarks, showing the progress being made. He said that there is an average attendance of about forty Italians at the Sunday morning religious service and about twenty-five at the Sunday-school. A class in English started for the Italians, which meets Wednesday night, has an attendance of about twenty-five. This work is supported by the young people's societies of the local churches, and the annual expense is about $600.

Mr. Borretti is the protege of Rev. Charles Stelvle, of New York, and was a former student at the Bible Teachers' Training School, New York. He is thoroughly competent for this work and has met with remarkable success during the short time he has been in Plainfield. At the close of the lecture a collection was received for the Italian work here.

New Church to Hold Festival.

Although the Netherwood Reformed church building, which is to be of a portable character, has not yet been completed, the Ladies' Guild of that church has arranged to hold a lawn festival on the grounds, at Midway and Leland avenues, one block from East Second street, Tuesday night, July 13, at 6:30 o'clock. There will be a sale of home-made cake, candy, ice cream and refreshments. The enterprise of those interested in this work in forming a ladies' guild is an encouraging sign to those at the head of the movement.

MAYORS ISSUE APPEAL

Fisk and Townsend Request That Residence Be Decorated for Celebration.

IN BOTH CITY AND BOROUGH.

Red, White and Blue Adorn Many Business Houses Already—Homes to Be Decorated.

Mayors Fisk and Townsend, of the city and borough, respectively, as joint chairmen of the citizens' committee, made a general appeal to the residents of both Plainfield and North Plainfield to decorate their residences for Charter Day, July 5, 6 and 7. Already many of the business houses are gayly adorned and before the middle of next week, it is expected that the entire business section will be a mass of red, white and blue. The appeal of the mayors supplements that of A. E. Force, chairman of the committee on decorations, who asks that the property owners along the line of march decorate their houses appropriately.

"There will be thousands of visitors in Plainfield, particularly on Monday, July 5," said Mayor Charles J. Fisk, today. "For that reason we should appear at our best and not only extend the very best sort of hospitality to our guests but should show them that Plainfield never does anything on the half. For that reason, Mayor Townsend and I are particularly anxious that every residence be decorated even though it be by a single flag. Something is better than nothing and we think the loyal, patriotic and devoted people who are ever intensely interested in their home town should strive to make this Charter Day celebration a huge success.

"This is as much a North Plainfield demonstration as it is a Plainfield one," said Mayor Townsend, in explaining the request for decorating. "I am awfully anxious that our people 'over the brook' do their share towards decorating and I am sure they will."

Juniors and Boys' Club Outing.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society and the Boys' Club of the Park Avenue Baptist church, to the number of thirty, enjoyed the annual outing at Washington Rock yesterday. The young folks were chaperoned by Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Finn. During the afternoon the young people spent the time playing all kinds of games, and refreshments were a feature. The company had a fine view of the thunder storm which passed over and around Plainfield, but the rain did not interfere with the outing.

INVESTIGATED WOOD CASE

American Institute for Scientific Research Studies Strange Murder.

"THE LITTLE BLACK MAN."

Psychological Phenomena Interests Scientists Who Complete Investigation.

The American Institute for Scientific Research has just returned to Codington & Swackhamer the evidence taken in the George Wood murder case, which was tried in 1905. This was probably one of the most interesting cases of the kind in recent years. George Williams, a well-to-do grocer, residing at Watchung, was murdered on the Warrenville road one day, while visiting his customers.

The dead body was found in a sleigh by neighbors, and the search for the murderer continued for several days, finally leading to New York, where George Wood was arrested and after a sensational trial, was found guilty of the charge of murder. The trial was remarkable in many ways, one peculiar feature being that the defense claimed that Wood had been mysteriously accompanied through all his strange wanderings by a "Little Black Man," who directed his movements and never for a moment quitted him.

The introduction of the "Little Black Man" in the case resulted in the enormous sale of little black men all over the country. S. S. Swackhamer, who was assigned by the Supreme Court to defend Wood, was associated with Attorney George Bird.

The record of the evidence was obtained by Dr. James H. Hyslop, of this institute, some time ago for the purpose of psychic research, the case showing some extraordinary psychological phenomena. During the progress of the trial sixteen newspaper reporters were in constant attendance and over 33,000 words were telegraphed to the local and New York and Philadelphia papers direct from court.

The case excited a wide interest and during its continuance defendant's counsel received communications concerning it from scientific men in various parts of the country. Five eminent alienists from New York city volunteered their services, and working with Dr. Hall, Wood's New York family physician, and Dr. Lufburrow, of this city, devoted weeks to the preparation and maintenance of the defense, and though the State produced thirty-five witnesses against the defendant he was kept from the electric chair and was given a sentence that will confine him for twenty years in State prison at Trenton, where he is now serving his time.

In opening the defense to the jury Mr. Swackhamer stated that Wood had been mysteriously accompanied through all his strange wanderings by a Little Black Man, who directed all his movements and never for a moment quitted him. This little black man, Dr. Parker demominated the Psychic Aura. This Psychic Aura or little black man was afterwards put into concrete form by some enterprising manufacturer of New York city and little black men sold along the streets. Mr. Swackhamer, who was assigned by the Supreme Court to defend Wood, was associated with Lawyer George Bird in the trial, and a short time ago both counsel visited the defendant at the State prison where they found him in much the same condition which he had shown during the trial.

ing to do something better, but not succeeding because thousands who have had a better education than they, are far ahead of them. Of course, it is possible to work one's way to a high place in spite of the lack of a commercial education; but how many weary months of toil and learning by hard experience might have been saved! A boy who has to earn his own living has a great advantage if, before attempting to battle with the world, he is armed with the powers which a commercial education can give him. Starting out with good equipment for success, one-half of the battle is already won. On the other hand, take a boy or a girl with no commercial education who must earn his own living. He must start from the bottom of the ladder and only by unremitting toil can he climb higher. Of course, if he is bright, energetic, and able, he may learn from observation; but the drawbacks thus presented are obvious. A person with a good education along the commercial line would rather have a young man or a young woman who understands what is required of him, and can perform his duties faithfully and well. Such a one has all the essentials at his fingertips and his mind is more fully developed to assimilate the fine points of the business.

A business education teaches young men and young women the best methods of conducting business. Business men look with more favor on commercial schools than they did ten years ago. They have found that graduates are well trained, and are able to do what is expected of them. The value of a commercial education is recognized in the rapidity with which commercial courses are being established in all of the leading high schools.

Long before it became an important factor in the courses of our high schools, its value was recognized in the establishment of business. The number of business colleges in the United States in 1907 was 445, with 2,856 instructors, and 137,364 students. This shows something of the important place which the business college has taken in the educational field. However, since commercial subjects have been so widely introduced into the high school, there has been a visible decrease in the number of pupils at the business colleges. These institutions soon recognized the importance of doing more advanced work. They saw that if they did not raise their standards they must necessarily die out, since a much higher grade of work was taught in the high schools. In order then, to keep up their line of work, the business colleges were forced to increase their requirements considerably, and as a result, they stand much higher than a few years ago.

The increasing demand for a commercial education, as shown by the larger number of colleges and schools which have taken up the subject, is, therefore, partly due to the changed conditions of things at the present time from conditions years ago. The commercial life is taking a larger place in the world than ever before, whereas formerly a young man was urged to become a professional man, now he goes into business for a successful career. When the commercial relations of a nation extend throughout all continents, when its mercantile and naval marine is equipped for the very best service, and its flag waves over many continents, it has need of merchants of intelligence, financiers of wisdom, and inventive and enterprising organizers.

Then too, the changed condition surrounding women cannot be forgotten. Commercial education has opened up a wider field of work for women than has anything else. Stenography and typewriting are the "open sesame" through which women may pass to the industrial world. Now women may enter all lines of profession save the army and navy. A few years ago according to Harriet Martineau, only seven occupations were open to women—teaching, needle-work, keeping boarders, cotton mill work, book binding, typesetting and household service. From 1890 to 1900 the increase in women workers in eighty-six occupations can be traced in a large measure to the commercial training.

The evolution of business training may be divided into three well marked stages. First, the business college stage, then the adoption of some branches of business subjects in the the high schools, and lastly the separate commercial high school. From this it may be plainly seen that the business college was the first evidence of the recognition of the importance of a commercial education by the people. Finally bookkeeping crept into the high schools and then stenography, until at last the entire commercial course was adopted.

Our advance in civilization, which is through the growth of our commerce and other things related to the business world, demands a commercial education. We must remember that at the highest point of civilization in other countries business was at a high mark. Take Venice, for example. When its commercial pursuits were at their highest its civilization had also reached its zenith, and upon the decline of bus-

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

"GOING SOME."

Last Monday evening marked the premiere performance of a new comedy entitled "Going Some," presented by the Messrs. Shubert, at the Belasco theatre. The new play scored an instant success and will no doubt fill David Belasco's 42d street playhouse with amused and enthusiastic audiences throughout the spring and summer months.

[NEW YORK HERALD.]

"'Going Some' is comedy on the jump. Brisk moving play at the Belasco delights a first-night audience. After the fall of the final curtain the large and enthusiastic audience was glad the authors had come from the West, glad because they have written a wholesome, clever comedy that is a winner."

[NEW YORK AMERICAN.]

"'Going Some' starts well on opening night. A new farce comedy entitled 'Going Some' was presented at the Belasco theatre last night before a tremendous audience. The play scored a triumph from the very outset."

"PAULINE."

Pauline—Dr. Pauline, the celebrated French hypnotist and greatest of psychological demonstrators—the man whose legitimate and truly wonderful demonstrations of mind over matters are now the most sensational feature of vaudeville, has hitched his star to the William Morris band-wagon, and commencing on Monday, June 21, he will open for a fortnight's engagement at the American Music Hall.

Pauline, who has proven the greatest drawing card ever played at the Hammerstein or Percy G. Williams houses and his popularity has grown to such an extent (and the demand for his services in equal proportion) that his salary has been tripled in less than six weeks.

Last week Pauline was drawing $1,500 as the top-line feature in an opposition house in Brooklyn. In a week his salary has leaped to the surprising altitude of $2,500 and will continue at that figure for three weeks, then graduating down to $1,750 for the summer months, only to soar again to the $2,000 mark, where it will remain stationary for next season under the William Morris management. This is the highest salary ever paid for a performance of the kind, but then, Pauline's marvelous demonstrations surpass those of all the Kennedy's, Svengalis and the great army of imitators.

ness, civilization began to fall.

It has been aptly said that when a system has come abreast of the times the question is "what next!" and if our educational system started with Harvard and came down to the kindergarten, will not the commercial high school come next?

It is true that we do not care for an education that has for its only ideal a high salary. However powerful this argument may be, we still want an education that gives us good citizens, who are patroitic, and who will serve their country to the best advantage. But does not the commercial education do this just as much as any other line of training?

It is of great importance also to remember that a commercial education furnishes mental training and development similar to that of any other education. Of course, the commercial course has no languages or at least not more than one, but we must remember that the object of the study of the languages is culture and it can train the mind no more to solve the problems of life than can the study of shorthand and typewriting. The commercial course is a training of the hands as well as the mind, but that does not give it an inferior place beside the other courses. After a pupil has taken four years of history, four years of English, and at least one language, besides the commercial subjects, is he not entitled to just as great credit as one who has graduated from another course? His mind must necessarily be developed to the same degree as one who has graduated from a classical course. That education is most valuable which enables its possesor to meet the greatest number of problems that are likely to present themselves, and does not the commercial course do this for one who anticipates a business career? The commercial course, to a high degree, cultivates disciplined habits of thought and this is one of the general aims of all education. A commercial education of a general kind, including all the subjects contained in a high school commercial course is what we need, not the study of only a few commercial subjects such as shorthand and typewriting. The result of specialization is a narrow training along one line which may prove of no value to the possessor. But, in general, a student who has mastered the subjects of the commercial course shows just as much aptitude in mastering the subjects of the classical course as the student of the classical course shows in taking up commercial subjects. This indicates that his mind is just as fully developed and ready to assimilate new lines of thought.

Now, for a moment, let us look at the results of the demand for business training in Europe. In Germany large universities and academies have been established. In these there are now three thousand commercial students, three hundred and ninety of whom are foreigners from countries where no provision is made for that kind of training. The Berlin and Leipzig universities are the most important of these. In Switzerland commercial education is on a higher plane than anywhere else, due to the peculiar conditions of the commercial class. Owing to their thorough knowledge, Swiss business men have acquired a high reputation in the business world and Swiss clerks have won prominent positions in foreign firms. In Great Britain too, efforts are made in behalf of commercial education of the higher kind. An experiment was recently made at Victoria University of Manchester.

The subject has also received attention in France since 1870. The government has organized no schools of this kind, but it has encouraged the work of the Chambers of Commerce in this direction. In Belgium there are several institutions in which only commercial branches are taught. The Commercial Institute in Antwerp was founded in 1852 by the joint efforts of the government and the municipal authorities.

Now, for a moment, let us look at our own commercial department. It was organized in the fall of 1898. There were no commercial graduates this first year, but many of the graduates of 1898 took positions after one year's work in the commercial department. The class of 1900 had several commercial graduates, all of whom completed the three years' course in two years. From the following classes there were many three-year commercial graduates who have obtained good positions soon after graduation and who have been able to compete successfully with graduates from other schools. In 1905 the commercial course was changed from three to four years so we had no commercial graduates in 1907. This year there are five students graduating from the four year commercial course, and many of those graduating from other courses have taken many commercial subjects.

One of the reasons for the pupils' success in business is that they learn to do things without being told to do them. We have been taught to do things our own way so long as we violated no principle and were neat, accurate, and rapid. We have been taught subject mater, but also many other things in our high school commercial course which all count for success in life. With an ever increasing field of business opportnuity, with free courses of study of substanital value, and with earnest pupils to pursue these courses, the business world will be the gainer by receiving from our high schools graduates trained to do the work with intelligence and fidelity.

Now, members of the faculty, and fellow students in the class of 1909, the time has come for us to say farewell. These four long years we have striven side by side to obtain all that our high school could give us, we have developed our souls and bodies together, till now at last we have come to a parting of the paths. we have come to the cross-roads and each dear fellow student must take a separate path. No more will we strive to aid each other in our joys and sorrows. But in the vista of years stretching before many of us we shall never forget our relations with each other, these past four years will always be a spot of bright light though all the rest of our lives be filled with sunshine and shadow.

Our teachers and friends have watched over us faithfully and now that we are about to go out into the world to fight the battles of life let us always be a credit to the dear school that graduated us and the kind instructors who have taught us so carefully. Let us prove to them that they have not labored in vain and that we appreciate their earnest efforts in our behalf.

Also, may each one of us be a good citizen of our glorious union, always remembering the flag of our country that we first learned to love in our school days. Let us always carry in our hearts our beautiful class motto, "Truth conquers all things."

To all those who have been associated with us in the past four years and who have helped to make them the brightest of our lives we extend our heartfelt thanks, and I am sure that I may echo the thoughts of each member of the class when I say that all of their kind acts will always be gratefully remembered.

Once more, to the members of the Board of Education, to our Superintendent, to each member of the faculty, and lastly to each dear member of the class we say, "Farewell!"

Four Unlicensed Dogs Shot.

Because their owners declared that they didn't want to be bothered with them any longer, four dogs were shot by the police yesterday. They belonged to Frank Dalley, Michael Walsh, Mrs. Maden and B. Montague, who were among those rounded up by the police yesterday for not having secured dog licenses. Eleven of those brought before City Judge Runyon as violators of the ordinance have secured licenses already, and the others must get them today. The police are now busy subpoenaeing other owners of unlicensed dogs.

Out of seven times at the bat on Wednesday, Cree of the New York Americans made one hit.

Frank Chance, of the Cubs, is still out of the game with his injured shoulder and is likely to be for a month or two at least.

Mathewson added two victories to his credit on Wednesday in the games with Boston. "Big Six" can always be depended upon at the critical time.

Orange Y. M. C. A. vs. Plainfield Y. M. C. A. at Crescent Oval this afternoon. The fans should see a fast game.

"Dave" Driscoll's New Brunswick team will play the Plainfield Baseball Club on Crescent Oval, on Saturday, July 3, and there should be a record-breaking crowd. Jack Martin is playing short for the New Brunswick aggregation and Jimmy Clinton is the team's Saturday box artist.

Jiggs Donahue has strengthened the Washington team wonderfully. A clever brainy player is always sure to make good in major league company.

Brooklyn after losing fifteen out of sixteen games played in the west, returned home and fell upon the Phillies for a double-header and got away with both.

Ward Miller, of the Red outfield, is proving one of the season's great sensations. His best work has been shown against the Pirates and Cubs, both of whom turned him down without scarcely a trial.

Ortleib, who is pitching for the Plainfield team this season, has already proved his ability. His work is worthy of close attention on the part of the fans. He is being ably caught by Seery.

The Plainfield Baseball Club will appear at New Brunswick today for the first time in new white uniforms. They are natty and have been favorably commented upon.

The New Brunswick baseball fans are agitated over the question of who shall play the short-stop position on the team—Jack Martin, of this city, or Reinacker. On performance Martin has the call at present. That he is well thought of in New Brunswick can be judged by the following from the New Brunswick Times:

"He has appeared here four times, once last year on the Clinton Avenue team of Plainfield, and three times this year, once with Sayreville and twice, in Saturday games with the Brunswicks. On every occasion he has made good as a fielder and has in addition demonstrated his rare ability to hit when a wallop is needed.

"In the two games in which he has played on the Brunswicks he has been up against medicore pitchers, one a college boy, and this is no criterion of his hitting ability, but last year he took a round trip from Case's delivery and this season, in the Sayreville game he got next to Andy Coakley for two safeties. Whether he will be able to hit the class of pitchers which usually perform here on Sundays remains to be seen, but the boy looks good for the money.

"During the two games he has played here, he has fielded 1,000 and has batted .825. During this time he has been at bat eight times and has made six assists, some difficult, and one put out."

YANKEE PLAYER LEADS FIELD IN BIG GOLF TOURNAMENT.

The unusual spectacle of a home-bred American golfer leading the field at the end of the first thirty-six holes of play in a national open golf championship tournament was witnessed at Englewood, yesterday, when Tom McNamara, of the Wollaston Golf Club, returned rounds of 73 and 69 for 142. McNamara learned the game as a boy in Boston.

It was an interesting incident that McNamara had for his partner, "Marty" O'Loughlin, the professional from the Plainfield Country Club, but unfortunately, the latter had to withdraw after the morning because of illness, the excessive heat being too much. It is confidently believed that had O'Loughlin been able to continue, he would have made McNarama hustle still more to finish first in the opening day's play.

Electrocuted in Mid-Air.

Lance McLain, of Trenton, a lineman, was electrocuted at Rumson yesterday while splicing a feed wire. His companions had moved up the road, and when they returned they found his dead body dangling from the wires. Several men climbed a pole and after great difficulty brought the body to the ground. McLain leaves a widow and three children at Trenton.

ECHO SOCIAL CLUB HOLD LAST DANCE OF SEASON

The Echo Social Club, an auxiliary to the T. A. B., held its last dance of the season until fall in T. A. B. Hall, last night. The hall will be completely remodelled inside and out during the summer, making it one of the most attractive in the city. About two hundred attended the dance, including a number from out-of-town. The dancing was continued until 2 o'clock this morning. A light supper was served at midnight.

Music for the occasion was furnished by Heinmeyer's orchestra of seven pieces from Elizabeth. The decorations were striking, red, white and blue bunting being intertwined and festooned about the hall, while Chinese lanterns added to the attractiveness. The committee in charge comprised Joseph T. McCue, chairman; Michael D. O'Keefe, Thomas B. Beebout, James Lynch, W. Brown, Harry Forrestell, John O'Keefe, Charles H. Waldron and James P. O'Keefe.

HOLY CROSS CHOIR GIVES ANNUAL CONCERT

Only a few score people braved the heat to attend the fourth annual concert given by the choir of Holy Cross church at the parish house last night, but there was a large sale of tickets and a good sum has been realized. The money will be used for choir music.

Features of the program were the solos by Karl Ball and Frederick J. Pope, who deserved the applause of a larger audience. The chorus work, by the full choir of the church, was excellent, the singers showing the result of careful training by the church organist and choirmaster, Theodore Beach, who furnished the piano accompaniment for the singing. The men's choruses, "A Catastrophe" and "Little Tommy Went A-fishing," won merited applause, and a feature of the chorus singing was the rendition of "The Clickety-Click March," for which there was an accompaniment of clappers.

At the conclusion of the concert, there was a reception under the auspices of the women's guild of the parish, and ice cream was served. The singers were George Ball, Ashley Burner, Russell Brakeley, Loren Giddes, Walter Kenyon, Carl Noble, Martin Mantz, Clarence Patrick, Charles Schneegas, Evan Stevens, William Taylor, Ericson Van Norden, Charles Wakefield, Edward Waldron, Herbert E. Harrold, Frederick J. Pope, Edwin M. Schorb, Russell Vail, Thomas Ball, Grant Boos, Allen Diman, Clarence Higgins, Frederick Noble, Raymond Mosher, Howard Riley, Paul Skenk, Carroll Taylor, Walter Thomas, Frederick Van Norden, Edmond Wakefield, Karl M. Ball, Charles Kregar, Herbert Stine, Ira Vail, Charles C. Western and George A. Westervelt.

INSTRUMENT FOR THE DEAF TO BE DEMONSTRATED HERE.

A free demonstration of the Stolz electrophone, a recent invention for the benefit and use of persons afflicted with deafness, will be given on Monday and Tuesday by William Darling at Carl Silbert's jewelry store, 219 West Front street.

The instrument is a wonder in mechanical art and the well known principles of electricity are applied to a new use. With this instrument, which is very compact and convenient, many who have never heard a sound for years, are able to hear the voices of their children for the first times in their lives.

I. W. Travell Goes Abroad.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira W. Travell, of Third place, left today on the Steamship Haverford from Philadelphia for a trip abroad. They will be home on August 15. Mr. Travell had practically given up the idea of going abroad after deciding to accept the position at Morristown, but the steamship company notified him yesterday that it had been unable to dispose of his tickets. This led him to embrace the opportunity to visit Europe.

Will Observe Saturday Holiday.

Commencing July 1, the local hardware stores as well as J. W. Gavett, of West Front street, will observe the Saturday half-holiday and night for the rest of the summer.

Justice Hand's Advertisement in This Paper Brings Results.

MANY SEEK HIS SERVICES.

A Lonely Widow, Aged Twenty-five, Sends a Fervid Epistle for a Soul-Mate.

Justice of the Peace Hezekiah Hand's eminently practical method of helping out the love-lorn swains who are either too poor or too bashful to arrange for elaborate wedding ceremonies, is meeting with wonderful success. Since his advertisement appeared in The Daily Press, in which he offered to marry any pair at any time, day or night, even accepting jobs on the instalment plan, a dollar down and a dollar a week, no less than a thousand inquiries have been received by the enterprising justice, several of which have resulted in the inquirers taking advantage of the justice's terms.

But for some unexplained reason quite a number of people have made the mistake of thinking that Judge Hand is running a matrimonial bureau, and make inquiries for wives or husbands, with or without money and the intentions of a majority of the writers seem to be sincere.

One man writing from a nearby Jersey town states his preferences as follows: "I want a wife with, say $20,000, who must be under thirty and good looking. I am willing to marry such a woman and will love her and take good care of her." This man also informs the judge that he does not want to be a burden any longer on his folks who support him, nor does he care to work if he can avoid it. However, he is willing to assume the responsibilities of married life and if necessary go to work to prove his sincerity and offers all kinds of personal references as to his good breeding, character, etc.

Another fervid epistle comes from a woman, evidently refined, living in New York who implores the Judge to help her find a suitable help-mate. She describes herself as being a widow, 25, poor but good, who wants a husband who has a home in the country and is free from debt, a farmer preferred. This woman refuses to forward a photograph of herself (which she has not been asked for yet) until Mr. Hand has a prospective partner for her.

Many of the letters contain inquiries relating to the necessity for licenses and witnesses and still others are from "kid" pairs who are minded to elope, and want to make sure that the Judge will tie the knot before they venture into his bailiwick. To these latter there is but one reply, "I am serious in this business," said Judge Hand, "and I will not under any circumstances take a chance with boys and girls who cannot satisfy me that they are of age or that they have the consent of their parents or guardians."

Nine couples have already sought the Judge's assistance since the notice appeared and five other couples have been disappointed by not finding him at home, but now he is at home and nobody will be turned away who is legally entitled to be married.

Those who contemplate calling upon the now famous Justice of the Peace must bear in mind that they must be of legal age, and if neither of the couple is a resident of the State a license will be necessary and must be procured from the County Clerk at least five days before they want the ceremony performed. Residents of the State require no license and couples, one of whom is a resident, will not need the law's special permission to marry.

in the Kingdm of God. He pointed out certain defects in the life of John the Baptist. One defect was that his thinking was incorrect. He had low views and wrong views concerning life in its relations and its obligations. The trouble with this man, and the trouble with a great many other men is that in reference to the highest ranges of human thinking, they are governed by prejudice, bias and slefishness. Granting to this great prophet, who was a statesman and a poet, the highest measure of recognition and praise, it is nevertheless apparent that he was a poor thinker. The principles of his personal philosophy were determined by prepossession and angularity of vision. He did not know how to think straight in reference to the most important matter of all thought. The second defect, which he pointed out in the life of John the Baptist, was related to the work he tried to do for the betterment of human society. He did not live and work among men as one of them, but was isolated—a recluse, a hermit, an ascetic. His attitude toward society was that of condescension. He stooped to speak a word of warning. He uttered an exclamation that was rather startling, and then withdrew.

President Noble made it clear that the man whose service to society is helpful is the man who stoops to share, who lives with and is part of all human-kind, who does not simply speak in the way of superior exhortation, but gets under human burdens and tries to lift. This introduces a new sort of human greatness, worthier than the greatness of poet, or statesman, or prophet. The person who is able to think clearly and willing to serve humbly on the terms of the New Testament ranks above all others who are recognized as great. The purpose of the schools is to train to think. The obligation upon thinkers is to serve society. The principles of the East, those governing principles that have controlled the life of the Oriental nations, are principles of profound philosophy, of persistent seeking and correct thinking. The pecularity of the Western nations is their ability to do, their practical skill in lines of desirable activity. The greatest sort of greatness depends upon a combination of persistent Oriental philosophy and aggressive Occidental service.

W. D. Murray, of the Yale Club, then presented the cup offered by the club, to George M. Parsons, president of the class, and in his preliminary remarks paid his compliments to a prelate of the Roman Catholic church who has recently put himself on record as against the great educational institutions of this country on the ground that they failed in their purpose of right education. Mr. Murray said that as an alummus of the great institution at New Haven he had reason to believe that there was no better place for a young man to spend the early years of his life and that to thus wantonly destroy the faith of the country in these great institutions of learning was to take away the underpinning of our life purposes.

Mr. Parsons thanked the donors of the cup for the honor conferred upon him. A surprised young woman was then called to the centre of the stage and was presented with a prize given by the D. A. R., for the best essay on a subject of American history. This young woman, Miss Frances Ernestine Richter, received a five-dollar gold piece for her essay on "The Period of Reconstruction," amid great applause. The essay is printed elsewhere in this issue.

After the presentation of diplomas the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Mr. McKelvey.

"Read every word of this Adv. It will be Profitable reading."

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Some of the hailstones that were bound Coney Islandward yesterday afternoon got switched off here and rattled down much to the consternation of the street-roller man who sought shelter for his horses and himself under the trees near the railroad station. The frozen particles stripped large quantities of leaves from the trees but did no other damage.

The Dunellen Field Club held an entertainment and dance in the Jr. O. U. A. M. Hall last night, in which a farce and some first class vaudeville were the attractions. James Coffee, the president of the club, made a decided hit as the "Office Boy" and had the audience convulsed. The vaudeville was also good. The club plays the Whitehouse team today at Whitehouse.

The Methodist Sunday-school, headed by the pastor, Rev. W. W. Knox, marched out to the picnic grounds near the Greenbrook water tanks on Wednesday and had a glorious time playing games. The picnickers got home about dark tired but happy.

Richard Scott has given up the news-stand at the railroad station and has taken a position with the Aluminum Press and Plate Company. The news-stand is in charge of Gerges Galounus, a Greek.

The Cameron and Ryan Realty Company of New York will sell a tract of building lots on Centre street, near Fairview avenue, next week.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be morning preaching by the pastor, Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, at 10:45; B. Y. P. U. meeting at 7:30 in the evening; no vesper service will be held.

Miss Adelaide Harper, of Front street, is spending several weeks with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Harper, at Southold, L. I.

The women of the Baptist church are holding an ice cream and strawberry festival on the church lawn this afternoon and tonight.

The musicale, which was to have been held in the Methodist church last night, was postponed until Friday night of next week.

CHARTER DAY CHORUS TO REHEARSE MONDAY

The first rehearsal of the big chorus of public school pupils and choir singers who are to take part in the musical exercises at the open-air Charter Day meeting, to be held in the city park Monday afternoon, July 5, will be held at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium Monday night at 8:30 o'clock. At this time, the Y. M. C. A. orchestra, which will be augmented in numbers by several local musicians, who have volunteered to play for the celebration exercises, will meet with the singers. The musicians are to be under the direction of Martin A. Korff, head of the organization, and J. Edmund Skiff, organist and choirmaster of the First M. E. church, will be the musical director.

All who take part in the singing or playing will be presented with handsome badges of special design and arrangements have been completed by the committee, of which T. W. T. Maxwell is chairman, to have the singers ride in the parade in the morning. Decorated stages will call for the pupils, whom it is expected will be about two hundred in number, at the various school buildings. The musical committee assisting Mr. Maxwell and Mr. Skiff comprises Superintendent H. C. Krebs, of North Plainfield; Rev. Father W. H. Miller, Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, C. W. Krausse, Rev. DR. PARSONS, WHO WEDS TODAY, IS AN AUTHOR

"Responsibility for Crime" is the title of a book just issued by Longman, Greens & Co., of which Philip A. Parsons, Ph. D., formerly pastor of the First Church of Christ is the author.

Mr. Parsons says in the preface that "The following dissertion is the outcome of a three years' study of the subject of crime in all its phases on the general basis of Professor Giddings' explanation of society as a product of like response to stimuli. A study of the works of the so-called "Italian School" of Criminal Anthropologists and of those of their foremost American contemporaries resulted in the working-out of the writer's own theories in regard to crime and the criminals set forth herein.

"Owing to the widespread aversion to the subject in general a special effort has been made to present it in as popular phraseology as possible, under the impression that reforms can come only as a result of a general understanding of the situation in the minds of the people. This effort accounts for a notable lack of scientific expression in the work, popular terms being substiuted for technical ones wherever possible.

"The works of Lombroso and Maudsley have been of exceptional value, as have those of E. Ferri, Havelock Ellis and Dr. Drahms. Special thanks are due to Dr. Giddings for his kindly interest.

"It is the author's ambitioon to enlarge upon the present text in a still more popular and comprehensive form at some future time."

Dr. Parsons will wed today at Auburn, N. Y., Miss Helen F. Stahlberger, teacher of modern languages and the North Plainfield school. The wedding trip includes a trip among the cities boardering on the Great Lakes and will consume about three weeks. Dr. and Mrs. Parsons will reside at Hamilton, Ill.

Mrs. George W. Reighton, of Ocean Grove, is calling on some of her old friends in town.

BUNGALOW LIFE AT PORT-AU-PECK ON THE SHREWSBURY—Bungalow colonies, originally a California institution, are springing up all over the east. Many persons of means believe this to be the most healthful manner in which to spend a vacation. It takes them away from the irksome forms of conventionality and puts them in close touch with nature. It enables them to roam through the woods or sail over the sparkling waters, getting fresh air, sunlight and exercise, which has built many a rundown body up to the exacting requirements of our rushing twentieth century pace. The cooling breezes of the Atlantic meet and mingle with the ozone from the woods, forming an atmospheric combination which carries health and vigor through every pair of lungs inhaling it. These are the conditions at Port-au-Peck on the Shrewsbury. In addition you have fishing, hunting, sailing, canoeing, motor boating, golfing, tennis, bathing and all other forms of healthful, vigorous sports in this section, no matter in what direction you turn. The out-of-doors man or woman will find no more attractive place on this continent in which to spend two or three months or week ends in search of recreation and health. For indoor sports there is a large club-house available with bowling alleys and billiard rooms and is especially equipped to give those small affairs in case you should want to. Thirty bungalows now under construction, from $2,000 up, including the plot, 50x150 feet deep; driven artesian wells on each. Send for booklet. Yours for the asking. You are invited to visit Port-au-Peck as our guest. For further particulars see Charles Matt, Port-au-Peck Realty Co., 1328 Broadway, corner 34th street. Telephone 1266, Murray Hill, New York City, or Dr. George R. Boston, 1 Madison street, telephone 282-L, Plainfield, or J. T. S. Hunn, 1218 Prospect avenue, telephone 445-R, Plainfield. EDUCATION FROM 2 POINTS

Miss Mary Lawrence La-Porte's Salutatory at N. P. H. S. Commencement.

Miss Mary La Porte delivered the salutatory at the North Plainfield High School commencement exercises at the New Plainfield theatre last night. Her remarks follow:

Education is an all comprehensive subject. It began with the dawn of creation, whether we accept the origin of life as set forth in the scriptures or pin our faith to the theories wrought out by later day scientists.

If, as life had a beginning it also has an end, as a few think, then education reaches out to that end. If on the other hand, there is no end to life, as most people think, then education reaches forward to a boundless and endless eternity. Consequently, we can with emphasis say that education is life, in all of its meanings, and just as it is difficult to adequeately define life in its various phases, so really education defies definition and admits only a description and analysis. It, is true, however, that many definitions have been advanced and some of them are worthy of consideration for they have served their day and generation well. But, since it is not the purpose of this paper to define education, this education that embraces our home, our school, our churches, our State, and our nation, let us consider briefly two aspects of education, which bear a most vital relation to every one of us, in that these aspects involve the whole essence of our being. Let us consider education from the view point of getting a living and then let us contrast with that education from the idea of living.

At once when we think of education from the standpoint of getting a living we realize that the great majority of us belong under this heading. For self preservation is the first law of life. We are all primarily bread winners, or if by favor of fortune, some are not, they ought to be. For a man who fails to earn his living is a burden to society.

And now since we see that this class is so large, we may well ask, "What is the nature of the education which this great body of the rank and file possess?" It is hard to determine the exact time its members have spent in school. But it is most certainly true that their school days have been far from few. It is also true that they are for the most part in their condition before they have neglected to improve the wonderful opportunities offered by our public school systems and state colleges. It is a sad fact, indeed almost a tragedy, that out of the great numbers graduating from our grammar schools this year, a vast proportion either do not enter the high school at all or drop out after the first year, and of those who graduate from the high school how few ever enter the university!

Why this wreckless disregard for college training on the part of so many? Is it because a higher education, being free, has lost its worth in the eyes of the youth or are our younger generations, blinded by lack of foresight, listening to the call of the Coin?

Because of this tendency of the youth to drop out of school, many modern educational theorists have advanced splendid schemes for trade schools and industrial institutions, all very good in their sphere, but no boy or girl who has the ability to obtain an education of greater breadth should be admitted to such schools. These theorists would make a machinist or a cook out of every pupil supported by public moneys. But a matter of fact human race they would rear when they hold up before the eyes of youth the all mighty dollar and say, "Struggle for that!" Our young people before entering upon any course whatsover, at the present, ask the following questions: "How much money am I to get if I adopt this plan of action?" and "How soon am I to get it?"

In this mad commercial world of the present day, into which our youths enter, many young men who might have been, under right direction and proper training, leaders in their spheres, have been reduced to mere machines and have no more influence on their surroundings than the adding machine in the bank in which they labor beneath an electric light or the pen with which they dash off the daily correspondence of their employers. We would not depreciate their services, but we would lament a system of education which so cramps their entire life until it has made them, body and soul, machines and renders life for them nothing more than food and raiment. Since they have become machines they too often are treated by the big captains of industry as such. Just as when their typewriting machines wear out they procure another, so when their clerks break down, soon find others to take their places.

Doubtless many would say, "but look at the money that a captalist has heaped up," and he had not a cent to start with. But we must not measure any system of education purely from the amount of cash that it will produce. It is true that there are a great many men in this class which views life from the standpoint of getting a living, who are very wealthy, but as rich as they are, they are not really living. How often we have heard them lament the fact that they have never had the advantages of a liberal education. They have a winter home here and a summer home there, both of which are filled with works of art that to their narrow minds is an ornament, not an inspiration; they have libraries, embracing the best literature of the world, upon which they gaze with admiration, but into which they can never look without misgivings. They envy the youth who has a trained mind and a skilled hand, they would give gladly of their millions for the privilege of entering into that life which is hidden from them. They have labored under the system which trained them to get a living and to accumulate dollars and cents, and when they come down to their last days, realizing that all that is material avails not, they most generously contribute their means for the founding and endowment of those institutions which will give in a way the opportunity to rising generations of being reared under an educational system which educates not from the standpoint of getting a living, but from the view point of living.

But many say at this point, every body must have bread to live. It is indeed true that everyone must have bread to exist but not to live. To live means more than daily bread. We live when a grander and nobler motive enters into our lives, a conception that lifts us above temporal necessities and sweetens the drudgery of a daily existence, wrought out by dire necessity. This conception was set forth by the world's greatest teacher many centuries ago and has come down through the ages with no uncertain though too often neglected meaning. "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God."

What are we to understand by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God? That would be determined to some extent by the nature of the God we worship. If that God be the gilded image of molten gold, then there is but one message, materialistic and metalistic in its ring. If on the other hand our God is the God of all knowledge, then that message embraces all that is contained in a broad and liberal education, whether we be initiated into that education through the medium of our high schools and colleges or through self-directed methods bearing upon that one Supreme Source and Emanation of all Knowledge.

There are certain words, every word a world in its self, which come from the mouth of God with no uncertain sound. "The proper study of mankind is man." Most of us here tonight have studied some portion of the world's history, not realizing that we were investigating our own selves, nor feeling that we were listening to the voice of God. For each one of us it is true that he is a stranger to nothing human. There is no one study which is so valuable to us as history in its various forms, as it reveals to us the rise and fall of nations and gives us the power of juding the past, of understanding the present and of glancing into the dim future. Surely this is one of the words and one of the worlds and so full of meaning. Have we listened to its sound?

But our ears are capable of at least catching at other words and as we glance about us and behold, the rising sun bringing light and sustaining life; the lightenings flash spreading terror, yet the key that has unlocked so many modern improvements; the raging torrent whose fury, controlled, yields to our comfort; the growing herb breathing out the very quintessence of life, it comes home to us with great force, that if we would know the world in which we live, we must study physics and chemistry and all natural sciences. This is one of the farthest reaching words. Has its sound come to our ears?

Do we pause to listen to strains of sweet music? Do we linger in the presence of sublime works of art? Are we cheered and comoforted by the flowers of yonder valley? If so, we are listening to words of no mistakable meaning, which put us in touch with living worlds.

Our fathers with studious zeal and attentive ear have caught these wonderful words and have handed the meaning they derive down to us in the beautiful gems of literature, not written in one language but set forth in many tongues. If we have interpreted this literature then we have in a measure caught their inspiration, and ought we not by the aid of first hand knowledge strive to understand these words for ourselves and then perchance generations to come shall be benefited and the world shall, once more produce men of literary genius.

God speaks then through history, through natural sciences, through art, and through literature. Have we inclined our ears? If so we will endeavor to lay a foundation in our education which will permit us not to merely exist but to live.

We must not be left under the impression that an education of the nature we have been talking about requires a large income for its support. Any person receiving a living wage may be and ought to be included in this class which views life and education on from this broader standpoint, whether he has passed through a school system conducted by others or has created his own school system.

We doubtless shall forget much of what we have learned from books unless we are so situated as to live out in actual experience the ideas we have received in school. It is not, however, so much what we learn in school that profiteth us, but it is the effort we have put forth in acquiring the knowledge and the methods by which we have trained our minds. A very good attempt to define education, recently advanced is as follows: "Education is that training of the mind which renders the indivdual competent to adapt himself to his environment." But a far better definition is this: "Education is that training of the mind which renders the individual competent to adjust himself to a changing environment."

Cicero struck the keynote when he said that the great men of Rome so adjusted their plans as to meet new and unexpected situations with new plans. There is nothing stationary or stupid in that statement, but it bristles with progress, growth and development. Such is the value cated to live and their fame has so endured that after hundreds of years one of England's most gifted sons paid them this tribute:

"Surely it is no exaggeration to say that no external advantage is to be compared with that purification of the intellectual eye which gives us to contemplate in infinitive wealth of the mental world, all the hoarded treasures of primeval dynasties, all the shapeless ore of her yet unemployed mines. This is the gift of Athens to man. Her freedom and her power have for more than twenty centuries been annihilated. Her people have degenerated into feeble slaves; her language into a barbarous Jargon; her temples have been given over to the successive depredations of Romans, Turks, and Scotchmen, but her intellectual empire is imperishable. When those who have rivalled her greatness shall have shared her fate, when civilization and knowledge shall have fixed their abode in some distant continent. When the sceptic shall have passed away from England, when perhaps travellers from some distant region shall in vain labor to decipher on some mouldering pedestal the name of our proudest chief, shall hear savage hymns chanted to some misshapen idol over the ruined dome of our proudest temple, shall see a single naked fisherman wash his nets in that river of ten thousands masts, her influence and her glory will still survive, fresh in eternal youth, exempt from mutability and decay, immortal as the intellectual principles from which they derive their origin and over which they exercise their control."

Plainfielder Held for Cock-Fight.

Robert Moore, of East Third street, indicted as "among those present" at the cock-fight at William Perrine's barn, Scotch Plains, last March, was arrested yesterday by Patrolman Charles Flynn on a warrant from Elizabeth. He was taken to Elizabeth.

R. H. Day, 108 Somerset street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills on different occasions for twelve years and do not know how I would get along without them. At times I was seized with severe pains in my back, brought on no doubt by over-work. A kidney disorder generally accompanied such attacks. Doan's Kidney Pills was the first remedy that ever took effect on my trouble and whenever I have apepaled to them, they haev always banished my suffering. The Man From Home

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

"Suspicion!" echoed Ivanovitch bitterly. "They will watch every exit from the hotel and grounds. What can I do until dark?" Pike interrupted him quickly and motioned to the hotel.

"Why, doc, he's got the whole lower floor of this wing. You're his chauffeur"—

"I was about to suggest it," interrupted Von Grollerhagen, in his turn, with some grimness of manner. "I have a room that can well be spared for Professor Ivanovitch."

"How can I ever thank you? God bless you both!" said the Russian, going toward them with outstretched hands.

"Huh! Don't waste time talking about it," said Pike. "I shouldn't be surprised if you were hungry."

He took the refugee by the arm and steered him in the direction of the hotel, and as the three entered the wide door the curtains above the entrance were agitated violently and the head of Lady Creech popped out of the casement with the suddenness of a Punch. From the keen look on her face one might have imagined that had it not been for her deafness she might have heard every word of the conversation that had gone on below her. As it was, after gazing anxiously in the direction of the road she withdrew her head sharply and within a minute came out of the door of the hotel just in time to encounter Horace and Mme. de Champigny coming in from the grove. She approached them at once.

He kissed her hand rapturously.

"Have you seen my brother?" she demanded excitedly. "Where is Lord Hawcastle?"

Horace looked at her with surprise.

"On the other side of the garden, Lady Creech," he answered, "down there on the terrace," and watched, with some amusement, the speedy efforts of the grim old lady as she hurried off. The amusement, however, rapidly gave place to a more interesting pastime, for, summoning all his callow courage, he set himself vigorously to hint at a possible union between himself and the noble countess.

It was evident from the first word that the lady was prepared for him and that, while she intended to offer him every bit of encouragement in her power, she would not be satisfied with anything short of a definite proposal and more likely before witnesses if possible.

He made his initial move with some gayety. She returned his banter with a mock seriousness and in answer to his challenge on her somber mood replied:

"But I cannot believe you are always serious, my friend."

"Try me," he demanded eagerly. "Set me some task to prove how serious I am." She smiled at him.

"Gladly," she said. "Complete this odious settlement. Overcome the resistance of this bad man who so troubles your sweet sister."

Horace took her hand and murmured:

"You promise me that when it is settled I may speak to you"—

"Yes. You may speak to me—when you please." And at the words he kissed her hand rapturously.

In the meantime the suddenly rejuvenated Lady Creech had found her brother-in-law and had imparted to him words of the utmost importance. She had temporarily forgotten her deafness, or else the agitation that possessed her had removed it, for she was bordering upon "a state of mind."

She walked him back to the hotel when she found him and talked continuously all the way, and as she talked his excitement grew to match her own. As they approached the garden Lady Creech said to him:

"I couldn't hear distinctly, for they mumbled their words, but upon my soul, Hawcastle, even if I couldn't hear well, I saw enough."

CHAPTER XIII.

THE LETTER.

As Lady Creech and Hawcastle entered the garden, where Horace was still holding the hand of the fair countess, they encountered Almeric, who was strolling in aimlessly from the direction of the village. Hawcastle beckoned to him.

"Anything unusual down there?" he asked, pointing to the village.

"Rawther! Carabinieri still hunting that bandit chap," said his hopeful son languidly.

"Don't mumble your words!" snapped the old lady, and Horace and madame turned sharply and confusedly. Almeric made a gesture of impatience and, putting his head close to his respected aunt's ear, shouted:

"Hunting a bally bandit!" at which the old woman screamed sharply. Hawcastle took him by the shoulder.

"What do they say about him?" he demanded.

"That he is still in the neighborhood," replied his heir, with a languid sigh.

"What did I tell you?" asked Lady Creech triumphantly. And the earl made a gesture of impatience.

"Almeric, find your betrothed and bring her here," he said. And the young man trotted off slowly. Horace came slowly forward.

"What's the row, sir?" he asked, and the earl smiled.

"My dear young man," he said, "I congratulate you that you and your sister need no longer submit to an odious dictation."

He was about to say more, but at that moment Daniel came down the steps and walked across the grass to the motor. As he passed the group he smiled genially and observed:

"Looks to me as if it was going to clear up cold."

"Good afternoon, Mr. Pike," answered the earl and motioned the others to leave.

Pike merely nodded his head, and Hawcastle came up to him.

"It is a pity that there should have been any misunderstanding in the matter of your ward's betrothal," he said, and Pike smiled grimly.

"Oh, I wouldn't call it a misunderstanding," he said, and the earl went on.

"It would ill become a father to press upon the subject of his son's merits"—he began, but Pike cut him short.

"I won't talk with you about him," he said. "I don't want to hurt your feelings."

Hawcastle glared at him and was about to reply when Mariano entered with a letter on a tray, which he handed to the lawyer, who regarded it curiously. There was a growing menace in the earl's attitude, and as his anger grew his suavity grew with it.

"There is another matter to which I want to call your attention," he went on, and Pike answered him at once.

"I'll talk about anything else with you," he replied and looked up to see Ethel coming down the steps. She came forward to the earl and said:

"You wished me to come here?"

"I wish to tell you that I see light breaking through the clouds. Have another talk with our friend here, and, believe me, all will be well."

With a bow he left the garden, and Ethel stood staring after him. Pike looked up quickly from the letter he was reading and crossed over to her.

"I'm glad you've come," he said. "I've got something here I want to read to you. When I got your letter at home I wrote to Jim Cooley, our vice consul in London, to look up those Hawcastle folks and write me here how they stand."

"You did that!" she cried in anger. "You had the audacity to pry into the affairs of the Earl of Hawcastle!"

"Why, I'd 'a' done that if it'd been the governor of Indiana himself," he replied, with surprise. "Besides, Jim Cooley's 'home folks.' His office used to be right next door to mine in Kokomo. I haven't opened the letter yet, but I haven't much doubt but Jim 'll have some statements in it that'll show you I'm right about these people."

"How do you know that?" she demanded heatedly.

"Because I've had experience enough of life"—

"In Kokomo?" she asked scornfully.

"Yes, ma'am," he answered. "There's just as many kinds of people in Kokomo as there is in Pekin, and I didn't serve a term in the legislature without learning to pick underhand men at sight. Now, that earl, let alone his having a bad eye—his ways are too much on the stripe of T. Cuthbert Bentley's to suit me. T. Cuthbert was a Chicago gentleman, with a fur lined overcoat, that opened up a bank in our town, and when he caught the Canadian express three months later all he left in Kokomo was the sign on the front door. That was painted on. But, there, here's the letter. Read it for yourself."

He handed it to her and watched her while she broke the seal and then began to read:

Dear Dan—The earldom of Hawcastle is one of the oldest in the kingdom, and the St. Aubyns have distinguished themselves in the forefront of English battles from Agincourt and Crecy to Sebastopol. The present holder of the title came into it by accident. He was a younger son's younger son and had spent some years in Russia in business under another name. Nothing here in his English record is seriously against him, though everything he has is mortgaged to the handle.

REFORMATORY INMATES IN CLOSING EXERCISES.

Rahway, June 26.—The closing exercises of the Institutional School of the New Jersey Reformatory were attended yesterday by about 300 visitors and friends of the institution generally, including Governor Fort, State Commissioner of Charities and Corrections Rev. George B. Wight, of Trenton, and clergymen interested in reformatory work. Superintendent Rev. Frank Moore was in charge of the exercises of the day. The various departments of trades and other lines taught in the place were represented in order, such as the trade schools, piping, electric work, shorthand, drawing and painting, all the scholars showing great improvement since the last exhibition. A neat stage with settings was fitted out in the amusement hall, where recitations won hearty applause.

The exercises were followed by a military drill.

The Board of Commissioners, most of whom were present from time to time during the day, consisted of the Governor, Richard H. Wilson, president; Decatur M. Sawyer, secretary; George W. Fortmeyer, Freeman Woodbridge, Foster M. Voorhees, Henry Schmidt, E. D. Duffield and John Handley.

Of the institution were Superintendent Frank Moore, Captain of the Day Guard and Military Instructor Richard F. Cross; instructors in school, Principal Officer Robert J. Shearer, Assistant Officers George Rowley, Horace A. Bell, Oliver J. West, Alexander H. Sutton, Harry O. Andrews, Timothy F. McCarthy, William H. Seip.

ASKS DIVORCE FROM MAN IN PRISON FOR BIGAMY.

Trenton, June 26.—William N. H. Huff, formerly a Newark trolley car conductor, who was sentenced to three years in State prison on a charge of bigamy by Judge Davis, in the Essex County Court Monday, is made defendant in divorce proceedings instituted by his wife, Mrs. Viola M. Huff, at present residing at Sergeantsville, in Hunterdon county. Mrs. Huff charges her convict husband with cruelty and desertion and in her bill refers to the bigamous marriage which landed Huff behind the bars.

Huff, who was a farmer and in comfortable circumstances before locating in Newark, little more than two years ago, married Miss Emma Symes, of that city, with whom he was living when arrested on the bigamy charge. Huff became financially involved and disposed of a lot of property before going to Newark. It was subsequent to his selling out, Mrs. Huff charges this cruelty began. She alleges that frequently she was forced with their children to quit the premises because of the rough character of men her husband harbored about the house, indulging in drinking bouts.

Mrs. Huff further charges that the family had often been without food, due to Huff's actions, and that more than once her husband whipped the children without provocation. The Huffs separated about three years ago, Mrs. Huff returning to her parents' home, which was then at Hightstown.

BEQUEATHS HIS BODY TO MEDICAL SOCIETY.

Morristown, June 26.—"I desire that my body be applied to the benefit of a medical society for the welfare of humanity," is one clause in the will of Nelson E. Mulford, of Madison, the document being offered for probate in the surrogate's office here yesterday.

The will continues with the proviso that the maker desires his body shall be given to "reputable medical practioners or to some established medical institution or society." It directs that if neither of these things can be accomplished the testator wishes his body cremated, and directs that on his family monument shall be inscribed the following:

"I believe in the harmonial philosophy. There are no forces that do not in the ultimate serve the mission of Divine Providence."

The testator bequeaths to his niece, Mrs. Carl A. Brittin, of Madison, property in the southern part of Newark, and leaves $2,000 in trust with Prosecutor Charles A. Rathbun, as executor for Mrs. Brittin. The will is dated July 18, 1901.

Mr. Mulford was a spiritualist, and lived in bachelor apartments in Madison. He was sixty years old, and belonged to a number of societies on psychic research in New York. Prosecutor Rathbun, as executor, offered the body to Columbia College, but no response being made, the body was cremated at Linden a week ago.

LEAPED FROM TRAIN, KILLED UNDER WHEELS.

Califon, June 26.—Linlow Sutton, a peach basket maker, about forty years old, of Middle Valley, was instantly killed here Wednesday. He was riding to work on the ore train south bound on the High Bridge Railroad when he fell under the train while attempting to jump off.

The train severed his left arm and he was badly cut and bruised about the head and body. Coroner Jacob K. Naughhright, of High Bridge, was summoned and issued a burial permit. The body was taken to Middle Valley. A daughter survives.

PUBLIC PARK PLANNED FOR "NOT YET BUT SOON"

It is doubtful whether all the details for the proposed public park will be completed so that work can be started this summer on the tract of land chosen for the site. The Common Council has approved and practically accepted the offer made by the Plainfield Park Association, but the matter has been turned over to Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh, who has been requested to pass upon it. Inasmuch as Mr. Marsh leaves for Europe tomorrow, he will be unable to devote any time to the question until his return the latter part of the summer.

Another thing that is sure to delay the improvement is that of securing the co-operation of adjoining property-owners. There is a considerable portion of land adjacent to that proposed for the park and it is desired that the owners join with the city and association in establishing the park.

It is said that the idea of building a lake in the centre of the park has been abandoned. However, Green brook will course its way through the tract and this will lend attractiveness to the spot, after it has been improved as planned.

The fact that the improvement calls for the extension of a street through the park from the city into the borough, will add greatly to its value. This will give a short and very desirable thoroughfare from the West End to the city to all parts of the borough. The city expects to bear the expense, or at least a portion, for the opening up and macadamizing of this thoroughfare, while the borough, which will also benefit much by the improvement, three-quarters of the road being in the borough, will probably stand a part of this expense. In laying out a part it is proposed to establish attractive gardens, fountains and walks throughout the tract.

NO CHINESE PUPILS AT HACKETTSTOWN SCHOOL.

Hackettstown, June 26.—Rev. Dr. Jonathan M. Meeker, president of Centenary Collegiate Institute, yesterday said that Chu Gain, a Chinese who figures in the Elsie Sigel murder mystery, never was a student at the school. The statement was called forth by published statements that the Chinese had attended a school at Hackettstown before he went to Columbia University.

Dr. Meeker has gone over the records of the institute and was unable to find that any such person as Chu Gain ever matriculated. He is confident also that no Chinese student has attended the institution for the last ten years or more.

Chu Gain is a restaurant owner in New York and is said to have been the rival of Leon Ling, the fugitive, for the hand of the Sigel girl. Many letters from the Sigel girl to Chu Gain were found in Chu Gain's rooms.

"I know that since I have had charge of the institute," Dr. Meeker declared to a newspaper reporter, "there has been no Chinese students here and so far as I can learn from those who have been identified with the institution before my time there never was a Chinese educated here. There was a Japanese student who was graduated from here about ten years ago. And I know that at present he is in the government employ at Tokio."

INSANE FROM THE HEAT, TITUS KILLS HIMSELF.

Elizabeth, June 26.—William Titus, forty-eight years old, while temporarily deranged from the heat stood in front of a mirror in his room and cut his throat Wednesday night. His body was found by Mrs. Hartkopf, with whom he had boarded for seven years, at 1120 Elizabeth avenue. He was single, a lather and lived at Paterson.

A bankbook showing he had $174 on deposit, a gold watch and $15 in cash were found in his room.

NEWARK MAN COLLAPSES FROM HEAT IN PATERSON.

Paterson, June 26.—A Newark man was the only victim of heat in this city Wednesday. He was William Reeves, of 173 Academy street, that city.

Reeves was walking along lower Main street when he collapsed. A citizen telephoned for the ambulance and the victim was transferred to the General Hospital. Reeves recovered and last night he was able to leave the institution.

Vaudeville Act at Berkeley Heights.

The Dynes, father and son, who appeared at Proctor's theatre, yesterday, in a clever Indian club swinging and singing act, have been engaged by William Jeffrey for the monster Fourth of July celebration at Berkeley Heights on Monday, July 5. Mr. Jeffrey attended the performance at Proctor's theatre and was so much taken with the act that he at once made arrangements to have the pair at his celebration. The Younger Dynes appears as a Chinaman and besides being clever in swinging Indian clubs, has a remarkable falsetta voice. The pair are expected to return to Proctor's July 6 and 7.

TRINITY REFORMED'S AGGREGATION OF BALL TOSSERS

Although organized but a short time, the Trinity Reformed Sunday-school baseball team gives promise of becoming a good fast aggregation before the season closes. For beginners the boys have been quite successful. They have defeated Warren chapel and the Chatham A. C., and lost one game to New Market by one run in the ninth inning. Today the team will play the nine from Grace M. E. church, and as both are evenly matched a good contest should result.

Through the courtesy of Charles W. McCutchen the team has the use of the grounds at West End and Myrtle avenues where its games are played. Edgar F. Sheppard as coach, has succeeded in selecting a uniformly good team, and it is rapidly developing under his efficient work. Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, is the manager of the nine, and his experience in the game makes him an able director, and at the same time the boys are under his helpful influence.

D. A. R. PRIZE ESSAY

Miss Frances E. Richter Wins $5. Prize From Local Society.

Among the prizes awarded in connection with the graduation exercises of the North Plainfield High School at the New Plainfield theatre last night was a five dollar gold piece, presented to Miss Frances E. Richter. The prize was offered by the D. A. R. Miss Richter's essay, "The Period of Reconstruction," follows:

One of the greatest wrongs in our history was the period of Reconstruction. That a nation which boasts of justice and freedom could have gone systematically to work to impose upon an intelligent people such a short-sighted, uncivilized, repressive, policy showed that in their eagerness a great liberty loving nation may err in bestowing freedom and that was what it did when it gave the negroes suffrage.

Immediately after the war the attitude of Congress was inf avor of a more lenient course. The Congress passed, it is true, the fourteenth amendment which provided for the citizenship and suffrage of the negroes and disenfranchised all persons who had taken part in the rebellion or who "had given aid to the same." But this with the thirteenth amendment was a written law disposing forever of the question which had torn the country asunder.

Then the perversity of President Johnson in vetoing almost all Congressional acts. Congress became more consolidated and determined and worked to pass their bills over the President's veto. While in this frame of mind Thaddeus Stevens presented to the House for consideration his unwise, severe plan of Reconstruction known as "thorough" which was passed through both houses after much heated discussion.

The South brought the system upon herself. When she saw the antagonistic spirit of Johnson, she hailed it as a time when it was proper for her to flatly reject the fourteenth amendment. This attitude of the South caused the North to think more harshly of the South and to rigidly enforce Stevens' system of "Thorough."

This repressive policy was one of a fanatic on the wrongs committed against the negroes, one who in protecting negro rights, forgot the rights of his own race. By Stevens' system the South was divided into five military districts over which the general of the army, Grant, should place commandants to keep peace and order. It also provided for the calling of conventions so as to elect members for a new legislature who would frame the new State constitution based on negro suffrage. All male citizens, "of whatever race, color or previous condition," except those who had taken part in the rebellion, were allowed to vote. These provisions were to be accepted by each State before it could reenter the Union. By 1868 all the States except Texas had taken the necessary step and had accepted the constitutions based on negro suffrage.

It is quite apparent that the North was short-sighted in imposing military rule on a section of its own people, when they prided themselves on wise judgment in serious, political cases. The North need never to have feared for the welfare of the negroes, the South would have in the end been perfectly just. But the worst part was the enfranchisement of the ignorant negroes and the disenfranchisement of the intelligent whites. The negroes in the legislatures were nothing but tools in the hands of the rascally carpetbaggers; they developed a surprising aptness for theft, fraud and tyrannical taxation and never left any impression on the legislation of the time. After a few years of supremacy the shrewd conniving of the educated white brought the negro to the plane from which he should have started.

During the period of military reconstruction the South was terrorized by an organization known as the Klu-Klux-Klan. It was composed of poor whites and soerseers who, as their criminal reputation grew, were joined by other desperadoes. The real purpose of the organization was to prevent by intimidation the negroes from voting. The matter became such a serious one that the government was obliged to help in stamping it out.

Congress now passed several important measures which they thought were necessary to insure the permancy to past acts and to insure the public peace and order at election. The most important, "The Fifteenth Amendment," which reads like this: "The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of race, color or previous conditions of servitude," was carried through Congress to make certain the negro suffrage. All through the military rule at the South there had always been riots and confusion at elections. Congress now carried through the "Force Bill" that gave the President the power to suspend the heabus corpus in the most turbulent States, Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi and Alabama, if any trouble occurred in those States.

The reconstruction policy was a failure. The negro in public offices had accomplished nothing and only rolled up enormous debts for the States, the Republican aim to build up their party in the South came to nothing; instead of protecting the old Whigs which would have been the nucleus of the party at the South, they drove them to consolidate with the Southern Democrats through their repressive measure. Reconstruction left its bitter imprint in the minds of Southerners which has only gradually been removed since the withdrawal of the troops of Hayes in 1870.

MISS DEWEY'S PUPILS IN PIANO MUSICALE

Pupils of Miss Carrie C. Dewey pleased an attentive audience at the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church yesterday afternoon, when they showed considerable ability in the rendition of a program of piano music. The young players were at their best, and the various selections were rendered with a confidence, technique and expression rarely equalled in pupil recitals. There were seventeen pupils who took part in the program, which included a trio by the Misses Helen Newman, Edith Lowrie and Ruth Voorhees and duetts by the Misses Virginia and Jocelyn Nolting, and Elmer and Laurence French.

The program follows: "Slumber Songs," duetts by Miss Virginia and Miss Jocelyn Nolting; Farandole, (Schmoll), Chester Alpaugh; trio, Waltz in G, (Streabbog), the Misses Helyn Newman, Edith Lowrie, and Ruth Voorhees; "The Hunter's Horn," (Schmoll), Louie Starkweather; "Away to the Woods," (Heins), Miss Helyn Newman; Melody in, F (Rubenstein), and "Momen Musicale," (Schubert), Philip Phillips; Polonaise, (Miidenbarg), Miss Ruth Voorhees; Polonaise, (Schmoll), Miss Katherine Bingamin; Melody, (Bingham), Miss Edith Schwartz; Gavotte. READY NOW TO BUILD PORTABLE CHURCH EDIFICE.

The Ducker Company, of New York, which has the contract for erecting the portable church building on Midway and Leland avenues, with the Classis of Newark, has given the contract for the brick piers to Tallamy Brothers, the masons, and yesterday the ground was staked out and the brick piers placed in position.

The building will be shipped from the factory today and early next week will be put together on the property. The first session of the Sunday-school will be held next Sunday morning and on Thursday evening, July 8, the dedication services will be held. Royal A. Stout, the supply in charge, has been very cordially received by the families in the neighborhood, and predicts a successful future for the new church.

DeWitt's French Models Great.

Mons. DeWitt's French models, reproducing famous statuary in bronze and marble, attracted a large audience to Proctor's theatre, last night. The presentations were beautiful, depicting historical and modern scenes. The work was so cleverly done that it was difficult to determine that those posing were human, and the applause was frequent. The other vaudeville numbers are good, the hoop roller being one of the best yet. The above bill will be offered today.

UNBELIEVERS INCREASING

People's Pulpit Editor Declares 1,200,000,000 are Unsaved.

MUST STUDY THE BIBLE.

After Twenty Centuries the World Is Further Than Ever From Jesus Christ.

Rev. P. E. Thomson, editor of the Peoples' Pulpit, a Brooklyn periodical devoted to the study of the Bible, spoke in Jr. O. U. A. M. hall yesterday afternoon to a fairly large audience, and left with them the impression that while the outlook for the salvation of the 1,200,000,000 non-Christians known of today seemed hopeless, it is not really so. Notwithstanding that during the last century the number of unbelievers has doubled, Mr. Thomson held that this is only history repeating itself, as after the end of 1655 years, or at the time of the Deluge, God found only eight people worthy of salvation (Noah and his family) in all the peoples of the earth whom he considered worthy of salvation. Mr. Thomson continued:

"After nearly twenty centuries of Christian teaching we appear to be further away from the Christianizing of the world which we are all looking for, but that is no reason for discouragement, the reason a greater work has not been accomplished is simply because God has not willed it. The desired result will come in God's own time. God's promise to Abraham has not yet been fulfilled, so there is something in the future for God to carry out. The Jews have not yet had their Temple rebuilt, and until the fulness of the selection of the Gentiles shall have come to pass the Tabernacle of David will not be restored. That is the plan of God according to the Gospel.

"Those who die out of the faith, the buried millions, all are to have the opportunity of seeking after the truth. Revelation tells us that. There will be a period of a thousand years when the power of the Evil One will be cut off and at that time those who have not seen the truth will have the opportunity to learn of it and enter into the joy of the Lord."

Mr. Thomson urged his hearers to study the scriptures for confirmation of his statements.

REV. ALBERTUS BROEK IN TRINITY'S PULPIT

Rev. Dr. Albertus T. Broek, pastor of the Clinton Avenue Reformed church, Newark, occupied his brother's pulpit at Trinity Reformed church yesterday at both services. There were large congregations morning and night considering the intense heat. In the morning the preacher's text was Exodus 16, part of seventh verse: "The murmurings of the Israelites for want of bread; or, the tragedy in the wilderness." It was a helpful and impressive discourse delivered extemporaneously.

In the evening the text was James 4, part of fourteenth verse: "What is your life—it is even a vapor." There was special music by the choir under the leadership of Oraganist Arthur L. Titsworth, which was very pleasing to the large congregation present.

Dr. Broek is a man of cammanding appearance, a profound student and is magnetic as a preacher. His brother, Rev. John Y. Broek, occupied the Newark church pulpit both morning and evening.

WINFRED C. CRAM WEDS MISS MARY A. THOMPSON.

Miss Mary Agnes Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Thompson, of Washington, Warren county, and Winfred C. The bride was attended by Miss Mary Lynch, and the best man was Edmund Lynch, both of Washington. A reception was held after the ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Lynch, and later the couple left for Plainfield, where they will reside. The bride received a large number of both useful and handsome gifts.

The groom, who was formerly of Newark, is a linotype operater in the office of The Daily Press and since coming to Plainfield has made a host of friends.

CONKLING PLEADS GUILTY

Assistant Mail Clerk Confesses to Stealing Money at Local P. O.

TO BE SENTENCED MONDAY.

Others had Gotten Justice When Stealers Here, But Conkling Disregarded Fact.

John Conklin, assistant mailing clerk at the local postoffice, who was indicted by the United States Grand Jury on a charge of stealing money from the mails, was arraigned before Judge Cross at Trenton, today. He pleaded guilty and it was announced that he would be sentenced next Monday.

Conkling, who was employed at the postoffice for several years, first as a special messenger, and then as assistant mailing clerk, had a hobby for tampering with special delivery letters. Many complaints were received by Postmaster Bird about the non-delivery of such letters or that the contents had been removed.

At the request of Mr. Bird, two inspectors were sent here and Conkling was caught through tow "test" letters bearing special delivery stamps. Conkling confessed after being arrested. He was taken to Jersey City and held in $1,200 bail. He was later taken to Newark, where he was held pending his arraignment at Trenton. After being taken to Jersey City, Conkling, it is said, admitted that he had spent his money "on girls."

Broke Glass in Trinity Church.

During the service in Trinity Reformed church, yesterday morning, a section of one of the stained glass windows, next to Pruden's alley, was broken by some boys, who had a flobert rifle or sling shot. The missile crashed through the glass at an impressive part of the service and gave those sitting in the vicinity a sudden fright. It is not known who committed the act, but the officials of the church have notified the police and it is hoped that they will be caught and properly punished.

Carman attended to his injuries. The lad will be laid up for sometime.

P. S. C. LINEMAN KILLED

Paul Wood's Death Follows Fall from a 35 Foot Pole.

LIVE WIRE WAS THE CAUSE.

The Shock Loosens His Hold and Man is Fatally Injured—Wife at Death Bed.

Paul Wood, a P. S. C. lineman, was thrown to the street and fatally injured late last night while engaged in repairing the damage caused by the lightning in the morning. Wood was at work at the top of a thirty-five foot pole at Clinton avenue and South Second street and in reaching for his safety belt seized a live wire carrying 2,500 volts.

The shock loosened his hold and he fell to the ground striking the curb which crushed in two of his ribs, one of which pierced his lungs and was the immediate cause of death. James Ellis, another lineman, was in Wood's company, but owing to the darkness did not observe the accident until Wood fell to the street.

Wood was removed to the hospital at once with City Physician Lufburrow in attendance. At the hospital an examination showed that Wood's injuries were fatal and his wife was summoned and remained with her husband till the end.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday from his late home, 132 East Front street.

ESCAPES SAD FATE OF A FELLOW ENGINEER

Engineer George Weller in charge of the Reading Express, leaving Plainfield at 7:09 Saturday night for New York, narrowly escaped the fate of Engineer Fred De Groff, of this city, who was killed on the Reading road a few months ago by the breaking of a driving rod.

The accident happened at a point between "Netherwood" and Fanwood, when the train was getting well underway. At the instant the driving rod snapped, Weller shut off his lever and jumped into the tender. More than half the cab on the engineer's side was torn away and the roadbed was ripped up for a considerable distance. That the engine was not derailed was remarkable. There were several Plainfielders aboard, including J. Henry Crane, and all were given a severe shakeup.

The train was stalled until the 7:14 Blue Line Express came along. The passengers were then transferred and the disabled train sidetracked. Had the train been going at full speed, the engineer would doubtless have been killed.

PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION WILL MEET TONIGHT

The election of officers and a consideration of the president's report for the past year will be the features of the annual meeting of the Plainfield Protective Association, to be held at 125 East Front street tonight at 8:15 o'clock. There will also be a consideration of the policy to be pursued during the coming year regarding the question of city and borough sewage disposal; the water supply the proposed changes in the city police department and the proposed public park.

The announcement by Secretary H. C. White says "that the first of these questions include points seriously concerning public health and finance large imrpovements in the disposal ssytem of the whole community with a probable resulting $200,000 bond issue; the second, the proper and economical conservation and distribution of our natural water supply; the third, certain additional police protection at an increased expense to the city of $6,000 to $8,000 per annum; the fourth, improvements involving present expense, but possibly important to future generations."

The association is particularly anxious to have a full attendance of the members to discuss these questions which are considered of vital importance to all taxpayers and requiring full investigation.

LIGHTNING PLAYED HAVOC

Bolts Struck a Church and Several Private Residences.

THE REPORT OF LOSSES.

Holy Cross Church Twice Hit During the Storm Yesterday Morning.

The lightning which accompanied the early morning shower yesterday did some damage in city and borough, striking Holy Cross church and several residences of city and borough. The bolts did especial damage in the west and south ends of the city, where the electric light and telephone services were crippled the worst. At police headquarters, a bolt played havoc with the patrol box switch board, and the box service was out of commission for several hours in the early morning.

The damage at Holy Cross church was caused by two bolts, for lightning struck an electric light pole on Mercer avenue near the edifice, tore the heavy iron door off a transformer box and dashed it to the street. From the box, the bolt bounded to the roof of the church, shattering the cross which surmounts the bell tower. A second bolt struck the northwest gable of the edifice, tearing off metal sheathing and several slates. Inside the church, it blew the door off the switch-board box which contains the chancel lighting switches, knocked one of the cased globes from its position in the chancel arch, and scorched the plaster, knocking several pieces down. It traveled across the chancel and passed out through the roof over the organ, tearing off several slates. The instrument was undamaged, but the electric light service in the chancel was put out of commission for the morning service. The damage is entirely covered by insurance.

Lightning struck the residence of Isaac S. Randolph, 1125 West Front street, at about 6 o'clock yesterday morning, entering by the electric light wires. It shattered the meter in the cellar and the gas meter, igniting the gas and starting a fire which swept up the front of the house between the partitions, and caused the firemen a hard fight for nearly two hours. The loss is $400, fully covered by insurance.

L. V. Tallamy, sleeping in a front room of the house, was stunned by the bolt, which also dazed his wife. The two smelled smoke and discovered that the burning gas had set fire to the wood-work between the petitions. Mr. Tallamy, assisted by E. D. Young and Samuel Beekman, got out the garden hose and fought the flames until the fire department arrived. Two alarms sent in from box 48 failed to sound, and the department was summoned by telephone. Chief Doane told the garden hose brigade that their prompt action had undoubtedly saved the building.

A bolt traveled into the house of Norman Gray, across the street from the Randolph residence and crippled the meter. There was no fire.

Lightning played peculiar tricks at the home of John Mottley, of East Third street and Richmond streets, during the storm. A bolt tore the cover off a can of kerosene in the kitchen, but did not ignite the oil. Skipping to the store, the bolt tore the covers off seven cans of potted ham on a shelf, and set fire to some pipe wrappings. The lightning then bounded to the attic and tore a large hole in the roof. Mrs. Mottley was stunned by the bolt. The fire was easily extinguished and the damage will reach $50.

At Dunellen the fluid struck the bed in which Mrs. I. B. Stites was asleep, but did not harm her; it also bent and twisted the gas pipe in the room and passed out apparently through the window without breaking the glass or doing any further damage.

N. W. Apgar, a neighbor who saw the flash, said that the house looked as if it were in flames inside which accounted for the calling out of the firemen. Mrs. Stites while much frightened is apparently none the worse for her experience.

W. J. Nelson a Benedict.

Mrs. Emma Smith and William J. Nelson, both of this city, were married at 7 o'clock Saturday night at the home of Mrs. Smith's daughter, Mrs. Frank Sowden, of South avenue. Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate relatives and a few intimate friends. A reception followed the ceremony. The couple will continue to reside here. Mr. Nelson is well-known in this city, having been engaged in the well driving business for a great many years.

JOHN DOE TO ANSWER FOR THEFT OF A COW

With stuborn taciturnity, neither affirming nor denying the accusations brought against him, a neatly dressed stranger, known only to the police as "John Doe," was given a hearing at city police court before Judge William N. Runyon today, when George R. Carter, colored, charged him with having stolen his cow, and was remanded to the county jail in default of $50 bail, imposed by the magistrate. The prisoner's stuborn manner and his varying stories of defense told since his arrest and commitment to the Somerville jail by a Millstone justice of the peace Thursday, have baffled the police, who believe the man is mentally deficient.

Carter, who chased the cow thief and caught him Thursday afternoon near John Dowling's farm, in the vicinity of Millstone, told a highly dramatic story of the robbery and pursuit at the city court today, were "John Doe" asked for a hearing. The cow is a black and white animal, he said, and was staked out to pasture in a meadow with another cow, on West Eighth street, belonging to William A. Pinto. Carter missed the animal Thursday, when he returned to Mr. Pinto's place from work in the afternoon. He soon found the footprints of the bovine, and started in pursuit, thinking that she had strayed away. Persons whom he met told him that they had seen the cow, which was being led by a well-dressed man, wearing a light suit and a straw hat. Trailing his cow through the south end of the city, the colored man finally traced the footprints to John Dowling's farm. When a short distance from this, he saw his cow, drinking at the horse trough, while the stranger stood near by.

"It was then that I paused for the first, your Honor," said Carter, "for I thought to myself, 'Ah, perhaps this man has a wee-pon.' I paused, I say, but my mind told me 'you'd better go right to him; then, at all events, you and he must die together.'"

It wasn't as bad as all that, however, for "John" put up no fight, and willingly went with the colored man and Mr. Dowling to Millstone, where was given a hearing and committed to the Somerville jail. The prisoner said today that he had found the cow and had taken it to Mr. Dowling's farm to claim the reward offered.

Carter told the court that this was the second time this same man had tried to get away with his black and white cow. About three weeks ago, he said, he was working as gardner in the south end of the city when the stranger walked by, training the bovine by its rope. It had been pastured at the same place, but the man said at that time that he had found it on the highway and learning that Carter was employed where he was seen, had brought the animal to him, hoping for a reward. There was no charge against him at that time.

"John Doe," who is known by sight to some of the police, refused to talk about the theft of the cow after he was led back to his cell. Questioned by Chief Kiely, he would only repeat that he had nothing to say, and positively refused to reveal his identity.

JAG ARTISTS BEFORE POLICE COURT JUDGE.

The hot weather produced a batch of jags Saturday night and resulted in a busy session of the city court this morning. William Smith, colored, was found on East Second street by Detective Sergeant John Flynn. He was given $5 or twenty days. Sentence was suspended on the other prisoners. Henry Curtis, employed by the Salvation Army, fell from grace and was found on Berckman street. Richard Reynolds, of Elizabethport, was picked up by Patrolman Dunlap on Park avenue, Edward Mullen, a tramp printer, fell into the hands of Patrolman Birmingham, and upon his promise to leave town, sentence was suspended.

UNKNOWN AUTO HITS HIM; O'BRIEN BADLY HURT.

The name of the owner of the automobile or its driver were unobtainable this morning.

SITUATED IN CITY'S CENTRE.

Property Occupied by Cab Company to Be Used for the Purpose.

Plans are being made it is reported for a public market place for Plainfield, the Quoin Investment Company, owner of the property, having already determined upon the site and only awaiting a report from an architect before going ahead. The place where it is proposed to build a public market similar to those to be seen in Philadelphia and many southern cities is the business property long occupied by the Plainfield Cab Company fronting on North avenue, near Park avenue, and running through to East Second street.

It is considered an ideal location and it is said that the expense of renovations including the installation of stalls and other figures would be comparatively small. There would be the advantage of two large entrances and unlimited space in the very heart of the business section.

Space will be let by the month or by the year to farmers, dairymen, truckmen, poultry and produce dealers as well as butchers and an extra advantage to patrons according to the plans is said to be the proposition to open the place at day-light.

A public market, it is said, by local business men who heartily favor the scheme, would bring considerable trade to the local shops, inasmuch as the farmers and others coming here to dispose of their produce and the like would buy their wearing apparel, notions, groceries, household goods and other things at the local store.

The Plainfield Cab Company's lease on the property does not expire until November when it plans to take possession of a building in East Second street now being erected by Woolston & Buckle.

THEIR LAWN FETE NETS THIRTY-FIVE DOLLARS.

Under the auspices of the Y. P. S. C. E. of Trinity Refromed church, a delightful lawn fete was held at the home of Mrs. A. E. Lorton, at Watchung avenue and Second street Saturday night, when about $35 was realized for the furtherance of the work of the society. The lawn was beautifully decorated for the affair, numerous Japanese lanterns, strung from tree to tree, furnishing the illumination. A large American flag floated between two trees, and other flags were effectively used at the various booths.

Various members of the society were in charge of booths where lemonade, ice cream, cake and candy were sold and where there were several lawn games. A feature of the fair was the rainbow grab bag, in charge of Miss Lucie Coriell and Miss Anna Randall. Here the tale of the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow was graphically worked out and the prizes were selected from a daintily decorated grab bag. The target game was in charge of Elmer Gayle and Harold Schenck, and proved highly popular.

The intense heat did not keep people away, but those who thronged the grounds during the entire evening were especially attracted by the cooling refreshments, daintily served at tables. The lemonade well was in charge of Miss Emma Ryno and Miss Helen Crane, and the Misses Edna Dilts and Edna Cole were in charge of the candy table. The ice cream was served up by the Misses Clara Allen, Anna Bock and Grace Debele, and passed at the tables by various members of the society. Miss May Randolph was in charge at the cake table and Arthur Gaskell was the ticket-taker and was stationed at the gate.

The committee in charge of the affair was headed by Miss Harriet C. Randall, president of the society, and included the officers of the society and the members of its social committee. These were Fred Soper, first vice-president; LeRoy Leighton, second vice-president; Cornelius Schenck, treasurer; Russell Doeringer, recording secretary, and Miss May Randolph, corresponding secretary. The social committee comprised the Misses Edna Cole, Edan Dilts, Myra Dunavan, and Elmer Gayle, Charles Doeringer, Russell Doeringer, and Harold Schenck.

When the First Safe Deposit Vaults were built the critics doubted. "What," said they, "do you think people will take their papers and valuables out of their office safes and entrust them to you?"

But business men had experience with office safes—they are very ready to take advantage of this new protection and the safe deposits prospered.

Safe deposits are STANDARD today for firms, corporations and individuals.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The women of the Baptist church selected an ideal day for their ice cream and strawberry festival held on the church lawns Saturday afternoon and evening. The result was the affair was one of the most successful the church has yet held. The warm weather brought out the friends of the church and the cooling refreshment, together with the enticing ways of the waitresses, and those in charge of the stands did the rest, that of separating their friends from their money. The lawn at night presented a pretty picture with the rows of chinese lanterns encircling the festive crowd. All good things come to an end and by 10:30 the ice cream was sold out and the affair was brought to a close.

NOT A CORPOREAL DELIGHT.

Real Nature of the Kiss, as Viewed by a Writer Who Has Clearly Studied the Subject.

It is the fashion of the more bilious moralists to put kissing among the gross pleasures, with eating, yodling, snoring and the use of tobacco; but, as a matter of fact, it is not a corporeal delight at all, says a writer in the Baltimore Sun. Its sole physical accompaniment, indeed, is a sensation of suffocation, and this, as all will admit, is scarcely agreeable. No; the insidious charm of the pastime must be sought in its psychic effects—in its marvelous and delightful interference with the normal processes of ratiocination. A man kissed is a man transfigured and transmogrified. Let him be the worst of misanthropes before the sweet impingement of nose upon nose, and he may yet emerge from the turmoil a philanthropist. One kiss, properly stage-managed, is enough to transform a pirate into a poet, a politician into a philosopher, or vice versa. One small kiss, indeed, is sufficient to turn a proud, heaven-kissing bachelor into a servile married man—the most stupendous, antipodal and lamentable transformation possible, at this writing, in a mere human being.

NEWEST USE FOR NAIL FILE.

Guest at Philadelphia Dinner at First Caused Great Consternation by His Action.

A Philadelphia doctor has discovered a brand new use for a nail file which is likely to become much more prominent than the old use. A short time ago this doctor was a guest at a dinner in one of Philadelphia's most exclusive houses. When the last course had been served and the cigars were being passed the doctor reached down into his trousers and extracted a penknife. Slowly he opened a blade. Everybody gasped. Could it be that Dr. —— would so far forget himself as to manicure his nails at the table? All watched with bated breath. Slowly the doctor reached out and secured a match which was near his place. Then he deliberately struck his match on the rough part of the nail file and lit his cigar. The suspense was over and the doctor had not committed the frightful breach of etiquette which his associates had feared. Now the custom is spreading fast, for it is less effort than it is to stand on one leg to strike the match on one's shoe, and decidedly more elegant than the time-honored method of striking it on one's trousers.

Probably True.

"Say," said the farmer, who was unloading potatoes at the grocery, "do you believe that story about little George Washington and the hatchet and the cherry tree?"

"Don't ask me," laughed the grocer.

"Well, I think it is probably true. I've got a boy ten years old at home, and after he had teased me for a year or so I bought him a boy's ax."

"And did he cut down your favorite cherry tree?"

"He did a heap better than that. He cut down most of the apple orchard orchard."

"And did he tell a lie about it?"

"Nope. Owned up like a little man."

"And, like Washington, you praised him?"

"Unlike Washington, I didn't do any such blamed thing. I gave him a hiding on the spot, and have licked him once a day since and am going to keep it up until he is twenty-five years old."

Request for a Loan.

Hanging in our front hall was a large Japanese hat made of rice straw, and the colored girl in the kitchen was preparing to go to a masquerade ball, so we were not surprised when she sent the infant daughter of the house into the parlor Mardi Gras evening with the following note:

"Deer lady will you please mam lond me that hat that hing up in the froint hall please and let me have 25 c again—and this will be the last time I am going to wory you but please lond me that hat please mam this is the last time I am going to mass (mask) please lond me the hat please from Myrtle.

First Fare on the Comet.

Dr. John Inglis remembers a conversation with an old gentleman who claimed to have been the first to pay passage money on board the first passenger steamer in Europe—the historic Comet. The voyage undertaken was from the Broomielaw to Dalmuir—fourpence now by tramway car—and the fare was four shillings. It was taken by Henry Bell himself, the Comet was stopped and waited for half an hour till Bell and his passenger adjourned to an inn, where the first fare wet the toast of prosperity to the pioneer passenger steamer.—Glasgow Herald.

The Hour Glass.

Instead of being obsolete and simply an interesting relic, the hour glass in various forms is a twentieth century necessity. A machinist authority points out that for such purposes as timing, hardening and tempering heats in twist drill manufacture, where seconds or minutes must be gauged accurately, nothing serves like the hour glass with the right amount of sand. Accuracy to fractions of a second can be had much more easily than by watching the hands of a watch.

AN OIL STOVE BLAZE CAUSES ABOUT $200 LOSS.

An oil stove blazed up in a closet on the second floor of the premises at 332 Somerset street, occupied by Miss Anna Miles, yesterday afternoon about 2:30 and ignited the clothing hanging in the closet which set fire to the woodwork and in a few minutes a lively blaze was in progress.

The fire-alarm system having been put out of commission by the lightning early in the morning, caused some delay in summoning the department by telephone, and in the meantime the fire had eaten its way to the roof. Two extinguishers and two chemical tanks were emptied in the effort to put out the blaze and considerable of the woodwork had to be chopped away to get at it.

The firemen were somewhat hindered in their work by Miss Miles and had to do heroic work to accomplish what they did. Several of the men had their clothes spoiled and a section of the ceiling fell, parts of which struck Miss Miles, scratching her face and arms slightly.

The damage to the building amounted to about $200.

WEATHER FOR JUNE ACCORDING TO MR. NEAGLE.

Weather Prophet John Neagle has compiled the statistics concerning the excessive hot spell for June. The mean temperature for six days, last week, was 80.5, the mean maximum, 93.1; the mean minimum, 67.5. The maximum was 95 and the average maximum, 93.5.

The most welcome thunder storm which visited Plainfield early yesterday morning brought great relief to those suffering from the intense heat. The temperature dropped from 95 degrees before the shower to 66 degrees afterward.

The table of temperatures for the past week is as follows:

	Max.	Min.	Mean
June 21...	92	62	77.
" 22...	93	66	79.5
" 23...	92	69	80.5
" 24...	93	70	81.5
" 25...	96	69	82.5
" 26...	93	69	81.

Fairview Wins.

The Fairview Cycle Club defeated the Pastime A. C. Saturday on the De Lacy avenue grounds by a score of 10 to 6. This was the last contest this season for the Fairviews. They have won seven of the ten games played. The club will hold a fair Wednesday afternoon at the home of Charles Beckman on Fairview avenue. The committee in charge comprises Edmund Kenney, chairman; Frank Lowe, treasurer, and Charles Beckman.

TRINITY REFORMED NINE DEFEATED BY GRCAE M. E.

The Grace M. E. baseball team defeated the Trinity Reformed team on the former's grounds Saturday afternoon by a score of 13 to 7 in a loosely played game. The outcome never was in doubt after the first inning, the Grace boys getting on to Scofield's shoots in great style. Ira Vail relieved Scofield in the sixth and held his opponents down to three hits and one run for the last three innings.

The Trinity team, like many others which played in the terrific heat, were unable to put up their usual clever game.

Following is the score by innings:

G. M. E.	3 1 0 8 0 0 0 1 x	—13 9 3
Trin. R.	0 0 0 1 0 0 4 1 0 1	— 7 6 5

Three Crap Shooters Caught.

Crouching under an electric light on Cottage place late Saturday night three Italians who gave their names as Anthony Falconiero, Biaggio Delise and Pasquale Olive, were "shooting crap," when Patrolman Saffron, hearing the challenge "shoot a dime," swooped down on the players and seized the stakes. The Italians were given to understand that the game was unlawful when arraigned before City Judge Runyon at court today and were released with suspended sentence.

Pythians Memorial Service.

Fifty members of Crescent Company, No. 13, U. R. K. of P., of this city, took part in a Pythian Memorial service held in the First Reformed church, Somerville, yesterday afternoon. The affair was held under the auspices of the lodges in the district, which includes Plainfield, Somerville, Neshanic and Flemington, and there was a large representation.

Delegates to Summer School.

Superintendent F. E. Smith, of Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school, yesterday appointed Mrs. J. M. Tier, superintendent of the primary department, and Miss Mabel Wilson, superintendent of the junior department, as delegates to the Sunday-school Summer School to be held at Asbury Park for a week, beginning July 8.

Mrs. Betts Buried.

The funeral services at Mrs. J. B. Betts were held at Holy Cross church Saturday afternoon at 2:30, the Rev. George A. Warner officiating. The interment was in Hillside cemetery.

Captain and Mrs. Chauncey Humphrey, who have been visiting Mrs. Humphrey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Waring, of Park avenue, have returned to Captain Humphrey's post of duty.

QUESTIONS FOR THE MARTIANS.

When Professor Pickering gets that flashophone of his working, thereby putting us in communication with Mars, we should be ready with our questions. It would be absurd to establish the communication at an establish the communication at an expense of ten millions of dollars and then not have anything to say. Hence it is that we take the liberty of presenting a few inquiries which should be put before the 'phone gets out of order:

1. Is it hot enough for you?

2. What do you think of William Jennings Bryan?

3. Have your scientists yet been able to discover exactly where Moses was when the light went out?

4. Have you any authoritive knowledge as to the age of Anne?

5. Who struck Billie Patterson; how much did he strike him for; who was Billy Patterson, anyhow, and where did he get it?

6. Have you seen the man higher up lurking around any of your towpaths?

7. What are your impressions of America?

8. Should women smoke, and if so, what?

9. From where you are does the earth look like a pinhole in a rubber blanket or a microbe floating through space?

10. Have you planted your early spring beets yet?

11. What will you give us for Emma Goldman, Carrie Nation and Abdul the Dimmed, f. o. b. or C. O. D.?

12. How are the shad running this year?

13. Are your canals locked or on the level?

14. From where you are sitting can you see an English joke with the naked eye?

15. Whom do you consider the greatest living American?

16. Do you hold that if the opener of a jack-pot is obliged always to put his discard under the chips in the pool, whether he is going to split or not, this discard cannot be touched even if it is necessary to gather up the deadwood to complete the deal for the draw?—Harper's Weekly.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Three Bridges residents will meet Tuesday to vote upon a site upon which to erect a new public school.

Former Senator Stanger, of Glassboro, who has been ill for several months, is able to go out on the streets.

A land turtle, with the date 1837 carved on the shell, was picked up on Clayton Shutter farm, near Paulsboro.

There is still no trace of Robert Cox, of Trenton, aged seventy, who has been missing from his home since last Friday.

Daniel Smith, employed as a driver for the Adams Express Company at May's Landing, was overcome by the heat Saturday.

Harry Dalton died in the May's Landing jail Saturday while serving a thirty days' sentence for disorderly conduct at Atlantic City.

In the Cumberland county court Saturday Judge Tuller refused to license the Greenwich Piers Hotel, on the ground that it was not needed.

Michael Shultz, a Hainesport iron molder, was drowned in the Rancocas Creek, there Saturday, after he had fallen overboard from a boat.

Lewis Lawton & Sons, of Trenton, were Saturday awarded the work of building the new School of Arts, a gift of former Secretary of State Henry C. Kelsey, as a memorial to his wife.

So that he could attend the funeral of his mother, Frank Fisher was released from the Camden county jail Saturday by Judge Berry at Prosecutor Scovel's request. Fisher was sent to jail on April 27 in default of the payment of a fine of $75 after he had been convicted of larceny.

Several graduates of Girard College have made an offer of $5,000 for the property on Mill street, Mt. Holly, that once was the home of Stephen Girard, but the owner so far has refused to accept their offer. It is the desire of the graduates to present the building to the trustees of the college as a token of their regard for the founder and appreciation of the great benefits they derived from the institution.

Arraigned before Alderman Roth, in Camden Saturday, on a charge of defacing the property of Mrs. Sarah Houghton, at 926 Jefferson avenue, with bad eggs, George Dekert, eighteen years old, and David Percival, nineteen years old, were given the privilege of either cleaning the house or going to jail for ten days each. At first the youths said they would go to jail, but suddenly changed their minds and ten minutes later were at work with brooms.

The T. C. Wheaton Glass Company at Millville, which put the continuous tank out of blast Thursday night, closed the season Saturday night and every furnace was put out immediately. The company had intended to shut down for the season on June 30, but the intense heat made it impossible to make ware. It is understood that some of the other companies will discontinue for the season on Saturday night. All of the Millville glassmakers announce that they have many orders for the next season, and that they will without doubt resume full capacity the first or second week of September.

Hurriedly borrowing a revolver from a merchant Saturday, Dr. Geo. Cunningham, of Vineland, mounted a bicycle and pursued an alleged bicycle thief who is said to have been operating in Vineland for some months. On the outskirts of the town the physician found his own stolen wheel in the hands of a colored man, who had stopped on the roadside to rest, and, at the point of the revolver marched him back to town and landed him in the lock-up. The negro was declared by John Robinson to be the fellow who stole former Mayor Joseph A. Conwell's wheel and sold it to a Vineland man on weekly instalments.

"JOY RIDERS" RUN WILD IN $4,500 AUTO TRUCK.

Three men leaped into an auto truck in Jersey City, Friday and started on a "joy ride," which was both brief and exciting. Being unfamiliar with the mechanism, the men allowed the truck to run from one side of the street to the other, narrowly escaping collision with vehicles and trolley cars and driving women and children into stores and hallways.

The truck leaped to the sidewalk at Erie and Fifth streets and shattered two granite pillars at the main entrance of a storage warehouse. The damage is estimated at $300.

At Erie and Seventh streets the truck crashed into a butcher's wagon. Thomas Bratten, sixteen years old, of No. 206 Sixth street, driver of the wagon, was thrown to the street and injured about the head and one of the axles of the wagon was broken.

Dennis Wright, one of those in the truck, was arrested on charges of grand larceny and assault and battery. The former charge was preferred by Edward Lamb, of Montclair, an employe of the Union Terminal Storage Company, which owns the auto truck. It is valued at $4,500. The assault and battery charge was made by the injured boy. Wright's companions escaped.

A JERSEY POSTMASTER IN BANKRUPTCY COURT.

Trenton, June 28. — Counselor Richard S. Wilson, for Charles C. Lawrence, storekeeper and postmaster at Trenton Junction, Wednesday filed schedules in bankruptcy in the United States District Court, showing debts aggregating $1,190.57 and assets of $952.

It is understood that Mr. Lawrence has been a sick man, and in his ill-health he has not been able to get relief from his embarrassments any other way than to go through bankruptcy.

His accounts with Uncle Sam are in perfect shape, and have always been so.

"A PENCIL PISTOL."

There is never complete freedom from danger of some kind or another, but there are some dangers that might be minimized in result were a capable means of self-defense at hand. A mad dog, a highwayman and many other "scares" which beset us in everyday life may come when we are in a state of unpreparedness. Armed with a litle ingenious device, such as the "pencil pistol," a new invention, many such predicaments might assume less dangerous aspects.

The "pencil pistol," which can be carried in a vest pocket or in a lady's handbag, is a very simple contrivance, consisting of only three parts—the barrel, a trigger spring and the stock. It fires .32 calibre short cartridges, and with sufficient power to penetrate at thirty feet a two-inch plank. There is this point about all such weapons. They are dangerous in the hands of the mischievous and inexpert. They should be in the hands of responsible adults only.—William R. Carpenter, in the June Van Norden.

ABOUT THE HOUSE.

If a soup is salty, either cook a few pieces of potato in it, to counteract the extra seasoning, or add a little brown sugar.

One need not hesitate to put the rag and fiber rugs which need cleaning into the wash tub and give them a thorough scrubbing.

Cabbage cut up in shreds and creamed makes a delicate and tasty dish. Serve as one does creamed celery or creamed cauliflower.

When next baked custard is part of the menu, serve it with a little caramel syrup. It is delicious.

Tomatoes stuffed with asparagus tips and tipped with a generous amount of mayonnaise dressing make delicious salad. Serve on hearts of lettuce leaves.

Preserved ginger or a little currant jelly with tasty crackers, passed with the cup of tea, is a happy though.

Oftentimes the burned part of a cake may be removed by scraping it with a grater when the cake is quite cold.

BUNGALOW LIFE AT PORT-AU-PECK ON THE SHREWSBURY—Bungalow colonies, originally a California institution, are springing up all over the east. Many persons of means believe this to be the most healthful manner in which to spend a vacation. It takes them away from the irksome forms of conventionality and puts them in close touch with nature. It enables them to roam through the woods or sail over the sparkling waters, getting fresh air, sunlight and exercise, which has built many a rundown body up to the exacting requirements of our rushing twentieth century pace. The cooling breezes of the Atlantic meet and mingle with the ozone from the woods, forming an atmospheric combination which carries health and vigor through every pair of lungs inhaling it. These are the conditions at Port-au-Peck on the Shrewsbury. In addition you have fishing, hunting, sailing, canoeing, motor boating, golfing, tennis, bathing and all other forms of healthful, vigorous sports in this section, no matter in what direction you turn. The out-of-doors man or woman will find no more attractive place on this continent in which to spend two or three months or week ends in search of recreation and health. For indoor sports there is a large club-house available with bowling alleys and billiard rooms and is especially equipped to give those small affairs in case you should want to. Thirty bungalows now under construction, from $2,000 up, including the plot, 50x150 feet deep; driven artesian wells on each. Send for booklet. Yours for the asking. You are invited to visit Port-au-Peck as our guest. For further particulars see Charles Matt, Port-au-Peck Realty Co., 1328 Broadway, corner 34th street. BLUE AND GRAY TO REUNITE IN JERSEY

Preparations are complete for the big reunion at the Grassmere, the home of General E. Burd Grubb, at Edgewater Park today, when the survivors of the Eighth Alabama, which "licked" the Jersey boys at Salem Church in the Civil War, will be present. When Colonel Hilary Herbert, formerly Secretary of the Navy, was a guest at last year's reunion of General Grubb's command the latter promised his "boys" that another year would see present on the banks of the Delaware every survivor of the famous Alabama regiment who could be mustered for the trip North.

In their out butternut uniforms, torn and bullet-cut, the Alabama boys are coming, headed by Colonel Herbert and Captain Alexander. General Thomas Mulford will head the Southern delegation. A feature of the reunion will be a reception by Mrs. Grubb to Daughters of the Confederacy who will come North for the occasion.

Because the weather of the early spring has become a menace to the health of the aged veterans General Grubb this year postponeed the reception from May 3 until Monday, June 28. This latter date will memorialize the mustering out of the Twenty-third New Jersey Infantry, known as the famous "Yohoos," on June 27, 1863, and the mustering in, just one year later, of "Grubb Game Chickens," Thirty-seventh New Jersey Regular Volunteers.

The reunion of Monday will be one of the largest of recent years. Ranks of the "Yohoos" and "Game Chickens" are thinning out so fast that the gallant host and beautiful hostess of Grassmere have extended the invitation to several neighboring Grand Army organizations, and from Trenton to Camden, along the Delaware there will sound a welcome.

It is expected that two thousand old soldiers will take part in the celebration. Colonel Herbert is as enthusiastic as General Grubb over the prospects of the coming gathering.

BEEF CHEAPER FOR SOLDIER THAN CITIZEN.

Trenton, June 28.—Despite the fact that meat is going higher to the householder, the State of New Jersey Wednesday made a contract through Quartermaster-General C. Edward Murray for beef for the Sea Girt encampment fo $1.50 less per hundred-weight than for the preceding year, and he also bought mutton for twenty cents a hundred-weight less than last year. The qualities of all the meats are the same as last year, too.

The lowest bidder for bread for the encampment was seven cents higher a hundred loaves than for the same quality last year. The increased price for flour, because of the corner in wheat, accounts for this increase.

General Murray opened the bids for camp supplies Wednesday, and the contract for beef was awarded to Margerum & Gravatt at $8.20 per hundred-weight. The Monmouth Meat and Provision Company got the contracts for mutton at $9 a hundred-weight, and for corned beef $5.50 per hundred-weight; for bacon, at $13.50 a hundred-weight, and for ham at $13.50 per hundred-weight.

The various bidders on all these meats were Margerum & Gravatt, Frank Pittenger, Monmouth Meat and Provision Company, H. G. Sureve, Bennett & Height and the Armour Packing Company.

A $22,000 JERSEY CITY BEQUEST FOR EX-CLERK.

Pittsburg, June 28.—A number of Pittsburg detectives were Wednesday set to work hunting for Miss Margaret Jane Conrad, formerly a grocer's clerk in this city, to whom has been left $22,000 by the will of Mrs. Anna Adams, who died recently in Jersey City. A letter has been received by Mayor William A. Magee from R. A. Allison, of Jersey City, asking that the girl be found at once, since the bequest had come to her on account of some act of kindness performed for the Jersey City woman some years ago.

The police have learned that Miss Conrad was formerly employed in the grocery store of H. A. Charters, here, but that she left there in the fall of 1901, and has not been heard of since. It was understood at the time that she was leaving her employment to get married. Mayor Magee has requested the Pittsburg newspapers to display the fact that Miss Conrad, or she who was formerly Miss Conrad, is wanted.

The young woman's fellow-clerks say Miss Conrad had frequent visits from persons in Jersey City.

Jersey City, June 28.—There is no R. A. Allison in the Jersey City directory.

TURNS DOWN JOB AS DRUNKARDS' GUARDIAN.

Hackettstown, June 28.—Declaring that in his opinion the enactment of the Hillery law providing for drunkards' guardians was without moral backing, and that it was in the interests of the brewers, who foresaw the danger of local option throughout the State, Frederick Fowler has declined to serve as a member of the board to which he was appointed recently by the Common Council.

Mr. Fowler served notice upon the councilmen Wednesday of his intention to turn down the job, and told of having made an investigation which prompted him to look with suspicion upon the object of the law. Mr. Fowler would not discuss the details of his inquiry further than to make known his reason for quitting. The other members of the board are Andrew W. Trimmer and Charles V. Congle. The council, it is said, will meet to fill the vacancy in July.

INSURANCE TRUST TO APPEAL.

Richard V. Lindabury gave notice Friday at Trenton that application would be made to the Court of Errors for reargument of the proceedings in which an injunction was granted against the Newark Fire Insurance Exchange, familiarly known as the Fire Insurance Trust.

The concern was declared illegal about a week ago, it being held that the combination by which insurance rates were fixed was in restraint of trade.

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

she finished with a look of triumph. "What a terrible indictment!" she said scornfully. "So that was what you counted on to convince me of my mistake? I shall tell Lord Hawcastle

"What a terrible indictment!" she said.

that you will be willing to take up the matter of the settlement the moment his solicitor arrives."

Pike shook his head sadly.

"No, I wouldn't do that, because I won't take up any settlements with him or any one else."

"Have you after this any objection to my alliance with Mr. St. Aubyn?" she inquired, her anger at white heat.

"It isn't an alliance with Mr. St. Aubyn you're after," he replied calmly. "You're after something there ain't anything to. If I'd let you buy what you want you'd find it as empty as the judgment day the morning after. You think because I'm a jay country lawyer I don't understand. Why, we've got the same thing at home. There was little Annie Hoffmeyer. Her pa was a carpenter and doing well, but Annie could not get into the Kokomo Ladies' Literary society, and her name didn't show up in the society column four or five times every Saturday morning, so she gets her pa to give her the money to marry Artie Seymour, the minister's son, and a regular minister's son he was! Almost broke Annie's heart and her pa's, too, but he let her have her way and went in debt and bought them a house on Main street. That was two years ago."

Pike paused momentarily.

"Annie's working at the deepo candy stand now," he resumed, "and Artie's working at the hotel bar—in front—drinking up what's left of old man Hoffmeyer's settlement!"

She flung away from him in a temper and then wheeled on him in a flash.

"And you say you understand—you, who couple the name of a tippling yokel with that of a St. Aubyn, whose ancestors have fought on every field of battle from Crecy and Agincourt to the Crimea!"

"But you won't see much of his ancestors!" complained Pike.

"He bears their name," she answered.

"That's it, and it's the name you want. Nobody could look at you and not know it wasn't him! It's the name! And I'd let you buy it if it would make you happy—if you didn't have to take the people with it. Don't you see they're counting on it? The earl—he's counting on living on you." The Indianian became excited. "Why, a Terre Haute pickpocket could see that! And this old Lady Creech—she's counting on it, and this Frenchwoman that's with them—isn't she trying to land your brother? The whole kit and boodle of them are on the track of John Simpson's money!"

"I gave Almeric my promise. It was forever, and I shall keep it," she answered slowly, as if she had been impressed with his earnestness. He looked at her quietly.

"I'm not going to let you," he replied.

"Then I'll throw your interference to the winds. I shall marry without your consent."

"Do you think they'd let you?" Pike asked quickly. For a moment she stood still, and then came the sound of the guitars from over the wall. Pike went on after a time.

"Sounds kind of foreign and lonesome," he said. "I'd rather hear something that sounded more like home—'Sweet Genevieve,' for instance. You know it, don't you?"

"I used to," she answered, hanging her head. "It's old fashioned and common, isn't it?"

"That's why I like it, I guess," he answered. "I couldn't get you to sing it for me before I go home, could I?"

She looked at him thoughtfully for a moment.

"I'm afraid not," she answered and went quickly into the hotel, leaving him looking after her curiously.

CHAPTER XIV.

BLACKMAIL.

PIKE was still standing with the letter in his hand, looking after Ethel, when he awoke to the realization of what her words meant to him. She had given her promise, and she did not mean that anything in the world should make her revoke it. That promise was sacred to her, just as if it had been spoken before a clergyman.

In his heart Pike knew he would have to give in if he was to make her happy, and yet he knew that in making her temporarily happy he would be making her eternally miserable. If he could have the strength to hold out against her and refuse to sanction the marriage he knew the crew of aristocrats would never accept her without the cash, and that by the terms of John Simpson's will could never be theirs without his consent.

Of his own hopes he could see but the faintest glimmering. He had irretrievably offended the girl, and she would hate him all her life for it, he feared. His entrance into her new phase of life had been unfortunate. His continuance in it was little else than an insult, according to her way of thinking. And Jim Cooley, whom he had trusted to find the flaw in the Hawcastle escutcheon that he knew had existed, had failed him miserably.

The lawyer felt that he was a long way from home. He sighed and turned to where the sun was sinking in a haze of red across the bay. Then he heard the voice of Horace and chiming with it the cultured accents of Lord Hawcastle. Apparently they were coming to seek him. She had reiterated his refusal.

Wearily he turned again to the automobile and leaned against it. As he did so he heard Horace say:

"But Ethel says Mr. Pike positively refuses."

In return he heard Hawcastle reply:

"Leave him to me. In ten minutes he will be as meek as a lamb."

Dumbly Pike wondered what fresh argument the earl had to offer and mentally steeled himself against it. As he looked up he encountered the steady glare of the earl.

"My dear Pike," began the latter, "there is a certain question"—

"I said I would not discuss that with you. I meant what I said," observed Daniel quietly.

"This is another question," went on the other, heedless of the warning or at least unaffected by it.

"Late this afternoon I developed a great anxiety concerning the penalty prescribed by Italian law for those fortunate and impulsive individuals who connive at the escape or concealment of certain unfortunates who are wanted by the police."

Daniel looked at him, with a smile.

"So you're all worked up about that, are you?" Hawcastle glared at him, but went on.

"So deeply that I ascertained the penalty for it. For the person whose kind heart has so betrayed him the penalty is two years in prison, and Italian prisons, I am credibly informed, are—unpleasant."

Pike ruminated and folded his letter.

"Being in jail ain't much like an Elks' carnival," he observed.

"Even a citizen of your admirable country could not escape if his complicity were proved—if he were caught in the act. I will be plain with you."

These last words had an ominous note. "Let us imagine that a badly wanted man appeared upon the pergola here and made an appeal to one of your countrymen who, for the purposes of argument, is at work upon this car. Say that the too amiable American conceals the fugitive under the automobile and afterward, with the connivance of a friend, deceives the officers of the law and shelters the criminal, say, in a room of that lower suit there."

He looked about in the growing twilight and pointed dramatically to the window. Pike, now thoroughly interested and with his pulse beating a rapid tattoo, followed his finger. The earl went on:

"Imagine, for instance, that the shadow which appears upon that curtain were that of the wanted man. Would you not agree then to a reasonable request?"

Daniel swallowed painfully, for he saw in some manner that that swaying window curtain which had caught his eye an hour ago had held a distinct menace. It seemed too bad that this should be the end of it all—all the defenses he had raised for the girl of his dead friend should be swept away in an instant by a bit of folly.

"What would be the nature of that request?" he asked.

"It would concern a certain alliance—might concern a certain settlement," the earl replied softly.

"If the request were refused, what would the consequences be?" Pike went on, with lowered eyes, for he would not trust himself to meet those of the nobleman.

"Two years at least in prison for the American."

"Looks bad for—that American, eh?" Pike inquired whimsically.

Lord Hawcastle stepped close to him.

"If this fellow countryman of yours were assured that the law would be permitted to take its course if a favorable answer to a certain question were not received in an hour within that hotel, what, in your opinion, would the answer be?".

(To be continued.)

FORTY BIG CASES OF SAMPLE BLANKETS
IN A MID-SUMMER SALE.

Once a year all the great blanket mills send us sample lines of their blankets in competition for our immense fall order.

We make intelligent comparisons of all the blankets submitted, weigh them, analize them, even chew the edge to make sure of the quality, and the worthiest are chosen. Every blanket has a fair chance—we play no favorites, and only the best are ordered.

These blankets come from Minneapolis, the Middle West, and all the wool growing parts of the country, and many of them are the aristocratic California blankets.

WE RETURN NONE OF THE SAMPLES

The makers rather than pay the expressage back to the mills, allow us a generous concession on the cost, and it is such blankets as these, bought in this way, that we are going to offer you this week.

Our tests are so severe that some of the samples are over-handled, the nap considerably rubbed, the bindings ripped on the edge to test the threads, so we don't offer them as strictly perfect. But there is nothing radically wrong with them and the low price will make up for any defects:

PLAINFIELD'S NINE WON

Local Team Defeated "Dave" Driscoll's New Brunswick Team.

BY A SCORE OF SEVEN TO SIX.

Ortleib Pitches a Fine Game—Another Game Will Be Played Next Saturday.

The Plainfield Baseball Club went gunning for big game Saturday, and succeeded in defeating "Dave" Driscoll's famous New Brunswick team by a score of 7 to 6, in one of the most sensational contests of the season at New Brunswick. The importance of the victory can be realized when it is known that it is the second defeat New Brunswick has received this year. The first defeat was at the hands of the Philadelphia Giants. Yesterday, New Brunswick evened up matters by defeating the colored team by a score of 5 to 4.

Ortleib pitched a fine game for Plainfield Saturday, holding his opponents safe all the way. He was opposed by Langstaff, a crack twirler, saved for the game. He held Plainfield without a run or hit for seven innings and then the locals got to him for four singles, a three bagger and two free passes, netting five runs. The eighth again brought luck, when two singles and a three bagger netted two runs, sufficient to win the contest.

New Brunswick tallied three runs in the third inning, one in the eighth and two in the ninth, when they nearly won the game. Jack Martin, who was playing against his old team mates, had a chance to win the game, but Ortleib fanned him in the ninth and thereby dashed the hopes of the home team. Next Saturday the same teams will meet on Crescent Oval and there should be a record breaking attendance to see the old favorites. The score:

ORANGE Y. M. C. A. NINE DEFEATS LOCAL TEAM.

In a game full of misplays, much bickering with the umpire and a lot of useless exchange of uncomplimentary language the Orange Y. M. C. A. team won from the local Y. M. C. A. team on Saturday by a score of 13 to 12. Undoubtedly the heat had a great deal to do with the poor showig of both teams and helped the men to roll up a big score of errors.

However, some good work was done by the men of the local team, notably that of catcher George Linke, who besides playing his position in a masterly fashion ran the bases like a big leaguer and with any kid of batting in the ninth inning would have tied the game in the second half of that period.

Fritz replaced O. Linke on the mound in the seventh only to go to pieces. In taking the ascension he was assisted materially by the noisy coaching of the Orange men. Score by innings.

SCOTCH PLAINS WINS BY A SCORE OF 6 TO 2

The Scotch Plains baseball team outplayed the McKiernan A. C. in the game at the Plains Saturday afternoon, defeating the visitors by a score of 6 to 2. The down the line team got busy in the first inning and found Byers' delivery for two singles. This and some daring baserunning put the visitors in the air and when the smoke cleared the game was well in hand. To make a sure thing of it the home team scored again in the second and third and again in the eighth.

The visitors could do nothing with Montross, only two hits being secured off his delivery. In the second, Shott, first man up, put a clean three-bagger in centre field, but the next three men up could not help him across the plate. In their half of the ninth the home team became too confident and began throwing the ball around and two runs came in an a bad throw to second base. The score:

GOLF SCORES RETURNED AT THE PARK CLUB

There was an unusually large field out at the Park Golf Club on Saturday, when several interesting events were scheduled. The club championship was decided, Dr. H. K. Carroll defeating Rev. C. L. Goodrich, 5 up and 4 to play in the final round. This match was close throughout.

In the play for the President's golf club and Summer cups, several low scores were posted. As a result of the play, Charles B. Morse now leads for the President's and Summer cups. He went out Saturday in 42 and came home in 47, fine playing, considering that course has been made even more difficult. At times he was playing equal to bogie. Dr. Carroll is second for these two cups, W. R. Faber third and R. B. Titsworth fourth.

There is a great revival of interest in golf at the club, thirty new members have been elected recently. The course was never in better condition and it is crowded every Saturday with players. An added feature is the accommodations at the clubhouse, where luncheons and dinners are being given frequently.

The leading scores for the President's, golf club and Summer cups, were as follows:

ELEVEN TO ELEVEN AT END OF 11TH INNING

With the temperature hovering around the century mark, and the sun sending forth its hottest rays, the baseball teams of the Watchung Hunt Club and the Plainfield Country Club struggled for eleven long innings Saturday afternoon, each hoping for victory. Ordinarily nine innings would have been sufficient, but eleven stanzas were played and the contest was called with the score a tie, 11 to 11. If the players recover another game will be played on July 10.

Duncan Bulkley was in the box for the hunt club, while Robert Abbott was the pitcher for the country club aggregation. The former was not up to his usual form, and was hit hard throughout the contest, while Abbott seemed to have better curves and control. In the sixth inning the score was 5 to 4 in favor of the hunt club, and then the opposing nine got five runs over the rubber, making the tally 9 to 5. In the next inning the hunt club got busy and tied the score, 9 to 9, and tallied one run in the seventh and another in the eighth.

This spurred the country club fellows to greater things and they tied the score in the ninth. The score then stood 11 to 11 up to the end of the eleventh inning when the game was called. Some of the players were "all in down and out" as a result of the intense heat, and of the contest had not been called in the eleventh inning, it would doubtless have been necessary to call the ambulance and a corps of physicians. While the game was not played strictly along scientific lines, it furnished no end of fun for the spectators. Both Morris Dumont and Henry DeForest caught well and tried hard for victory.

Mylie Goodwin and J. Hartley Mellick umpired, and they were kept busy deciding the plays, many of them being very close. Several times they were threatened with annihilation for their decisions, but they were immovable. The teams lined up as follows:

Watchung Hunt Club—A. L. Otterson, 1b; W. L. Righter, 2b; Stuart Johnston, ss; Wylie Brown, 3b; Gilbert Fletcher, cf; Henry E. Butler, rf; Duncan Bulkley, p; Morris J. Dumont, c; Ford Johnston, W. B. Tyler, lf.

Plainfield Country Club—W. R. Rushmore, 1b; T. W. Wallace, 2b; H. L. Eaton, lf; Henry Cochran, ss; Robert Abbott, p; Henry DeForest, c; Arthur Lovell, 3b; Ames Brooks, rf; F. D. Warren, cf.

SATURDAY GOLF ON THE P. C. C'S. COURSE

The first eight qualified for the first round championship play, while the next six qualified for play for the consolation cup. W. Lester Glenney returned the best score in the qualifying round, a 77, but the other scores were also low and the competition keen. The first eight to qualify were as follows:

W. Lester Glenney, 77; C. B. Morgan, 78; Arthur Murphy, 80; Robert Abbott, 82; Henry D. Hibbard, 87; William T. Glenney, 90; R. G. Morse, 94; E. T. Willson, 96. These qualified for play for the consolation cup:

A. L. Wills, 97; Hugh F. Fox, 99; G. F. Earl, 102; C. C. Riggs, 104; S. H. Patterson, 104; P S. Perkins, 104.

The first round will be played on Saturday, and the semi-final and final play will be on Monday, July 5.

The leading scores for the Spring Handicaps cups, Classes A and B, were as follows:

A—C. B. Morgan, 78, 8-70; Arthur Murphy, 80, 8-72; W. Lester Glenney, 77, 4-73.

Class B—Harold Serrell, 97, 27-70; W. L. C. Glenney, 97, 26171; A. W. Kleinecke, 108, 36-72; Hugh F. Fox, 99, 24-75; P. S. Perkins, 104, 27-77.

DISCUSS CITY'S WELFARE

Plainfield Protective Association Holds Its Annual Meeting.

RE-ELECT R. HENRY DEPEW.

Mayor Fisk, Former Mayor Randolph and Others Make Addresses—President's Report.

The meeting of the Plainfield Protective Association held last night in the office of George W. V. Moy, was attended by sixteen members with president R. Henry Depew in the chair. In the absence of secretary Henry C. White, Champlin M. Riley was elected secretary pro tem The president's report, which is printed below, gave the members the topics for the evening's discussion and they were thoroughly threshed out, although no decisive action was taken on any one of them. Mayor Charles J. Fisk spoke at length on the Sewerage Disposal, Water Contract, Police and Public Park, and former Mayor Randolph, A. H. Atterbury and others presented their views on the same subjects. The report of Treasurer Moy showed a balance of $1,686.13 in the treasury.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, R. Henry Depew; vice-president, G. T. Rogers; secretary, Champlin M. Riley and treasurer, E. W. Bulkley. Executive committee: Albert H. Atterbury, Henry C. White, C. W. McCutcheon, David E. Titsworth, Thos. M. Day, Jr., George W. V. Moy, D. M. Vliet and Henry C. Deknatel.

Mayor Fisk in speaking of the water contract said that there were two things that could be done, acquire the water works either by purchase or through condemnation proceedings, or make a contract for the supply. The first would involve the getting of a value on both the plant and the franchise, which at present could not be done accurately, because the company withholds the information regarding their revenue and expenses. After making an estimate of the cost of a city water works the Public Affairs Committee had come to the conclusion that a city water works would be inadvisable.

Referring to sewerage disposal Mayor Fisk said that the whole State is agitated over this question. The present sewerage bed will be sufficient for some time, but the present tanks will have to be added to within a few years according to the growth of the city. The matter has been taken up with other municipalities and the subject of a trunk system was found to be too expensive at the present time. He also said that sooner or later Plainfield would have to take care of the sewerage from Fanwood, and suggested that a meeting of citizens be called to specially consider the sewerage question.

In the matter of a public park the Mayor said that he believed there ought to be such a park, but that the city ought to own it without any strings attached to it such as the reality people wanted to burden it with, i. e., helping them to enhance their holdings by cutting their streets through for them.

Police matters have been laid over for the present as far as the Mayor is concerned, but he said that an increased force would become imperative some day in the not too distant future. The Mayor also explained his reasons for his action in vetoing certain street improvements which was on the ground of unequal assessments. At present experiments are being made on the different streets of the city in order to determine what will be the best material for road and street paving. As a peroration his Honor said: "The Common Council and Mayor are simply a corporation of which the people are the stockholders and as such are entitled to their perogative of having their say in the administration of the affairs of their city."

Former Mayor Randolph took a a fall out of the police system saying that at present there are more patrolmen than it is wise to have and suggested the substitution of "plain-clothesmen" whose services would be more effective in the prevention of crime and the detection of criminals. The expenditure of $6,000 to $8,000 more per annum for aditional policemen would be unwise. Mr. Randolph also said that as Plainfield is not at the mercy of any water company and the people ought to own the water supply.

Secretary Riley spoke along the same lines and added that such a proposition would be a fine education in citizenship.

Mr. Atterbury referred to the series of burglaries committed several years ago and commented upon the

MILK COMMISSION WORK

Veterinary and a Bacterioligist are Appointed by the Board.

DR. DUNDON IS PRESIDENT.

Dr. Butler Secretary—George E. Clark's Experiments Are Interesting.

The Milk Commission of Union and Middlesex counties, comprising five physicians, Dr. Donahue, Dr. Butler, of New Brunswick; Dr. Fisher and Dr. Church, of Bound Brook, and Dr. A. H. Dundon, of North Plainfield, met yesterday afternoon at the home of George E. Clark, proprietor of the Clarkhurst Farm, and organized by electing Dr. Dundon president and Dr. Butler secretary. Among those attending the meeting was State Senator Geo. Silzer, through whose efforts the commission was appointed, and he spoke in the interest of the movement.

The chief purpose of the commission is to insure a certain standard of milk supply, guaranteeing pruity. The members will meet once a month. While not a member of the commission, Dr. Voorhees, of Somerville, has been retained as the veterinary, and Dr. Thompson, of Rutgers College, is the bacterioligist for the body.

The commission was greatly interested in some experiments being conducted by Mr. Clark, tending to di prove the theory that while Holstein cattle give large quantities of milk it is lacking in quality. These experiments have proved that the richest butter can be made from milk obtained from Holstein cattle. Experts from Rutgers College have become greatly interested in these experiments and others of a similar character will be conducted from time to time.

ENTERTAINS MINSTRELS ON HIS 21ST BIRTHDAY

George D. Wilson entertained the Franklin Minstrel troue at his home, 426 Madison avenue, last night. In the reception of the members Mr. Wilson was assisted by his mother and two sisters. The occasion was the twenty-first birthday of Mr. Wilson and it was taken advantage of by his friends to surprise him. There were about 40 present which included all the members of the troupe excepting Edward J. Harding, who is ill and at the hospital. The lawn about the house was decorated and of course the wives and sweethearts of the members were present to help make the event an enjoyable one. Dancing and singing were enjoyed, the following singers rendering solos: Geo. D. Wilson, Thomas Connolly, George Rittenhouse, George Smith, William Tunison, William J. Fitzgerald add William R. Anderson. James E. Moore contributed a monologue and with the refreshments that were served a jolly good time was spent.

The surprise of the evening came when W. J. Firstbrook, in a neat little speech, presented Mr. Wilson with a silver shaving set which Mr. Tunison carried in with all the dignity of a feudal retainer. Mr. Wilson's response was lost in the general hand-clapping which followed the presentation, but the boys are sure it was sensible and appreciative.

This reception marked the close of the season for the troupe and according to Mr. Firstbrook it has been a successful one. The net proceeds added to the trasury amounted to $283.85. Next year the troupe will have entirely new costumes and expect to do much better than during the season just closed.

CHARTER DAYS' JUDGES

Well-Known Jerseymen to Award Prizes in the Several Parades.

THE OPEN AIR PROGRAM.

Invited Guests to Be Well Entertained—More Contributions Still Coming In.

With the opening of the Charter Day spectacle less than a week off, already both the city and borough present a gala appearance and the elaborate plans for the three days events, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, July 5, 6 and 7, are complete. The demonstration will surpass the most sanguine expectations of the chairmen of the various committees and their zealous assistants.

The judges of the floats in the first day's parade, announced today, include State officials from all oved New Jersey, who will be the guests of the citizens' committee of city and borough during the day's exercises. To decide upon the handsomest float in the line the first day, a committee has been named which comprises Colonel E. W. Hine, of Newark; Justice J. J. Bergen, of Somerville; State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees, of Morristown; Mayor Cardwell, of East Orange, and Mayor Appleby, of Asbury Park. Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford; Surrogate George T. Parrot, of Elizabeth; Mayor Florence, of New Brunswick; William E. Tuttle, of Westfield, and former Sheriff Selah Schoonmaker, of Somerville, will form the committee to decide upon the most unique float in the line and award this price. Judges for the other days will be announced as soon as the lists are completed.

Mayors Fisk and Townsend have completed arrangements for the entertainment of the score or more of prominent men who have been invited to be the guests of city and borough upon the opening day of the celebration, and they will be assisted in their dties as hosts by the reception committee of fifty. The guests are requested to meet at the Hartridge auditorium in the morning, and will be escorted from there to the reviewing stand at Park avenue and West Eighth street at 9:30 o'clock. Following the review, they will return to the Hartridge auditorium, where a luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock.

The first day's parade, that of the civic, military, benevolent, fraternal, labor, industrial and social organizations, Monday morning, July 5, will be the greatest pageant ever witnessed in Union county. The mounted squad of police escorting the mayors of the city and borough, with the Board of Trade officers, heads of committees and distinguished guests will be followed by a brass band. There will be ten other brass bands in line. Behind a battalion of the Second Regiment of the National Guard of New Jersey will be an imposing line of commanderies of the Knights Templar.

Other fraternal organizations will follow. The Jr. O. U. A. M. will be represented by at least 2,000 marchers. The Masonic order, the Odd Fellows, The Elks, the Red Men and other kindred organizations will also be in line.

The labor organizations will be one of the sights. The Trades Council has given assurance that at least 1,000 union labor men will participate. The carpenters, the masons, the plumbers and what not will be on hand in goodly numbers. No doubt the machinists will be largely represented. Altogether there will be a parade long enough and grand enough for one to take two hours to see it pass by.

One of the chief features of this pageant will be the floats. There will be over fifty of them in the parade. Some will cost as high as $200 apiece. The handsomest ones will be raffled off after the first day's parade is over. A float that is bound to create lots of attention in line is the "Bungalow" now being constructed on a large wagon by the Master Builders' Association. This float represents a complete little bungalow, and is substantially constructed, complete in itself. Although a bit small, it is habitable, and the association has already had several offers from people who want to buy it. Handsome souvenirs, including cups will be offered for the most costly, most ornate and most unique floats.

The first rehearsal of the big chorus of school children who are to sing patriotic songs at the open air meeting to be held in the city parq on the afternoon of July 5, was held last night at the Y. M. C. A. building, when the Y. M. C. A. orchestra, which has been augmented by many well-known local musicians. J. Edmund Skiff, organist and choirmaster of the First M. E.

RUFUS C. FINCH HURT, HE LOSES FINE HORSE

Rufus C. Finch is detained at his home with severe injuries, the result of a mishap while riding in the steeplechase meet of the Monmouth County Hunt Club, Saturday. He was mounted on Fletcher Harper's horse, Gendarme, and the animal crowded the rider into a fence twisting the ligaments, until it was thought that the leg was broken. Mr. Finch was found on the course by his brother, Harry Finch, who assisted him to an outomobile and brought him home. He will be detained to his bed for several weeks. Today it was learned that no bones were broken.

The many sore spots from which Mr. Finch is suffernig do not compare with his great loss in the death of his fine horse, Lady Potentate, which fell and broke its leg in the same meet and had to be shot. Mr. Finch has hunted with this horse all season and he valued teh animal highly. Earlier in the season at Cedarhurst, Mr. Finch lost another horse, its neck being broken and had to be shot. This animal ran fully a half-mile after breaking its neck before it dropped.

BRIDGE WHIST PARTY FOR CHILDREN'S CAMP

For the purpose of raising funds for the summer children's camp near Riverton, Conn., in which they are interested, Miss Margaret Goddard and Miss Mattie Merrill, of this city, gave a bridge whist party yesterday afternoon at the Cedarcroft on Park avenue. There were thirteen tables and the play was greatly enjoyed. Five gifts were presented for the affair and after the play it was announced that Miss Josephine Lapsley received first honors, Mrs. W. A. Conner second, Mrs. Harry Lovell third, Mrs. Grandi Wilson fourth and Mrs. H. Reeve Stockton fifth. Refreshments were served.

This summer work for New York children is established on a large farm at Riverton, owned by Miles Roberts, of this city, and is conducted by the Union Settlement, of New York. Miss Goddard and Miss Merrill became interested in the work last year and they will have charge of the camp during Agust this year. Twelve children from New York are allowed to remain at the camp for one week, or nearly fifty children a month. Yesterday's affair was a success and as a result $35.00 was realized for the charity.

EMERGENCY HOSPITAL FOR THE CHARTER DAYS

For the dispensation of "first aid to the injured," and as a retiring and rest room for those effected by heat and weariness, the court-room at city police headquarters is to be transformed into an emergency hospital for the three days of the Charter Day celebration next week. Mayor C. J. Fisk has requested Chief Kiely and City Physician C. B. Lufburrow to complete the arrangements for the equipment of the court-room as such an emergency hospital.

Cots are to be set up in the court-room and it is probable that a nurse will be in charge. Various local physicians have offered their services in short tours, and will be relieved periodically day and night. "First aid" remedies will be at hand at all times, the "hospital" being especially for those overcome by the heat or attacked by sickness on the street.

The City Union of King's Daughters is negotiating for a West Front street store in which to establish a similar emergency hospital, which will be in charge of members of the Union during the celebration. The establishment of such emergency hospitals, it is believed, will be a means of simplifying the duties of those at Muhlenberg Hospital, for the petty cases will be attended to at these places.

Jacob Reiber Visits Plainfield.

Jacob Reiber, aged ninety years, a highly respected citizen of Butler, Pa., and grandfather of Mrs. C. M. Dolliver, of Fairview avenue, the borough, also the latter's aunt, Mrs. George Reiber and son, of Bunkie, La., spent last week at the home of Mrs. Dolliver. Although far advanced in years, Mr. Reiber is hale and hearty and he made the trip to and from Butler unaccompanied. He was much pleased with Plainfield and thoroughly enjoyed his visit.

AFTER TICKET SCALPERS

Jersey Central Seeks to Enjoin Plainfielders Engaged in Traffic.

THE LOSS $4,500 ANNUALLY.

Five Are Named as Defendants to Appear on Tuesday, July 6—Others Too.

Tony Lusardi, Alexander Lusardi, Samuel Rothberg, William Brummel Feiring and Joseph Cadmus, all of this city, have been summoned to appear before Vice-Chancellor Garrison at Jersey City, on Tuesday, July 6, to show cause why they should not be enjoined for ticket scalping. Vice-Chancellor Garrison signed the order today.

The New Jersey Central, compainants, claim that these defendants have made a business of purchasing commutation tickets between Plainfield and New York and selling two rides for fifty cents. Upward of nienty instances of this alleged unlawful us of tickets have been discovered since January first last, it is said. The company declares that it is losing not less than $4,500 by this scalping process.

There has been no particular secret as to the practice here, although it has not been carried on openly. It has often been the custom of regular commuters to loan or hire their tickets out over Sunday or on Saturday, when not in use, and in fact this is done all along the line of the railroad. The fact that the New Jersey Central has taken steps to stop the practice has aroused great interest not only here but in other suburban towns and the outcome will be closely watched.

ROSSELLE MAN KILLED WHEN AUTO HIT POLE.

Edward Cooley, aged 33, of Roselle Park, Newark agent for the Pope-Hartford Co., was instantly killed on Morris avenue, Elizabeth, near the Meeker Inn at 12:20 o'clock this morning. He was driving a 40 horse power car at the rate of sixty miles an hour, according to witnesses.

In the car with Cooley were Stanley L. Reed, of Elizabeth, a garage owner, John. L. Lautier, an automobile man of Rochester, N. Y., and a woman named Maud Tucker, of Newark. They were all thrown out and more or less seriously injured. The cause of the accident was the bursting of a tire while the machine was going at a high rate of speed.

Cooley, who was at the wheel, was not thrown out with the others and when the machine swerved and struck a telegraph pole he was pitched forward and his body wound around the pole. Nearly every bone in his body was broken and death was instantaneous.

Reed, Lautier and the woman are in the Elizabeth General Hospital and will recover.

John Causebrook.

John Causebrook, a prominent citizen of East Orange, and the father of W. R. Causebrook and Alfred Causebrook, of this city, died Sunday night at his home, 193 North Park street, East Orange. Death was the result of a stroke of paralysis which he suffered in October. He was sixty-six years old. Mr. Causebrook was born in Northampton, England, and came to this country in 1870. He lived in Bloomfield for twenty-eight years, during which time he was superintendent of the old Montclair Gas and Water Company. He is survived by his wife and eight children. A short prayer service will be held from the late home tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, and anther service will be held at the First Baptist church, Bloomfield, at 2:30 o'clock.

Co. K Had a Busy Session.

Co. K, under the direction of Captain H. B. Kitchell, had a short drill last night. The captain explained the method of forming for shelter tents. During a business session the members equipped themselves with tan shoes, same as worn in the regular army. A vote of thanks was given the Westfield members of the company for recent entertainment; also to Corporal Manning of South Plainfield, and the women of that place for a fine "spread" on June 21. It was decided to take a "hike" to Smalleytown, Saturday, July 17. The start will be made at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and the company will camp over night at Smalleytown, returning home Sunday. If story the trip will be postponed to July 24. Major Martin paid an official visit to the company last night.

MEN'S HANAN SALE

Our great 15th semi-annual sale of Shoes and Oxfords.

Following a custom which we inaugurated seven years ago we began today in our men's shoe annex a great sale reduction, consisting of Messrs. Hanan & Son's entire factory clean-up of imperfect footwear. Every man in Newark knows of these famous sales, hence it is unnecessary for us to dwell upon details. Be it known, however, that this year's sale comprises the largest and choicest lot yet offered, and the injuries are, if anything, more trivial than heretofore. Come in tomorrow for your share of this season's shoe treat. All absolute 5.50 to 7.00 grades. Shoes and Oxfords.

NEWARK N. J.

to "Dave" Driscoll to lose that game to Plainfield.

Jack Martin had the opportunity of his life Saturday to make himself solid with New Brunswick fans when he came to the bat in the ninth inning. There were two out, and Ortleib put on a little more steam and made Jack retire.

The fact that the Philadelphia Giants have defeated New Brunswick and Plainfield performed the same trick on Saturday, serves to boost local stock a little.

"Dave" Driscoll will be here Saturday with his star aggregation, and will do everything possible to retheive lost honors.

Boyd, the Plainfield's new fielder, was right in the game Saturday, not only fielding fast, but doing some stick work, although he failed to get a hit.

Washburn, who is covering short for Plainfield, is one of the season's finds. On Saturday he made a run, got two hits, one for three bases, and had two put-outs and six assists.

The Plainfield Baseball Club will give the local fans a chance to show on Saturday whether they will support good baseball. The opposing nine will be "Dave" Driscoll's fast players from New Brunswick. He will come here loaded for big game. Turn out and show your interest in the sport.

Among the familiar faces in Saturday's lineup was that of Dalton, who covered third for New Brunswick. He formerly played short for Plainfield and was a favorite among the fans helping to win several games with Westfield.

"Chief" McArdle, who witnessed the game between Plainfield and New Brunswick Saturday, says that it is possible for more people to witness the game on the home grounds by standing outside, than within the inclosure. He speaks in high praise of the work of the Plainfield boys.

The old veteran, Brit. Martin, displayed his ability Saturday, when he made two runs, two hits and had two put-outs and three assists. He set the pace for his team.

GOLF.

That the far away Utica tournament should this time be an attraction to M. G. A. players is due to the Yahnundasis being the home-club of Vice-President Sherman and his son Thomas, a prominent golfer. The latter has induced Walter J. Travis and Allan Lard of Washington, to enter and many others of note. Tom Sherman invited Findlay Douglas, but the former amateur champion had arranged to spend the Fourth and the week end at East Hampton. He has visited the same family there at that time for several years and golfed at the Maidstone course. Travis won the Apawamis tournament last year and it and Nassau are Douglas' home clubs so that their prior engagements will keep away two who would have had a fine chance to win.

There are to be no lack of players, however, judging from the advance names. The entries close tomorrow at the Apawamis club. The qualifying round will be at thirty-six holes, three sixteens to qualify for cups. There will be cups also for two beaten eights and a thirty-six hole handicap on Saturday. The semi-finalists and finalists in the cup contests are barred from the handicap, which seems a wise plan.

The governors of the Apawamis club at last week's meeting, by the way, voted to change the date of the Seniors' tournament from October 7 and 8 to September 29 and 30. There were so many entries last year, although nobody may play who is under 55 years, that the tournament has been made a two day affair. "There were a number of reasons which influenced the change of dates," notes Horace L. Hotchkiss, the originator of the comtetition. "Not the least was the natural gallantry of the Seniors in considering the conflict of dates with the women's national championship at Merion the week of October 4 to 9."

There was no mention in the St. Andrews rules as revised and accepted bp the United States Golf Association of appliances used in irrigating the fairway or putting greens. They do not pipe the courses in Great Britain and hence did not consider the need of such a recognition. In this country the conditions are reversed, and at a special meeting of the U. S. G. A. committee last week at the Englewood Golf Club it was voted to add to new rule 12 the former note to rule 10: If a ball lie on or within a club length of a drain cover, water pipe or hydrant it may be lifted and dropped without penalty as near as possible to the place where it lay, but not nearer the hole.

—Mobus & Burke, the successful contractors, are getting ready to begin the work of improving Greenbrook road, from Gavin's corner to the borough line.

—Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Blatz have purchased of Mrs. Lemuel E. Hart the residence property at West Front street and Elmwood place, and will reside there.

DISCUSS CITY'S WELFARE

incompetence of the police in those cases and the inefficiency of the present system.

A motion to refer the different subjects to the executive committee with power to appoint sub-committees to look into them was carried and the meeting adjourned.

The annual report of President Depew follows:

In carrying out a suggestion contained in my last annual report a plan of co-operation was arranged with the city authorities and in August the Borough Council passed a resolution which was communicated to us by the Mayor asking our interest and co-operation in the work of the borough government.

The following are some of the important matters taken up:

Veto of Macadamizing Ordinance.

In April or May, 1908, an ordinance to macadamize certain streets was vetoed by the Mayor. As it was understood that the ordinance would be passed over the veto we were asked to obtain an expression of opinion upon the subject. This Association felt that the ordinance should not be passed, and the signatures to petitions and postal cards overwhelmingly endorsed this position. The ordinance was passed but the expression of opinion of the tax payers will tend to induce greater care in future.

Streets—Care and Repair.

In June, 1908, the care and repair of the streets was taken up and during a period of severa lmonths a number of inspections were made and the attention of the authorities called to:

Gross negligence on the part of contractors in not properly protecting streets which had been excavated;

The lumping of heavy cracked stone on streets, particularly along trolley tracks and leaving same without covering or rolling and wrong methods used in replacing macadam over excavations.

The first complaint was corrected and improvement made in the others, but upon finding that the old method was being used this year the question was again taken up. The attention of the Chairman of the Street Committee was called to the absurdity of arresting and penalizing a driver of a wagon who permitted any stone to drop in the streets, while the authorities themselves had large sections of streets covered with cracked stone and left without dressing or rolling.

It is unfair to owners of rubber tired vehicles, and particularly to owners of automobiles, to subject them to the loss from damage caused by the sharp stones. Efforts to improve the methods have been promised but complaints of such conditions whenever discovered by owners of automobiles and carriages will no doubt assist materially in securing better methods. As there is a specific tax on automobiles the the revenue derived therefrom might be set apart to keep the streets properly surfaced.

Sewage.

On July 6th, 1908, a special meeting of the Association was held to consider the proposed arrangement for Plainfield to care for the sewage from North Plainfield. After an able discussion, the sense of the meeting was favorable to the project under a proper form of contract. Since then a new plan has been proposed involving an expense of about $400,000 of which the city's share would be about $240,000 to $280,000 less amount to be realized from sale of land on which the present plant stands. It is stated that the new plan would result in a reduction of $1,500 or $1,600 a year to Plainfield in cost of maintenance, and there would be additional revenue from increased valuations of surrounding property if plant were removed, and that retention of present plant will necessitate an expenditure of $5,000 or $6,000 within a year and about $50,000 within two or three years.

Netherwood Fire House and Street Opening.

When the new fire house was located at Netherwood, a proposition to extend either Johnson or Jackson avenue under the railroad to South avenue, seemed to be favorably considered by the Council. The chief reason advanced by those favoring the project was the necessity of giving quick access to the north side of the city. Upon finding that the city's share of the expense would be from $25,000 to $30,000 we urged a change in location of fire house rather than the assumption of this additional expense. As the Council were strongly against changing location of house we demonstrated that loss of time from use of present streets was so slight as not to justify the great expense of opening another street and we believe that this was largely instrumental in the project being dropped.

Lights.

In September last the street lights were again in very bad condition, owing to insufficient and irregular voltage and serious neglect of renewal of lamps. Many complaints as to conditions in houses were also received. The matter was taken up with the Public Service Corporation and a series of joint investigations made with the result that all lamps were changed throughout the city and borough and a better system inaugurated. A number of defects in wiring and apparatus were also corrected, resulting in greatly improved service. We are now able to follow up renewals as the company have furnished us with a card cabinet, and lamp renewal slips are sent to us daily. The connecting of the Cranford plant with Plainfield has produced a great improvement in service, but a very serious question arose in connection therewith. The company proposed to carry their high potential wires on poles through North avenue to Richmond street, and from there to their Plainfield plant through a conduit. Owing to the very serious menace of life and property from these wires, the city authorities strongly objected to the overhead method but were advised by the Corporation Counsel that they could not prevent it. At a conference with city officials, we stated that the carrying out of this plan would be absolutely against our arrangement for friendly co-operation and at our suggestion a meeting with Public Service representatives was arranged at which the matter was discussed from this standpoint. As a result of this conference they extended their conduit to Leland avenue beyond which is the water company's park. This minimizes the danger, and we feel that the result does credit both to the Protective Association and the Public Service Corporation. At this meeting we called attention to the very dangerous condition under the Madison avenue bridge from a mass of high voltage wires dropping down within reach of all pedestrians. As many of these wires carried 2,200 volts, and as 1,300 volts will kill a man, the danger from defective insulation is apparent. A request to carry these wires up out of reach was refused on the ground that in eight or ten days they would be carried over the railroad tracks. The city authorities had the power and should have compelled immediate removal of this danger, but three or four weeks later they were still in the same condition. We then took the matter up with the Council and urged immediate action and the wires were lifted beyond reach on receipt of our communication.

Trolley Service.

Assistance was rendered in bettering the poor trolley service but an urgent request to the city authorities to compel the company to furnish new cars as agreed remains without action. The city authorities appear to have been lax in their failure to incorporate this provision in the written franchise or agreement and in allowing a year and a half to elapse without compelling fulfillment of the verbal agreement. Failure to compel the Public Service Corporation to live up to their agreements excites disagreeable comment and it is to be hoped that no further delay will be allowed. With the aid of the Corporation Counsel no great difficulty should be experienced in compelling the company to furnish the new cars and the withholding of all further payments on account of public lighting and, if necessary, the removal of the second track would probably be an effective means of bringing the matter to a satisfactory conclusion.

Various other questions have been considered from time to time. Complaints have been received and assistance rendered in securing improved service and correction of excessive bills. An investigation of the character of certain moving picture shows, with the intention of quietly securing the elimination of objectionable ones, was being made when action by the Mayor made further action unnecessary. The water question has been considered, but no conclusion reached.

In my last annual report I called attention to the rapid increase in municipal expenses and bond issues and the resulting increase in taxes. Since then other citizens have written and spoken upon the subject, but no concerted action has been taken to find a solution of the question which I presented, namely: "Is it advisable for Plainfield to go on piling up a debt and increasing its expenses, and thereby continually increasing the taxes, or to apply the brakes and go a little slowly in our effort to change from a suburban city of homes into a metropolis?" That the warning was more than justified is borne out by the fact that this year the tax rate will be from 160 to 165.

Consider for a moment the followin gtable:

	Assessed Valuations.	Tax Rate.	Taxes Raised.
1905	$10,240,714	$2.48	$259,779
1906	20,895,019	1.35	288,042
1907	22,201,525	1.47	332,575
1908	22,687,789	1.40	324,217
1909	23,000,000	160 to 165	373,000 Estimated.

In 1906 the total assessed valuation was more than doubled, therefore this year's rate, on the basis used in 1905 will be 320 to 330—an increase of from 72 to 82 points or 30% to 33 1-3%—surely an extraordinary increase. The increased amount raise dover that in 1905 will be about $120,000 or about 46%. A property valued at $10,000 in 1905 paid a tax of $248. This year the tax will be $320 to $330. If the taxpayers do not wish to allow these conditions to continue and to stand the further increases which must follow it is time to act. The extraordinary increases beginning in 1906, indicate erroneous assessments, necessary increase of expenses or extravagance in administration.

The happy-go-lucky way in which we have gone on making imrpovements and piling up of expenses regardless of consequences should no longer continue. If assessments are wrong let them be corrected. If the increase of our County tax since 1905 from $45,604 to $65,711 and of our State School tax from $17,409 to $47,644 is due to inequality of assessments throughout the county and State, action should be taken to secure a proper readjustment. If increased expenses are necessary we must accept the fact, but any increase due in whole or in part to extravagance should be promptly checked. And in order that the development of Plainfield may be along the best lines, progressive and yet conservative, sufficiently liberal to promote the best interests but not extravagant to result in disaster and having in mind the interests of the small taxpayers as well as the large, I would suggest that an invitation be extended to all taxpayers to join this association. That a general committee, divided into sub-committees be formed to carefully investigate all of the different questions in Plainfield, including schools, police, fire, water supply, parks, streets, sewerage, trolleys, lights, assessments, taxes and finance, and in conjunction with the city authorities, endeavor to work out a general plan of harmonious development for the future. Sufficient time should be taken to make careful investigation of, and to give thought to, all sides of the various questions and in the meantime all unnecessary expense should be eliminated. A movement of this kind should accomplish immense good both by arousing the interest of all citizens in public affairs, and by securing for Plainfield a broad and enduring foundation on which to build, and if this plan is approved, I would suggest steps be taken to put it in effect as soon as practicable.

It was learned in Jersey City Sunday that Miss Alice O'Toole, who until Friday last was a teacher in Public School No. 9, and Dr. Claude E. McNenney, of 116 Mercer street, of that city, have been married since November 19 last. Very Rev. Dean P. E. Smyth, of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, Jersey City, performed the ceremony in the rectory at 511 Pavonia avenue. Dr. McNenney was at one time head surgeon at the City Hospital, Jersey City. It is said the marriage was kept a secret because of the illness of Dr. McNenney's mother, with whom he lives.

While harvesting hay Lorenzo Downes, of Clayton, got mixed up with a mowing machine and was badly lacerated about the face and head.

LETTER LED TO ARREST OF PRESTON LA BAU

Through a letter of condolence expressing grief over his brother's death, Preston La Bau, identified by the New York police as a resident of this city, was arrested in Los Angeles yesterday. Six indictments alleging forgery in the third degree were filed against him on June 3 last. A detective will be sent to the Pacific coast right away to bring La Bau back to New York for trial.

The accused man was employed as a confidential bookkeeper by the Rooney Electric Lamp Company, in East Twenty-third street. It is charged that in one year La Bau by manipulating the books of the concern managed to get away with about $7,500. La Bau fled, it is said, as soon as the firm got wind that something was wrong with the books. He is 39 years old and said he lived in this city, although his name is not in the local directory.

On hearing of his brother's death La Bau wrote to his parents, and the police say it was through this correspondence that they managed to get a line on his present whereabouts.

CEMETERY SUPERINTENDENT DIES IN HIS 86TH YEAR.

Frederick G. Moeller, father of Bernard Moeller, superintendent of Hillside cemetery, died at his home on Woodland avenue this morning in his eigthy-sixth year. Mr. Moeller was born in Germany and had been a resident of Plainfield for the past seven years. Besides the son he leaves two daughters, Mrs. H. Kretchmar, of Flatbush, L. I., and Mrs. William Stader, of Nyack, N. Y.

The funeral will take place Friday at 2:30 p. m., from the house and the services will be conducted by Rev. Frank Fletcher, of Atlantic Highlands. The interment will be in Hillside.

Gleason Was Scrappy.

Belligerently "looking for work" along East Second street yesterday, Michael Gleason found his match in William Smith, a contractor, who was superintending a job on Woolston & Buckle's new building. Gleason was pretty well "fuddled" with booze, and was badly punished by William Smith, whom he insulted. He was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail by City Judge Runyon this morning.

Robert Murphy.

Robert Murphy died at his home in Scotch Plains last night after a brief illness. He is survived by a widow and one daughter, Mrs. Thos. Walsh. The funeral will be held at St. Mary's church at 9:30 Thursday morning, when a solemn high mass will be celebrated. The funeral will leave his late home at 8 o'clock.

Fire When Cherries Boiled Over.

Fire started at the home of E. M. Vail, of 511 Washington street, yesterday afternoon at about 4 o'clock, when a pot of cherries, being prepared for preserving, boiled over and caught fire. An alarm was sounded from box 23, but there was little work for the firemen, and no damage, except to the preserves.

Paul Wood's Funeral.

The funeral of Paul Wood, the lineman who was killed in a fall from a telegraph pole Saturday night, will be held from his late residence, 132 East Front street, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. The services will be conducted by Rev. J. W. Musson, pastor of the Temple Baptist church.

Will Attend Harvard Summer School

Miss Margaret E. Mosher, physical director of the Y. W. C. A., has gone to her home in Oberlin, Ohio. She is planning to leave there about July 10 to attend the physical department of the Harvard Summer School at Cambridge, Mass., this summer. She also plans to be back in Plainfield September 1 to arrange for her gymnasium classes for the winter. After July 8 the association's home will be closed for the summer because of the extensive repairs, but the gymnasium will be open evenings for the use of members.

Will Prevent Garbage Dumping.

The city officials are making determined efforts to stop the dumping of garbage in this city, particularly at the Myrtle avenue dump. An ash-carter was caught last Saturday on Compton avenue with a load of garbage ready to dump, and could have been punished severely for two misdeameanors: Carting garbage without a license and dumping garbage in the city. It would be well for persons employing ash-carters for this purporse as well as the carters themselves to realize the serious nature of such offences.

The Women's Home Missionary Society of Hope chapel will meet with Mrs. Catherine Radford, 825 West Fifth street, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. As this will be the last meeting of the season a full attendance is desired.

BUNGALOW LIFE AT PORT-AU-PECK ON THE SHREWSBURY—Bungalow colonies, originally a California institution, are springing up all over the east. Many persons of means believe this to be the most healthful manner in which to spend a vacation. It takes them away from the irksome forms of conventionality and puts them in close touch with nature. It enables them to roam through the woods or sail over the sparkling waters, getting fresh air, sunlight and exercise, which has built many a rundown body up to the exacting requirements of our rushing twentieth century pace. The cooling breezes of the Atlantic meet and mingle with the ozone from the woods, forming an atmospheric combination which carries health and vigor through every pair of lungs inhaling it. These are the conditions at Port-au-Peck on the Shrewsbury. In addition you have fishing, hunting, sailing, canoeing, motor boating, golfing, tennis, bathing and all other forms of healthful, vigorous sports in this section, no matter in what direction you turn. The out-of-doors man or woman will find no more attractive place on this continent in which to spend two or three months or week ends in search of recreation and health. For indoor sports there is a large club-house available with bowling alleys and billiard rooms and is especially equipped to give those small affairs in case you should want to. SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The Swedesboro "Jag Committee" will sit for public hearings the first Tuesday night of each month, when people will have an opportunity to make complaints.

Edward F. Duncan and Louisa Bornmiller, who were convicted of misdemeanor in the Gloucester county courts, have served notice that the case will be carried to the Supreme Court.

On his way home about 3 o'clock Sunday morning, John White, of 1746 Mulford street, Camden, was held up in what is known as the Eighth street swamps, South Camden, by three masked men and robbed of $15.

Some malicious individual entered the department store of Theodore Lore, at Pleasantville, turned on the water and permitted a flow during the night which damaged the stock and caused a loss of several hundred dollars.

In the worst thunder storm so far this season at Clayton Sunday afternoon, it became so dark that lamps were lighted. Signals on the West Jersey and Seashore electric line were struck by lightning and put out of commission, delaying trains considerably.

Carl Sutor, fifteen years old, of 222 Pearl street, Paterson, while shooting off blank cartridges in a toy pistol Sunday shot himself accidentally in the finger. The victim received surgical attention at the General Hospital.

Dozing in a porch rocker, Mrs. Nathan Nelson, of North Clayton, was startled by a hissing sound and was horrified to see a huge black snake coiled about the pillar of the veranda, with its head pointing directly toward her. She called her husband, who quickly dispatched the snake.

The hot weather has been made worse in Trenton by an approach to an ice famine. For several days the artificial ice plant of the local concern has bee.. partly out of commission, owing to the blowing out of a cylinder head in one of its engines. Its capacity was reduced one-half.

Gertrude Jackson, of 181 Pearl street, Paterson, was struck accidentally on the mouth with a hatchet in the hands of her little brother Sunday afternoon. Her lower lip and chin and one tooth were damaged. The girl, who is seven years old, was attended at the General Hospital for treatment. The burns are not serious.

When you pay for twenty-five pounds of ice from some of the Camden edalers you often get very much less. The sealer of weights and measures has made this discovery and has been busy testing ice scales, with startling results. He has ordered a score of scales to be repaired to prevent short weight.

While playing with a blank cartridge pistol Sunday ten-year-old Abraham Bricker, of 593 Grand street, Jersey City, shot twelve-year-old George T. Yecenda, of 608 Grand street, on the right side of the face, badly burning the cheek. The injured boy was sent to the City Hospital, where his wounds were dressed, and he went home.

After forty-seven years continuous service in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, Samuel H. Barber, of Trenton, has been retired on pension. Barber entered the employ of the company in 1862. For many years he was yard master at Lambertville and was subsequently transferred to this city, where he has since been located.

William Gallagher, of West Paterson, while working on a building in course of erection in Park avenue, above Straight street, Paterson, last Saturday, fell and sustained painful injuries. The victim's brother insisted on having the injured man transferred to his home, and the hospital doctors acceded to his wishes. It is believed that Gallagher has sustained internal injuries.

Shot in the leg by Special Officer Ford, at Haddon Heights Sunday, James Jackson, colored, managed to escape, but when he called at Cooper Hospital, Camden, and declined to explain how he was shot, he was locked up in the city jail. The injury is not serious. Jackson became very abusive when ordered from a lawn by the officer at the Heights. He had been acting in a suspicious manner.

In Jersey City Sunday, Battalion Chief George Dingler was thrown from his carriage at Grove and Bay streets, when the axle of a rear wheel broke. He landed heavily on the pavement and received cuts and bruises on the head and body. Dr. B. A. Pollock dressed the wounds at Dingler's home. He was on his way to a slight chimney fire that had been extinguished before the engines arrived.

Charles Hockenbury, a prominent farmer of Moundsville, Hunterdon county, is in the Mercer County Jail awaiting trial on an indictment found by the grand jury of the United States District Court charging him with sending obscene letters through the mails. It is said that a number of married women living near White House, Hunterdon county, have received letters, some of which have resulted in the breaking up of homes.
